Nixon Signs Bill Creating Golden Gate Rec Area

Congress Will Be Asked Next Session To Appropriate Funds

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — President Richard M. Nixon yesterday signed a bill creating a 34,000-acre Golden Gate National Recreation Area stretching from the Presidio of San Francisco to Point Reyes National Seashore.

The next session of Congress will be asked to appropriate $118.6 million needed to acquire and develop the land, now partly privately owned and partly in public ownership.

The measure signed by Nixon calls for spending $60.6 million for land and $58 million for developing it for recreational use.

The President at the same time signed a bill creating a "Gateway East" recreation area to serve the New York City Area. He praised congressional action establishing the eastern and western areas, saying they would "serve some 35 million persons."

The Golden Gate facility is the fruit of campaigns that began in 1960, when the first serious indications arose that the Army might declare surplus some of the lands in its string of forts and the Presidio ringing the Golden Gate. A series of proposals followed, mostly for state acquisition of the fort sites and creation of a recreation area of only some 3,600 acres.

In 1967, Gov. Ronald Reagan proposed that the federal government give the state the fort lands in exchange for state parklands in the Redwood Empire, which then would be included in the national redwoods park system.

In its final form, the Golden Gate National Recreation Area includes Angel Island, Marin Headlands, Stinson Beach and Mount Tamalpais state parks, Muir Woods National Monument, most of the fort lands in Marin County, and a 23-mile-long strip of all privately owned, undeveloped land in West Marin from the Golden Gate to Olema — excluding the towns of Muir Beach, Stinson Beach, Bolinas and Olema.

Included within the approved boundary is the Marincello area, long the scene of controversy over plans to develop a new city of 25,000 persons.

However, the Wolfback Ridge area between Sausalito and Marincello was excluded, despite conservationists' efforts to place it within the recreation area boundaries.

In San Francisco, the recreation area will include an arc of open space areas from the Pacific Ocean to the Marina.

Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, today expressed "a great sense of accomplishment and gratitude." He

Paris Claims Cease-Fire On Tuesday

White House Silent On Report Of Hanoi Accord

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Communist and French diplomatic sources said today in Paris that U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers would fly there to sign a cease-fire agreement with the North Vietnamese on Tuesday. There was no confirmation of the report from the White House.

UPI Senior Editor Joseph W. Grigg quoted the Communist and French sources as saying North Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh would sign on behalf of Hanoi. The sources said the Viet Cong and the South Vietnamese would not sign the agreement.

It would be Rogers signing, the sources said, instead of President Nixon's security adviser Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, the man who negotiated the agreement in a series of top-secret meetings with Hanoi leaders.

The White House did not comment on the Rogers report nor did it give the whereabouts of Kissinger. Kissinger said Thursday another negotiating session would be necessary before the United States could sign. The North Vietnamese invited Kissinger to Paris Tuesday—but said the agreement must be signed then and that no further negotiations are necessary.

There was no word from Washington whether a new meeting to settle the war had been scheduled or whether Kissinger has been in contact with the Vietnamese Communists since Hanoi annouced the agreement on Thursday.

With the Communist and French diplomats openly speaking of a Tuesday signing ceremony in Paris, the war itself intensified, with both sides seeking to grab as much territory as possible before there is a cease-fire "in place" — meaning each side would retain the territory it now holds.

The clandestine Viet Cong Radio issued an appeal to the United States to sign but pledged to fight on until final victory if it does not. The Viet Cong broadcast said there would be no reprisals—wholesale slayings feared by the South Vietnamese once the war itself stops.

White House officials indicated privately they expect an agreement and predicted Presi-

New Soviet Space Launches Forecast

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Astronaut Thomas P. Stafford said today the Russians may launch several space missions soon to get ready for the 1975 joint spaceflight with the United States.

Stafford, fresh from a two-week visit to Russia, said the Soviets have made extensive design changes in their spacecraft since three cosmonauts died June 30, 1971 aboard the last flight. He said extensive ground tests on the design changes had stalled the Russians flight program.

A veteran of three spaceflights, Stafford is a likely candidate to command the U.S. part of the joint flight of America's Apollo and the Soviet's Soyuz spacecrafts. He was the first U.S. astronaut to participate in talks with the cosmonauts for the joint flight.

During his Russian visit, Stafford worked in a Soyuz spacecraft simulator, practicing a docking with another craft.

"Their simulators are a lot like ours, but the main difference are in the switches and master controls," he said. "Ours are laid out to be operated manually and they have more interface with the ground. They let ground control do a lot of the work we designed to be done by man.

"As far as the docking simulation displays, they're exactly like ours. It wasn't hard to dock it after I learned the switches."

Stafford said he left Russia with the impression the Soviets would fly in space soon but he was unaware of plans announced last Thursday for an elaborate permanent manned orbital space station. In making the announcement, the Soviets said they had no plans to land a man on the moon in the foreseeable future.

Stafford commanded the Apollo 10 moonflight mission in 1969 for a checkout of the spacecraft used a few weeks later to land men on the moon for the first time. He also flew aboard two Gemini missions and presently is deputy director of flight crew operations.

Stafford, already "a little conversant" in Russian, said the official crew announcement for the joint spaceflight would be made next spring. He said Donald K. "Deke" Slayton may be in the three-man U.S. crew.

Slayton, one of the original seven Mercury astronauts, is director of flight crew operations and head of the astronaut corps. A heart condition prevented Slayton from flying in space, but last Varch doctors okayed him for a return to active flight status.

Slayton's selection for the joint space flight was endorsed by Alan B. Shepard, America's first man in space and commander of the Apollo 14 moon landing last year.

"He's certainly qualified," Shepard said "He's certainly been training a lot more than anybody else."

Slayton has selected astronauts for all previous flights but Stafford predicted the space agency's top management would pick the joint flight crew.

"Because everybody's eligible, including Deke, we think it would be unethical to have people selecting themselves," Stafford said.

The Soyuz spacecraft will carry only two cosmonauts. Stafford said the Soviets probably would designate their senior, experienced cosmonauts for the flight.

Consumer Protection Legislation Signed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today signed legislation to set and enforce safety standards for virtually all consumer products, ranging from pop-up toasters to football helmets.

The job will be done by a new, independent Consumer Product Safety Commission consisting of five members appointed by tha president and charged with the prime responsibility of protecting consumers from injury due to hazardous products.

The measure was among about 30 signed by Nixon shortly before leaving on a campaign swing through Ohio and Michigan.

Nixon raised some objections to provisions of the measure which he said would weaken budget control and make it more difficult for him to ride herd over spending.

"The most important thing about this bill, however, is its recognition that a defective lawn mower or electric heater can be just as dangerous to the consumer and his family as contaminated food or improperly packaged drugs," he said in a statement.

The President added it was "high time" that the government took action in this field.

Nixon also signed several environmental measures:

A measure providing more rigid control over ocean dumping.

A measure providing for the protection of marine mammals which Nixon said would "give us the important powers we need to insure that the world's whales, porpoises, seals, polar bears, walruses, sea otters and manatees did not become depleted or endangered species."

The coastal zone management act which is aimed at achieving more rational and beneficial use of coastal areas where 75 per cent of the population now lives.

A measure enabling the environmental protection agency to limit the amount of noise created by such noisemakers as trucks, busses, railroad trains. It also enables the government to require labelling of noise levels on products such as household appliances and calls for a study of aircraft and airport noise with future legislation in mind.

Provides for Gateway East and Gateway West —two huge recreation areas on New York harbor and San Francisco harbor, a major project of the administration park program. Nixon said it was fitting that the second century of national parks be launched by the crea-

San Rafael Ruins Drake Homecoming

San Rafael High School overcame a 20-point first quarter splurge by Drake High last night to ruin the Pirate's homecoming 34-20, in Marin County Athletic League football game at San Rafael High.

In Southern Sonoma action last night, Petaluma High gained sole possession of first place in the North Bay League, beating Hogan of Vallejo, 21-6, while Ukiah was losing to Vallejo High, 21-14.

Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park continued to roll on in the Sonoma County League, thrashing Healdsburg, 40-0. The Cougars now have a 16-game winning streak.

A full slate of prep action was on top today as Novato hosted Redwood in a crucial battle, while San Marin visited Tamalpais. In non-league action, Marin Catholic journeyed to Menlo Park to face Menlo. Terra Linda meets Monte Vista in Sunnyvale 8 o'clock tonight.

College of Marin plays Contra Costa College tonight at 8 o'clock in San Pablo.

Moscone Accuses Governor Of 'Hypocrisy' On Pay Initiative

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democratic Sen. George Moscone has accused Gov. Ronald Reagan of "sheer hypocrisy" for asking the federal government to halt advertising of the state employes' pay initiative on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Moscone, the San Francisco legislator who is an unannounced candidate for governor in 1974, leveled the blast Friday after Reagan urged the Federal Trade Commission to issue a "cease and desist order" against what the governor called "false and fraudulent" promotions of Prop. 15.

The ballot measure, sponsored by the 100,000-member California State Employes Association, would strip a governor of his veto power over state worker pay raises and establish a collective bargaining system for nonwage issues.

Moscone said it was "sheer hypocrisy" for Reagan to seek a federal investigation of Prop. 15 promotions while not also calling for a probe of advertising against the coastline protection initiative, Prop. 20.

Moscone noted that Reagan, an opponent of Prop. 20, has said advertising against the coastal measure also is "misleading." He urged the governor to include such ads in "his sham-like call for a federal investigation."

Edwin Gray, press secretary to Reagan, said the governor is "more particularly concerned about Prop. 15 because it so directly relates to his responsibilities as governor."

Reagan also asked the Federal Communications Commission to "remind" California radio and television stations of their "legal obligation to screen out all broadcast materials which are false and fraudulent."

CSEA later sent FCC Chairman Dean Burch a telegram saying Reagan's false advertising charges were a "reprehensible distortion of the truth." CSEA also said it was prepared to "document and verify" every claim made by its Prop. 15 advertisements.

CSEA General Manager Walter Taylor earlier charged Reagan with "attempting to intimidate radio and TV stations for playing 'yes on 15' commercials."

In a letter to Chairman Miles Kirkpatrick of the Trade Commission, Reagan listed seven CSEA-sponsored commercials he described as making false claims. He termed the campaign as a "giant and well financed hoax against the people."

Watergate Trial Is Postponed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The trial of seven men indicted in the Watergate bugging case, originally scheduled to begin Nov. 15, has been postponed for two months because the presiding judge has a pinched nerve.

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica issued a two-page statement yesterday announcing that the trial will now begin Jan. 8, the earliest of three alternative dates given to him by defense lawyers.

Reds Step Up Move On Southern Hamlets

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist troops captured at least 12 hamlets within 40 miles of Saigon today in their drive to gain control of population centers before a cease-fire, military sources said.

South Vietnamese soldiers recaptured five of the hamlets, but the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese retained the other seven at nightfall as each side battled to gain as much territory as possible before a possible cease-fire goes into effect.

The Communists in the third day of heavy attacks fired at least 36 rockets into airports at two of South Vietnam's major airports.

Military sources said the drive represented no major threat to Saigon itself, although unconfirmed reports said government officers feared a commando-style attack on the western suburb of Phu Lam "soon." They did not say what led them to expect such a push.

Both the Communist and government sides in the war have begun a "battle of the flags" in an effort to plant their standard in as many places as possible before any cease-fire, to "prove" control of the area.

In Saigon today, residents lined up to buy red and gold government flags to hang from their homes, office buildings, cars and motorcycles. The South Vietnamese administration said it would run checks next Wednesday, the country's national day, to make sure every household was flying a flag.

North Vietnam and the Viet Cong both warned in radio broadcasts that if the United States refuses to sign a peace

Rocket Launch Provides Display For Marinites

The launching of an experimental Air Force rocket from Vandenberg Air Force Base provided a spectacular sky display for Marin County residents shortly before 7:30 p.m. yesterday.

Observers in Novato said the firing first resembled a huge beam from an aircraft landing light, spread in a fan 30 degrees wide across the western sky. A moment later, engines aboard the experimental re-entry vehicle burned out, and a smaller stage ignited, leaving a curving cloud of blue-green light that persisted for several minutes.

The Air Force reported that the launch vehicle was a modified Minuteman I missile, according to United Press International.

CRASH SCENE — Rescue workers stand near the wreckage of a domestic French airliner which slammed into a rocky ridge last night near Noiretable, France. Fifty-nine persons perished. Nine persons survived.

59 Perish In French Air Crash

NOIRETABLE, France (UPI) —An Air Inter domestic airliner carrying 68 persons on a flight from Lyons to Clermont Ferrand in southern France crashed into a rocky, 3,600-foot-high ridge last night during a rainstorm.

Airline officials said 59 persons were killed in the crash and nine survived.

Rescuers sea rched rain soaked forests for seven hours before locating the wreckage and the survivors. Egacuation of the survivors was hampered because of difkiculty in reaching the crash site, a 3,630-foot high ridge named Picon Peak, located about 35 miles east of Clermont Ferrand.

The plane, a four-engine turboprop was found several hours after airline officials reported it missing on the 50-minute flight.

The first persons at the scene said they heard cries from the torn wreckage. One of the survivors was four-year-old Sylvain Manteneix of Grenoble, who escaped unhurt, officials said.

Many of the passengers, according to officials, were businessmen on a weekend holiday. Five of the 68 persons aboard were crewmembers.

One of those rescued was 55-year-old Marcel Delcroix, a sales director from Artigues, France.

"During the whole flight, I had a feeling something was wrong," he told reporters. "Just before the accident, I felt we were going to crash and I unfastened my seatbelt. That's how I was thrown out at the moment of impact."

Firemen at the scene first reported finding about 20 survivors, but officials later revised the number to nine passengers who were sitting towards the rear of the plane.

The search began after the pilot lost radio contact with the Clermont Ferrand airport control tower minutes before his scheduled landing. Airport technicians later said that for some unknown reason, the craft made a 180 degree turn from the landing strip.

About 2,000 persons joined a search, sweeping a wide area in an effort to locate the plane.

The Economic Index On Climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government index of leading economic indicators rose again in September, pointing to a continued expansion of the nation's economy, the Commerce Department said yesterday.

The department also reported that the August increase in the index, originally put at 2.2 per cent, was revised upward to 2.6 per cent, making it the largest monthly percentage increase in more than a decade.

The September advance was 0.4 per cent. But the significance of the smaller increase is debatable. Many economists believe that the index presages ups and downs in the economy rather than measures its strength.

Mrs. Johnson Cited For The Environment

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson was presented the third annual Damon Woods Memorial Award Friday for "conspicuous contributions to the betterment of the environment."

"Count me in with those on the front line of any war on ugliness," Mrs. Johnson said in accepting the award.

Alioto Look Trial Ends In Hung Jury

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Mayor Joseph Alioto failed for the second time to win a $12.5 million libel judgment against Look magazine for linking him with the Mafia.

But his attorney, James Boccardo, said yesterday after a jury announced in U.S. District Court that it could not reach a unanimous verdict— that he would immediately file for a new trial.

A jury of six men and six women deadlocked on whether there was malice on the part of two authors who said Alioto had a "web of alliances" with Mafia leaders.

The panel's vote was 9-3 against Alioto in comparison with an 8-4 vote against him in the first trial. A unanimous verdict was needed for a win in Alioto's suit.

The jury found that the article was false "in one or more particulars" and defamatory but could not agree on whether Look was malicious in publishing its story.

The false decision involved an alleged meeting between Alioto and Mafia leaders at a restaurant near Sacramento, Calif.

Mariner Retires

PASADENA (UPI) — The Mariner 9 spacecraft, which mapped the entire surface of Mars with more than 7,000 photographs, was retired yesterday after successfully completing a mission that began May 30, 1971.

Mariner's radio transmitter was shut off at 2 p.m. EDT on orders from scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory moments after the satellite's supply of attitude control gas ran out.

The NASA space probe went into Mars orbit last Nov. 13 and for 90 days transmitted 7,329 photographs of the Martian surface back to Earth.

Leading Contractor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon lists Lockheed Aircraft Corp. as the nation's biggest defense contractor for the fourth straight year.

The Pentagon said Friday that Lockheed got contracts of $1.7 billion in fiscal 1973. Lockheed's main work is on the C5A and C130 cargo planes, the S3A and T3 antisubmarine planes and the Poseidon missile.

Second place in contracts for fiscal 1973 goes to McDonnell Douglas-Corp. The St. Louis company jumped from seventh after landing the contract for the new Air Force fighter plane, the F15 Eagle. McDonnell-Douglas contracts are only $5 million less then Lockheed.

Crash Too Much

TOKYO (UPI) — A 67-year-old chauffeur with a flawless driving record committed suicide yesterday after becoming involved in a road accident.

Police said Saburi Hirano was driving to meet his employer at a Tokyo railway station when his car struck and slightly injured an 18-year-old plumber.

Hirano was so shocked over the accident, police said, that he strangled himself when he returned home.

Ready To Start

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has told the Soviet Union it is ready to begin preliminary talks for companion conferences on European security and reducing NATO and Communist troop levels in Europe.

The main points of a Soviet-American agreement to begin the talks were worked out during a Moscow visit last month by White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

Brandt Predicts

BONN (UPI) — Chancellor Willy Brandt said today he expects the two German states to become members of the United Nations next year.

Brandt said in an interview with the newspaper Neue Osnabruecker Zeitung that he believes that by the time, "perhaps even earlier," West and East Germany will have concluded a treaty governing their relations.

East and West German negotiators ended another round of negotiations Thursday but reached no agreement on the proposed treaty.

SOCIETY'S FUTURE

Leader In Humanist Psychology Paints Two Social Structures

By PAT ANGLE

Our society is disintegrating and it is still impossible to tell what kind of sociai structure — wonderful or terrible — will result from the process, psychologist Carl R. Rogers told a group of students yesterday.

The 70-year-old originator of the humanist psychology movement said he sees two forces, "one exceedingly positive and one frighteningly negative" emerging as the culture moves toward dissolution.

On one hand "we have a small group of people who are living in new ways, choosing their own criteria and values and really living by them, not just spouting them."

Conversely, he said, there are the people who "say we need a man on a white horse to 'get rid of all this nonsense,'" those who view the new ways as immoral and destructive.

"It's so close, so very close that I just have no idea what is going to win," the soft-spoken psychologist said.

Rogers, who is also founder of the Center for the Study of the Person in La Jolla and the author of several books, including "Freedom to Learn" and "On Becoming a Person," spoke yesterday to about 60 students and faculty members at New College of California in Sausalito.

He said those seeking better ways to live the human experience are the only hope for positive revolutionary change in society.

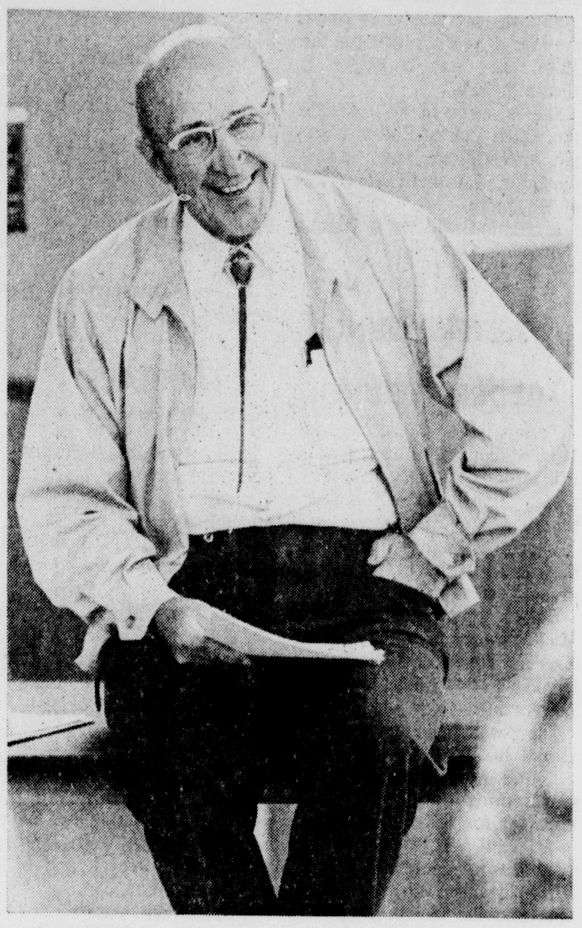

"True revolution is always brought about by people who live something different from the culture; violent revolution is self-defeating and deplorable."

But he warned that "repression could easily be victorious in the struggle, at least for the time being.

"In the long run, I'm sure the people of tomorrow will win, but repression, if it comes, could last a long, long time.

"We now have technological aides to repression that we never had before," Rogers said. "In the past the oppressors could only control behavior; now they have the technological tools to control the mind.

"It would take a long time to break that kind of oppression down," he added.

QUESTIONS — Humanist psychologist Carl R. Rogers reluctantly assumes a role he hates, that of "guru," and answers eager questions from students at New College of California in Sausalito.

Although Rogers said at the outset he deplored "the role of guru," he seemed unable to abandon that posture during the session, since the students fired a barrage of questions.

The psychologist commented on a variety of topics:

EVIL — "I don't think evil or destructiveness is inborn or an essential part of man's nature but we can begin to warp a person at birth so that finally his only means of expression are things that are very horrible to society. I've dealt with some very vicious individuals and found what they really wish for is a closer relationship with other people."

FREEDOM — "People are floored by the notion of real freedom. They will say: 'Can I really do what I want to do. God, what do I want to do? You're asking too much of me; I can't bear it.'"

LEADERSHIP — "When a good leader has finished his work, everyone else will say, 'We did this ourselves!'"

Patrick Suit Against Ebb Tide Booted

A multimillion dollar libel suit by William Penn Patrick, head of a Marin corporate empire, against the Tiburon Ebb Tide was dismissed yesterday by a Marin Superior Court judge.

Judge Henry J. Broderick acted without comment. The suit had claimed libel in a December editorial in the weekly paper which charged Patrick, a flight instructor and two Patrick companies with wrongful use of the traffic advisory radio frequency for the county airport north of Novato.

The suit had asked $1,75 million damages for Patrick from the paper, its publisher, John Luc, who wrote the editorial, and his wife, Nadine, editor of the paper.

It also asked $1.55 million each for Spectrum Air and American Air Museum, two firms in the Patrick empire, and $625,000 for Richard Bingham, a flight instructor and mechanic who was the pilot of a vintage F-86 which recently crashed into a Sacramento ice cream parlor, killing 22 persons.

The editorial charged that Patrick and his employees were dominating the radio with "kid games" and horse-play conversation such as, "Dickie, Dickie, I'm under your right wing."

Luc, a pilot himself, said he had rejected a bid to retract his editorial because it was true.

Free Bus, Ferry Rides For Blind

Golden Gate Bridge District directors voted unanimously yesterday to permit legally blind people to ride free on buses and ferries beginning Jan. 1.

The staff was asked to draft details on how to issue passes and what the qualifications will be, and to report its proposals back to the board.

Several directors suggested that similar passes issued by the San Francisco Municipal Railway be honored, and that an outside organization handle the work.

The free bus fares were asked by the San Francisco Lighthouse for the Blind last Jan. 28, almost one year to the date that the request will be honored.

The free fares were recommended by the finance-auditing committee despite a staff recommendation that the issue be delayed further so it could be considered "in the broader concept of reduced rates for the needy."

Golden Gate Bridge Ditrict directors also:

PARKING — Approved spending almost $55,000 over the next three years to move the downtown San Francisco bus parking lot five blocks closer to the financial district to speed scheduling in the peak evening commuter period.

SAN RAFAEL — Authorized extension of a lease on the Ghilotti property at 517 Jacoby Street, San Rafael, for four, three-month periods next year at a monthly cost of $5,839. The property is used by the district for its temporary bus base.

RECORD — Received a staff report that a record 6,941 passengers rode district buses between 6 and 10 a.m. on Wednesday. The previous high was 6,673 on Oct. 11.

VEHICLES — Authorized purchase of three sedans and a pickup truck through the state for $12,093.

ENGINEER — Received a staff report that Rex McCardell of Mill Valley, a marine, civil and mechanical engineer, has been hired to fill the new position of marine engineer for $20,000 a year. He will supervise construction of the district's ferry fleet.

BOXES — Bought 20 bus fare boxes from Duncan Industries of Illinois for $9,317.

STATE — Paid the state $51,800 as a deposit on the one-way bus lane on the Waldo Grade, the state to use an undetermined portion of the deposit to cover its half of the cost of lane signs and special markings.

FERRY — Received a staff report that a survey of Sausalito ferry passengers on Oct. 24 found 43.1 per cent lived in Sausalito, 36.5 in Mill Valley, 4.8 per cent, Tamalpais Valley, and 15.6 per cent, other areas.

Chrysler Recalling Plymouths, Dodges

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. has announced the recall of 15,302 early production 1973 Plymouths and Dodges for adjustment of brake hoses which could wear through and cause a loss of stopping power.

In New York Friday, Volvo of America Corp. said it is recalling about 40,000 cars equipped with fuel injection engines built between the end of 1969 and Feb. 8, 1972 to correct malfunctions in the throttle cable.

Quits Union Job

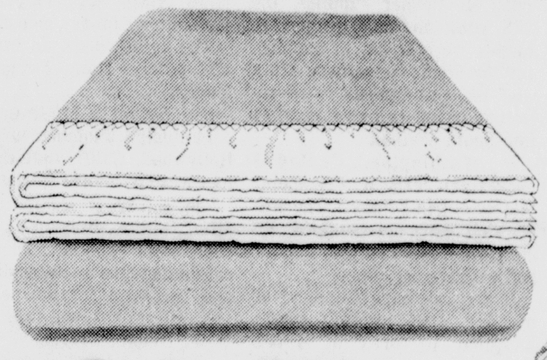

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John F. Griner has resigned after 10 years as president of the 300,000-member American Federation of Government Employes. Griner, who was replaced Friday by the union's executive vice president Clyde M. Webber, cited poor health for his resignation only seven weeks after he had been elected to a sixth two-year term.

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

Permanent Chairman Announced

Frank Phillips Sr., temporary chairman of the Marin City Community Services District board, has been selected permanent chairman.

He replaces C. J. Williams, who died in June.

At its Thursday meeting the district board also appointed directors Ollie Griffin and Thelma McKinney to meet with Sausalito School District trustees to discuss the future of the Manzanita School in that community.

The school district has proposed that the services district take over operation of the facility and coordinate its use by Marin City organizations.

At present, the Marin City Learning Center, a community school, is holding classes in Manzanita in defiance of a Marin Superior Court order to vacate the premises.

Not Dollars, But Cents Valuation

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in reporting the financial impact to homeowners of passage of a Marinwood open space bond election on Jan. 23.

The article said the owner of a home appraised at $40,000 initially would pay $36.24 per $100 of assessed valuation extra to pay off the bonds, while the holder of a $30,000 home would pay $27.18.

Actually, the additional cost would be 36.24 cents per $100 in the $40,000 category and 27.18 cents in the $30,000 bracket.

About 100 citizens turned out at the community center Thursday night in a general show of support for a planned $600,000 bond issue to finance acquisition of about 350 acres of open space.

Bomb Threat Preliminary Hearing Is Set

A preliminary hearing for a 34-year-old Novato resident charged with making a telephoned bomb threat has been set for Nov. 14 in Marin Municipal Court.

Luther Elmer Jackson was arrested Sunday at his home after an operator and her supervisor at the San Rafael office of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. combined to keep the line of the anonymous caller open until police could go to Jackson's home and check his telephone.

Jackson, who told police he called the operator for the number of a Moose lodge, allegedly told the operator a bomb would go off at the Oakland Coliseum when the A's baseball team returned from the final world series game in Cincinnati.

Man Held In Attack Case

A Marin City man was arrested on suspicion of attempted rape of an 18-year-old San Rafael girl in San Francisco last night.

Harold Cook, 21, of 89 Cole Street, was booked into Marin County Jail and held to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

San Francisco police said Cook picked up a hitchhiker in San Rafael, then drove to a San Francisco parking lot and ordered her to remove her clothes at knifepoint. The girl jumped naked from the car and hailed a passing motorist, police said.

Cook was arrested an hour later in Marin City by Marin City sheriff's deputies.

Sonoma Voter Count Swells

A record 128,485 voters are registered for the Nov. 7 election in Sonoma County, according to County Clerk Eugene D. Williams.

Williams said intense registration drives netted a record increase of 19,398 voters. Countywide registration by party showed Democratic, 69,656; Republican, 49,050; Peace and Freedom, 2,040; American Independent, 167; miscellaneous, 89. Williams said 7,033 persons declined to state a party preference.

Registration in Southern Sonoma showed Petaluma totaling 14,743; Rohnert Park, 3,643, and Cotati, 1,417.

PEACE

dent Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam eventually will concur with it despite his current adamant attitude.

Hanoi has said flatly the historic agreement ending the fighting must be signed Tuesday Oct. 31 and that the United States will "bear responsibility for the consequences" if it is not.

Communist sources said Hanoi remained firm that the cease-fire must be signed on Tuesday and that Hanoi will not back down from it. Chief Hanoi spokesmen Nguyen Thanh Le did say the North Vietnamese would be ready to discuss minor points with Kissinger after the signing.

Communist and French diplomatic sources, meantime, said five big powers, including mainland China, have agreed to take part in an international conference on Vietnam in Paris about one month after a cease-fire.

One of its main purposes would be to set up a new international control commission to police the settlement.

The sources said countries which already have agreed to take part include the United States, Great Britain, France, the Soviet Union, China, South and North Vietnam.

In London, U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said American planes had quit bombing north of tha 20th parallel in North Vietnam. The line cuts across North Vietnam 65 miles south of Hanoi, thus removing the area of the capital and its port of Haiphong from the list of targets.

"Peace is at the tip of a pen," said Nguyen Thanh Le, a Hanoi spokesmen in Paris. Le said there was nothing left to negotiate.

"President Nixon himself approved the text of the treaty as having been completed on Oct. 20 in a message to our Prime Minister Pham Van Dong," Le said.

Kissinger said the agreement would bring peace to Vietnam in "a matter of weeks or less" and said next Tuesday, was only a target date and not an absolute deadline.

Thieu told the people of South Vietnam there would be no peace until he personally signed the agreement.

"We have not agreed on anything yet," Thieu said, "and yet the Communists boasted there will be a cease-fire and are preparing for it."

Thieu objected particularly to the part of the agreement that would establish a three-part so-called "National Council of National Reconcilation and Concord." He interprets the council as a surrender to the Communist demand for a coalition government in Saigon.

"A rose by any other name," said one South Vietnamese diplomat. "That is a coalition."

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth C. Bunker went to the Presidential Palace today for his first meeting with Thieu since Kissinger annnounced Thursday that Hanoi Radio accurately broadcast details of the negotiations. The meeting lasted 50 minutes.

Bunker and Thieu had met just before the details of the North Vietnamese proposal for a treaty to end the Vietnam were broadcast on Hanoi Radio Thursday. They conferred again Thursday afternoon after the broadcast.

Thieu in his speech to the national assembly on Friday suggested that a United Nations team be brought in as the first step toward a new government.

Under terms of the Thieu proposal, a U.N. group would be sent to Vietnam supervise a referendum to determine the size of the various political groups throughout the country. Based on the team's findings, a committee would be established to set up a national election.

In the United Nations, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim told U.S. Ambassador George Bush the United States has "the machinery and the experience" for supervising a Vietnam cease-fire or the rehabilitation of the country.

The offer of help from the United Nations "came up in conversation" when Bush called on Waldheim and was not made formally to the U.S. government, a U.N. spokesman said.

Both North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front (NLF) have steadfastly opposed what they term U.N. "interference" in Vietnam.

The U.N. spokesman said that Waldheim has had contact with North Vietnam, but he had offered no U.N. assistance to either the north or the south.

"The secretary general has said that the United Nations has the machinery and experience for supervising a ceasefire or rehabilitation," the U.N. spokesman said.

Seven New Claims Filed Over Crash

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Seven new claims have been filed in connection with the Sept. 24 crash of a privately owned F86 Sabrejet into an ice cream parlor, bringing the total asked to more than $5 million.

The new claims, totaling $3.5 million, were filed Friday against the City and County of Sacramento.

In addition to the claims, a $5.35 million wrongful death suit has been filed by the three surviving children of one victim.

The plane, owned by a firm in the William Penn Patrick corporate empire, failed to get off the ground on a takeoff run, skidded across a busy street and a parking lot and slammed into the ice cream parlor, where several children's birthday parties were in progress. Twenty-two persons were killed.

Claims against the city and county are routinely rejected, officials said, opening the way for civil suits to be filed in court.

The claims contended the city and county negligently designed and controlled the Executive Airport and the land around it.

Lawyers said that if the claims are rejected as expected, suits would be filed against the public agencies as well as the owners and operators of the airplane and other parties.

treaty next Tuesday, Communist forces will fight on to total battlefield victory. But they said there would be none of the bloody reprisals feared by the Saigon government. Communists and nationalists also took measures to reinforce their military might before a cease-fire cuts off further supplies, the U.S. command said. Huge U.S. planes were flying in supplies for the South vietnamese army and the communists were reported trying to move supplies into South Vietnam.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim told newsmen Friday, "The other side has not stopped its infiltration and resupply efforts and we have not either."

At Saigon's huge Tan Son Nut airport, UPI photographers snapped pictures of seven brand-new armored vehicles from the United States rolling off the ramp of a C5A cargo plane.

Military sources said resupply efforts in the Chup plantation area, one of the longtime Communist sanctuaries and staging areas just over the Cambodian border, are "feverish."

Rabies Clinic Set For Horses

In the wake of reports of rabid skunks in the Sleepy Hollow area in the past few days, the West Marin Veterinary Center will sponsor a rabies clinic for horses at 3 p.m. Monday.

Vaccinations will be given to the animals in the Horsemen's Association Ring near Hidden Valley School.

Further information can be obtained by contacting Mrs. Frank Berto, 70 Crane Drive.

tion of these two areas which will serve some 35 million people.

Nixon also signed a measure making it a federal offense to harrass assault, kidnap or murder a foreign official or member of his family in the United States. It would strengthen the protection the government is authorized to provide for such persons.

Under the consumer bill, the commission's authority would not extend to tobacco products or to items now governed by other safety laws — including aircraft, motor vehicles, boats, pesticides, food, drugs, cosmetics and firearms. Initial authorizations to do the job were $178 million over three years.

For other products intended for household or personal use, the commission will issue mandatory standards governing their use, design, labeling and performance.

It will be empowered to order recalls of substantially hazardous products and to order refunds to consumers who had bought them.

Stiff penalties —including heavy fines and prison terms — were provided for manufacturers or distributors who willfully violated the law. Nixon vetoed nine bills yesterday because they exceeded his federal spending limit by $2.75 billion over two years.The president has signed 44 bills, vetoed nine and has 62 to act upon.

"I cannot sign (them) without breaking my promise to the American people to do all in my power to avoid the necessity of a tax increase next year," Nixon said in a statement.

Among the vetoed bills was a $30.5 billion appropriation measure for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. The two agencies will continue to operate at last year's spending level—$28 billion—until Feb. 28 under a "continuing resolution" passed by Congress. It was the second time Nixon has vetoed the HEW-Labor money measure.

The vetoes drew an immediate outcry from Democratic leaders.

Sen. George S. McGovern told a campaign audience in North Hollywood, Calif., that the vetoes were a "moral outrage."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., told a Minneapolis press conference "this is sheer political demagoguery...utter disdain and contempt for the people's elected representatives." He called Nixon a "menace."

Nixon conceded it might be "politically very damaging" to veto the legislation so close to the Nov. 7 election.

But White House adviser John D. Ehrlichman said Nixon's actions were an attempt to halt "the continuing vice of the process to authorize now and pay later." In effect, he added, they were an attempt to "veto higher taxes."

Nixon said that if he were "to sign these measures into law, I would in effect be making promises that could not be kept, since the funds required to finance the promised services are not available and would not be available without the higher taxes I have promised to resist."

While vetoing the nine bills, the President also signed 18 other measure Friday, including defense appropriations and military construction measures totaling $76.7 billion for the current fiscal year.

Besides the HEW-Labor appropriation bill, other measures vetoed included:

A $543 million authorization for water projects including flood control.

The $3.56 billion Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1972.

Legislation creating mineral research and training institutes in all 50 states.

A measure increasing federal funds for airport safety including additional antihijacking personnel and devices. It would also have outlawed the imposition of local air travel head taxes.

A veterans' health care bill which would open VA hospitals to nonveterans.

OBITUARIES

Elizabeth A. Clarke Dies At 75

Private funeral for Elizabeth A. Clarke, former Woodacre postmaster, was held yesterday in San Rafael.

Mrs. Clarke, of Railroad Avenue, Woodacre, died yesterday at home following a brief illness. She was 78.

Mrs. Clarke, an early resident of the San Geronimo Valley, lived in Marin for 50 years. She was the first president of the Lagunitas School Parent-Teachers Association.

She was postmaster in Woodacre for 30 years, retiring in the 1950s. She was a native of Chadron, Neb.

She is survived by a daughter, Ellen Clarke Eilert; a sister, Anne Grimm, and a granddaughter, Elizabeth Eilert, all of Woodacre.

Inurnment will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

praised "support and guidance provided by the thousands of Bay Area residents who joined in the long fight for establishment of this recreation area. . . all that now remains if for Congress to appropriate the funds that this law authorizes. . . In the next Congress, I look forward to helping ensure that all the required funds are quickly appropriated."

Others who sponsored the legislation included Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Fifth District; Don H. Clausen, R-First District, and California Sens. Alan Cranston and John V. Tunney, both Democrats.

Hunt For Boggs' Plane Nears End

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) —The leader of the search party looking for House Majority Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., and three others said Friday the efforts to find the missing twin-engine Cessna 310 may be suspended.

But Air Force Maj. Henry Stocker, director of the search, added, "We haven't given up hope of finding it."

The light aircraft carrying Boggs, Alaska Congressman Nick Begich, Begich's aide Russell Brown and pilot Don E. Jonz disappeared Oct. 16 on a campaign flight from Anchorage to Juneau.

Swimoff To Be Staged Tomorrow

Trustees of the Novato Unified School District have accepted a challenge for a swimoff with the city council to raise funds for promotion of the $500,000 swimming pool bond issue on the Nov. 7 general election.

The contest will be from 11 a.m. to noon tomorrow at the city pool at Novato High school.

The council Tuesday challenged board members laps of the pool. The loser must pay according to the number of laps. The rate will be seven cents per lap for the school board as it has seven members and five cents by the council as it has five members.

Arrested In Assault Probe

A Marin City man was arrested last night on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon following a domestic quarrel at home.

Lugine Hall, 48, of 15 Dutton Court, was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $10,000 bail to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

Sheriff's deputies said Dutton struck his wife, Irene, and then threatened her with a gun after she announced she was going shopping.

Missionaries Are Reported Captured

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — At least one Canadian and three American Protestant missionaries are believed to have been captured when Pathet Lao forces took control of the southern Laotian village of Keng Dok, 185 miles southeast of Vientiane, informed sources said today.

The names of the four missionaries were withheld temporarily. Two other missionaries were reported to have escaped the village during the attack Friday night, which came amid intensified Communist military activity throughout Laos.

WALTER YOUNG — MILDRED YOUNG

Funeral for Walter and Mildred Young of Forest Knolls will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Chapel of the Hills Mortuary in San Anselmo.

Young, 61, and his wife, 55, died Thursday night in an auto crash west of Fairfax.

He was a native of Bay City, Mich. She was a native of Everett, Mass. The couple had lived in Forest Knolls for about 10 years.

The family home is at 190 Tamal Road.

Young worked as an office maintenance and protection manager for the state building in Oakland.

Both were members of the Mill Wheelers Square Dance Club and the International Order of Foresters.

Young was a retired Navy chief petty officer.

He is survived by two brothers, Edward and William Young of Detroit; two sisters, Natalie Sagert and Agatha Batzer, also of Detroit, and a stepdaughter, Linda Soltau of Forest Knolls.

She is survived by Mrs. Soltau.

Burial will be private.

MAX POTTER

Funeral for Max A. Potter of Fairfax will be held in Springfield, Mo.

Potter, of 300 Bothin Road, died Thursday in a San Francisco hospital after a lengthy illness.

A native of Springfield, he had lived in California since 1935, and in Fairfax since 1950. He was 56.

Potter was a rate clerk for Western Pacific Railroad for 35 years. A keen horseman, he was for many years a member of the San Francisco Sheriff's Mounted Posse. He was a member of the Bay View Lodge 401, Free and Accepted Masons.

He is survived by his wife, Mary; a son, Gary Potter of Washington, D.C.; two brothers, Steve Potter of Buffalo, Mo., and Bud Potter of Hurley, Mo., and a granddaughter.

The family prefers memorial gifts to the San Francisco Recreation Center for the Handicapped.

GILBERT NELSON

Gilbert David Nelson of Cotati, former Mill Valley resident, died today at a Sonoma hospital, apparently of a heart attack, after collapsing at home.

Nelson, of 8453 La Salle Avenue, moved to Cotati from Petaluma two months ago. Prior to that the family had lived in Mill Valley.

He was a native of Trenton, N.J., and had moved to Marin as a youngster. He was a graduate of Tamalpais High School, Mill Valley, and the College of Marin.

Nelson worked as a ship's clerk with American President Lines.

He was a member of the 938th Material Squadron, a reserve unit at Travis Air Force Base.

Survivors are his wife, Marilyn; three sons, Eric, R., Geoffrey S. and William K.; a jaughter, Angela, and his father, Gilbert Nelson of Mill Valley.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

MARGARET DOWNEY

A Mass of the Resurrection was held today in Novato for Margaret V. Downey, a retired stockbroker.

Miss Downey, 75, died Thursday in a local hospital, where she was taken after she began choking at dinner. Cause of death is pending an autopsy according to Marin County Coroner.

She was born in Oakland and had lived in the Bay Area all her life. Miss Downey lived in San Anselmo for eight years prior to moving to Novato two years ago to make her home with her sisters, Cecile Downey and Mary Downey Regan, of 24 St. John's Court.

Besides her sisters, she is survived by a brother, Lawrence J. Downey of Sebastopol.

Burial was to be in St. Mary's Cemetery in Oakland.

MRS. HARTWELL

Esthelle B. Hartwell of Santa Venetia died yesterday at her home after a sudden illness. She was 91.

A native of Alabama, she had lived in California and Marin County 20 years, residing with her daughter, Dorothy Southern, at 26 Adrian Way. She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Ratcliff, Ark.

Mrs. Hartwell is also survived by another daughter, Carol Hermann of San Diego; two sons, W.D. Hartwell of San Diego and Gordon Hartwell of Point Heueme, Ventura County, and two sisters, Eula Dunna of Alabama and May Windham of Oregon. Other survivors are 14 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Judge Enters Innocent Pleas For Defendant In Beating Case

Tommy Lee Walker, 27, of San Rafael, rearrested a week ago because of bail confusion resulting from his indictment on assult charges, had innocent pleas entered for him in Marin Superior court yesterday.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner entered the pleas to the charges of beating a hitchhiker and a Sausalito policeman after the muscular former convict declined to plead on the advice of his attorney.

Deputy Public Defender Edward L. Briggs Jr. wanted to delay the action until after his motion to dismiss the indicment was heard, but was cut off by the judge when Asst. Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas accused Briggs of grandstanding.

Following the court appearance, Briggs took exception to the reasons for the Oct. 18 grand jury indictment and the resulting warrant of arrest which produced a tense confrontation between Walker and 10 policemen at the Lion's Share in San Anselmo Oct. 20.

"Someone could have been killed easily the way this thing was handled," Briggs said.

Briggs noted the indictment was sought by Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales because a preliminary hearing in the case was delayed from Oct. 17 to Nov. 14, but claimed the district attorney's office had forced the delay by refusing until last week to hand over police reports from the Sept. 28 incident and to set up defense interviews with witnesses.

The deputy public defender also questioned why Walker wasn't given the opportunity to appear voluntarily, a custom he said is usually followed for Marin indictments.

Walker was maced and subdued in the night club by officers who claimed he acted belligerently. A warrant had been issued for his arrest solely so he would have to post higher bail, but Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court cut the bail back down more than 24 hours after the rearrest when Briggs convinced him bail had been properly set in Municipal court.

Walker originally was arrested after he allegedly punched a hitchhicker and beat Sausalito officer Robert Klein when the policeman intervened.

Klein was hospitalized with a concussion, broken nose and cuts.

$20 Taken From Cash Register

A smash-and-grab thief took $20 from the cash register of Garatti's Market, 926 B Street, last night, San Rafael police reported.

A patrolman discovered the market's glass door shattered at 12:45 a.m.

Store owner Lawrence Garatti said the change in the cash register was the only thing missing.

A shipment of genuine handwoven Oriental rugs has been shipped for the U.S. market through bonded warehouse in London. As a result of the recent dock strike in London, the goods did not arrive on time, and those financially responsible for the unpaid shipment have instructed their U.S. agents to dispose of entire shipment at auction.
This shipment, in our opinion, is the finest collection in design, craftsmanship, and color of handmade carpets, rugs, and runners we have ever seen in all our years of selling the finest quality Oriental rugs and carpets.

Excessive Pollution Appeal Made

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — Four Bay Area organizations have appealed to the state Air Resources Board to investigate the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District's system of exempting excessive pollution when caused accidentally.

The state board should suspend the system and write a far tougher regulation, the organizations said in a brief filed with the board by their attorney, Ralph E. Warner of Berkeley.

The four, long critical of the Bay Area district, were the Stop Smog Committee, West Contra Costa Conservation League, North Richmond Citizens Against Unhealthy Air and the Freedom News.

Their long campaign to close what they term loopholes in the district's system has failed to win support from a majority of the district's directors.

The organizations declared in a press statement that the district board's "inaction and staff favoritism to industry has resulted in a deteriorating situation and has contributed to the loss of confidence by the Bay Area public in the smog district."

They urged the state board, parent of the district, to hold hearings in the Bay Area "and look into the situation."

The appeal uaid that up to 4,000 excess emissions are excused a year under the district's so-called "upset and breakdown" regulation. Several hundred of these resulted in violation notices, they said, but were not prosecuted "for no apparent reason." They blamed the district's administrator, D. J. Callaghan, and acting counsel, Robert Anderson, for failing to prosecute the violations.

Stubblebine Will Lead Health Agency

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Mental Hygiene Director Dr. J. M. Stubblebine, a former Marinite, was appointed Friday by Gov. Ronald Reagan to head the new state Department of Health when the agency is activated next July.

Reagan announced that Stubblebine, in the interim, has been given the title of director of the Office of the Department of Health Planning to assure "orderly implementation" of the new department. His successor as director of the Mental Hygiene Department has not been named.

Under a plan proposed by Reagan and approved by the 1970 legislature, the departments of Mental Hygiene, Public Health, and Health Care Services will be merged to form the new department. The move is designed to permit the state to carry out health programs more efficiently and economically.

Stubblebine, a Democrat, was named mental hygiene director by Reagan in 1971. He formerly served as chief of psychiatry at San Francisco General Hospital.

A former Mill Valley resident, Stubblebine once was director of psychiatric services at Ross General Hospital and also has served on the Tamalpais High School District board.

He will be paid $34,125 a year in the new post, the same salary as he received as mental hygiene director.

Two Said In Poor Condition

Two Santa Rosa residents was reported in poor condition today in Community Hospital in Santa Rosa following a one-car accident on Highway 101 just north of San Antonio Road near the Marin-Sonoma line.

Renee Moschner, 25, and Michael Moschner, 28, suffered head injuries, according to a hospital spokesman.

The California Highway Patrol said a car driven by Mrs. Moschner ran off the northbound freeway and turned over.

Find The Tooth For Reimplant

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A leading dentist says there's something you can do if your child knocks out a tooth — find it fast.

Dr. Irving Posnick, outgoing president of the American Society of Dentistry for Children, said the tooth can be reimplanted.

"If you get the child and tooth to the dentist within half an hour, there's a good chance it can be reimplanted," he told reporters at the society meeting Thursday.

"Tell the dentist it's an emergency," added Dr. Roy L. Lindahl, who is succeeding Posnick. "If the dentist is any good at all, he'll get up in the middle of the night and meet you at the office."

MAGAZINE ENVOY

Her Mission Is Home Economics

By JOAN LISETOR

Janet Macy travels around the country under the name of Betty Grayson.

Betty Grayson is a trade name used by the field editor of books published by Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

Mrs. Macy has been Betty Grayson for six weeks and has spent half that time traveling — first spending two weeks on the Southeast coast, and appearing on radio and television shows.

She returned to her other job at the University of Minnesota for two weeks, then packed up again for the current tour on the West Coast.

After stops in Portland and Seattle, she spent the latter part of this week in the Bay Area.

SHE WILL visit 50 major cities, traveling 20 weeks of the year, she said. Her job is to introduce new books and offer home economics tips. She does not see it as promotion, but as a public service.

One of her favorite books is the new "Easy Skillet Meals," which contains tips and recipes for using the skillet to solve meal planning problems. It also has a section of regional American recipes, and foreign recipes are included in the chapter on entertaining.

"It's fun to try recipes from other countries and other regions, like blackeyed peas from the South and Johnnycakes from New England," she said.

The book also contains cost-cutting and calorie-cutting tips.

"An FDA (Food and Drug Administration) study recently showed that half the population has been or is presently involved in dieting," she said, "and 100 million Americans are overweight.

"One of the problems is that we eat a lot of refined sugar. Another is that the average beef consumption per person per year is 115 pounds."

ONE GOOD way to cut calories, she said, is with a very sharp knife.

"A three to four-ounce serving of steak is plenty, but most people tend to serve six to eight ounces," she said.

To save money, shop for price per serving instead of per pound, she said.

"When fish is fileted, you get about four servings per pound, as opposed to a bony cut of beef, which requires one-half to three-quarter pound per person. When you serve boneless or ground beef, you may get back to four servings per pound," she explained.

Round and flank steaks are the best nutritional value when it comes to beef, she said. A good way to learn about meat is to ask the butcher.

"Shoppers shouldn't hesitate to ring the bell when meats are packaged. The butchers are there, and you can learn a lot from them. Ask them how much fat there is in the ground beef. Buy some of each (lean and extra lean). Test it yourself to see how much shrinkage there is."

If you like broiled hamburger rare, buy the leanest, because the shorter cooking time gives the fat less time to drip, she advised.

MRS. MACY'S IDEAS on housekeeping are based more on her running of two households than what she learned as an undergraduate in home economics journalism at University of Nebraska. She has master's degrees in journalism from Kansas State University and in education from South Dakota State University.

She runs two households because her husband is at Iowa State University, working on a PhD in child development. They have a home in Ames, near the university where he is studying, and one in Minneapolis, near the university where she works.

"I've learned to relax and not be too uptight when it comes to housework and entertaining," she said. "It's fun to go all out once in a while, but adding a little water to the soup and inviting an extra guest can be as much fun. What's natural to you is what is most comfortable to others."

There is a happy medium to housework, too, she said.

"There are three ways to make a house look clean. You can do a thorough cleaning. You can dust over the top lightly. Or you can pull the shades," she said.

And when it comes to cooking, her attitude is also relaxed:

"Great cooks make mistakes, too. The difference is they cover them with a good sauce."

Janis Louise Sunderland Is Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Sunderland of Bakersfield are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Janis Louise, to Carlo John Wilcox, son of Mrs. Livia Wilcox and John Wilcox of Novato.

Janis was graduated from East Bakersfield High School and California State University, San Luis Obispo. She is employed at Highland High School in Bakersfield.

Carlo is the brother of Bob and Frank Wilcox of Novato. He was graduated from Novato High School and College of Marin and California State University, San Luis Obispo.

The couple plans to be married Dec. 9 in Bakersfield.

Greenlanders Learn New Dances

By MOLLY MARIN

Is it news that a Greenlander stayed with the Greenmans in Greenbrae? Age Olsen, a native of Greenland, which is a part of Denmark, attends the Hellebjerg School at Juelsminde, Denmark. Traveling with the gymnastic team from Hellebjerg, he spent last weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Greenman and their son, Kirk, in Greenbrae. The 26 Danish athletes and their four adult leaders were in Marin under the sponsorship of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard James of Sausalito. Housing was arranged in private homes in Sausalito, Belvedere, Kentfield, Greenbrae and San Rafael.

After the final performance of the gymnasts and dancers at the College of Marin last Sunday afternoon, a buffet supper was given to honor the Danes at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Clark in San Rafael. The Clark children, Elizabeth, Edmund and Laura, had invited a group of young people to meet the visitors. The Marin families with whom the athletes stayed were also included in the farewell party.

Mr. and Mrs. Mickey McGowan, instructed the group in American square dancing. The Danish boys and girls who had performed Danish folk dances for an audience of 1,000 at the College of Marin gymnasium only a few hours before, quickly learned the intricacies of the Texas Star, Alabama Bounce, and the do-si-do.

A LUNCHEON at the St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco Yacht Club in San Francisco last week was given for Mrs. John Kirkpatrick, who with her husband has moved to Sonoma after many years in San Anselmo. Hostesses for the event, which included many of Mary Kirkpatrick's Marin friends, were Mrs. Fred Herrington of Ross and Miss Elsa Korbel of San Rafael.

THE 48TH wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cooper of Greenbrae will be celebrated at a family dinner tonight hosted by their four daughters at the Windjammer Restaurant in Tiburon. Giving the party are Mrs. Paula Harris of Mill Valley, Mrs. Susan Gillespie of San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. James Mannheimer of Castro Valley and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Farber of Fresno. Twenty-four guests will attend.

The Coopers were married in Seattle, Wash., Oct. 28, 1924. They have been residents of the Bay Area for 35 years, and have lived in Marin County for the past 13 years.

BACK IN Mill Valley after a six-week vacation in Europe are Mrs. Dale Corliss and her daughter, Hilary, a junior at Tamalpais High School. They visited Mr. and Mrs. Jan Novak, former Mill Valley residents, who now live in a suburb of Lisbon, Portugal. Particularly enjoyable to them was a tour of the Algarve province of Portugal, where they went to the village of Sagres, the southernmost point in Europe. There they visited the famed Portuguese School of Navigation started by Prince Henry the Navigator in the 16th Century. Sagres was the point of departure for early Portuguese explorers.

Mrs. Corliss and Hilary also traveled in Spain and went to Munich to see the Olympic village. In Austria they saw the first snow of the season, which they found spectacular as a white background for the bright autumn colors on the trees.

AFTER 30 years as Mill Valley residents, Mr. and Mrs. Blyth Adams are planning to move to Ashland, Ore. They will remain in their Mill Valley home until the holidays. They have one son, Russell Adams of Mill Valley and a daughter, Heidi Adams of San Rafael. Mrs. Adams is a member of the Outdoor Art Club and Mr. Adams belongs to the Elks Lodge. Mr. and Mrs. Adams are the proprietors of the Corner Cupboard, a gourmet gift shop in Mill Valley.

SEVERAL MARINITES were prominent in the black tie birthday party for Avery Brundage given at the World Trade Club in San Francisco last Saturday night by Mayor and Mrs. Joseph Alioto and the Asian Art Commission.

George F. Jewett Jr. of Ross presented the 85-year-old Brundage, renowned Asian art collector, with the gift, a bronze sculpture of an Olympic runner by Santa Fe sculptor Malcolm Alexander, in behalf of the commission.

Attending the dinner were the Jewetts of Ross (he is vice chairman of the Asian Art Commission), Dr. and Mrs. S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Mueller III of Belvedere and Yvon d'Argence of Mill Valley, chief curator of the Center of Asian Art and Culture which includes the Brundage collection.

Job Status Of Women 'Downhill'

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — The status of women in employment has degenerated during the past decade, the past president of the Interstate Association of Commissions on the Status of Women says.

Dr. Kathryn Clarenbach of Wisconsin told the Interstate Conference of Employment Security Agencies that between 1968 and 1971 women increased their share of managerial and professional-technical jobs by less than two per cent.

Dr. Clarenbach told the delegates from state agencies and private industry that women now make up about 38 per cent of the labor force in the United States but still fill about 75 per cent of the clerical jobs and only 14 per cent of managerial positions.

She said unemployment rates in all groups and races are higher for women than men.

Dr. Clarenbach also said the income gap between men and women is widening. "Today the average female worker earns 59 per cent of what the average male workers earns while 15 years ago it was 64 per cent," she said.

The U.S. is the only industrialized nation without maternity leave benefits, she added, and pregnancy in most cases is "no more voluntary than a broken leg from skiing. But the broken leg merits disability benefits."

NEW YORK FASHIONS

Spring's Soft Look Can Benefit Many

By ANN HENCKEN

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether a woman is plump or skinny, there is something to be gained from the softer spring styles.

Some designers are trying to coax women out of that strict blazer and pleated skirt sportswear image. The look still is tailored, but there is a gentling, a narrowing, an increased fluidity going on.

Shirt tops and cardigan jackets can cover bulging hips. The smaller pleats in skirts can flesh out thin figures.

AT THE Molly Parnis Boutique spring collection showing Monday, designer Morty Sussman brought out a green, two-piece ensemble for evening.

"We've had it with the blazer and pleated skirt," said Sussman.

The top is a shirt, instead of a blazer. The skirt is accordion-pleated and full, instead of wide, stitched pleats.

"It's still a tailored look. Women don't want to get too fussy at night. There is still the shirt on top," said Sussman whose collection is priced $90 to $250.

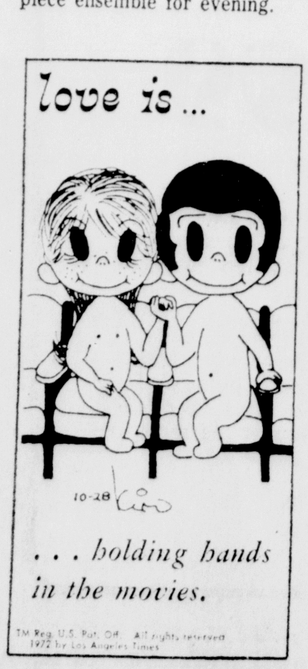

The shirt can double as a jacket, if a woman puts a sleeveless turtleneck sweater under it, he suggested.

FOR DAY, Sussman offered a raft of shirt dresses. His newest neckline is a deep V-shape with a soft rolled trim.

"I love that neckline. It's flattering. It will make a woman look softer and taller," he said.

It's even softer, worn with ropes of pearls, which are big this year for dresses, and suits with the cardigan jacket.

The point of the collection was to show easy, packable clothes, and the fabrics are soft cottons, wool jerseys and matte jerseys.

To Honor Society

Rachel B. Hooper of Ross, a senior at Yale University, has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa at the New Haven, Conn., university. Rachel, an English literature major, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger F. Hooper of Ross.

NEW YORK showings for spring emphasize the softer look. Here is George Halley's version of the shirtdress, given an elegance with long flowing skirt and soft long sleeves. It is styled in candy-striped satin organza with top bordered hemline and belted waist.

Village Will Be Home To Hall Of Fame

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — This Finger Lakes village, site of the first women's Rights Convention in 1848, will soon be home to a national women's hall of fame.

A National Honors Committee of 25 women and men has been mulling over a list of 30 prominent American women of the past and present who have been nominated for enshrinement.

Plans are to keep the identities of the honored women a secret until the Hall of Fame is opened officialy.

The hall will be in a campus building at Eisenhower College, a liberal arts school in Seneca Falls.

The corporation hopes eventually to construct its own building on land the college already has agreed to donate, Mrs. Bantuvanis said, and aid from foundations and individuals is being sought.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Martin, The Athletic Underachiever, Draws Sympathetic Response

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

"Martin" the athletic "underachiever" has lots of company. There's no greater torture than P.E. (physical education) for kids who don't measure up.

Here's how it was in my high school gym classes: We would work on a certain exercise or game for three weeks, then be expected to compete in a test with the girls who had made the team. Naturally we awkward or slow ones were laughed at. The teachers had no time for those who really needed help — they were too busy grooming team members for further glories.

After the tests, if you complained about the grade, you were again compared to "super-person," and next quarter your grade dropped again because you weren't "cooperative."

Come on, P.E. teachers, start helping those who can't, instead of those who can (without your help). And don't say it's the effort, not the grade that counts, because all colleges know is that you have a 2.8 average rather than a 3.0. A bad gym and health-class grade could get you turned down. — BEEN THERE

RAP:

I believe that P.E. should not be graded, and young people should not be required to compete unless they wish, but rather enjoy physical exercise at their own speed, under no pressures. Most of us enjoy some kind of sport if we don't feel "compared" to more successful achievers. Let's bring P.E. back to recreation level again and forget the Olympics syndrome. — TOM

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I am writing to express concern for Martin — concern that hopefully could result in consideration for others to follow him. I was ridiculed in grade school, high school and college for my lack of athletic ability. Never was any attempt made to analyze my problem, and every gym teacher I had was quick to show his disgust with me and others in similar circumstances.

With the advent of World War II, I received ridicule in basic training, but did all that was required of me. In front line combat I performed honorably and received a Purple Heart, but was kept constantly aware of my less than normal athletic prowess.

Underachievement may tend toward excess achievement elsewhere. For example, today I am a professor and department chairman at a university. I hold PhD, and CPA, have a national reputation in my profession, and have been published in major journals. Perhaps my disillusionment with athletics influenced me to excel elsewhere. If so, this may be good, but hardly excuses gym teachers who show disrespect to those who do not excel. — STILL NOT ATHLETIC

RAP:

With Martin's attitude (calling us "ignorant gym teachers"), it's no wonder he doesn't get the special attention he desires. He is apparently tuned out to the many programs the physical education staff at most schools offers to all students. There is something for everyone, no matter what his ability.

I am a P.E. teacher, and like many of my colleagues, I will go overboard to help those who help themselves. If Martin sincerely asks for assistance, his teacher will probably set up a development program designed especially for him. Why doesn't he try jogging, bicycling, swimming, or exercising to help develop him physically? Then practice his skills in the school's intramural program?

If he can find no solution with the help that is most certainly available to him, then maybe his problem isn't underachieving in athletic ability but rather overestimating his goals. — P.E. TEACHER

RAP:

Since P.E. is a required subject, I think it should be structured so that students are grouped by their ability. As it is now, underachievers like me are stuck in the same classes as the Olympic winners of the future. And you're put down a lot farther for lack of brawn than lack of brains. — HUMILIATED

HELEN AND SUE:

I was laughed at and mocked in gym, but I tried to ignore it. I asked my P.E. teacher for help and got it. What helped most of all was that I dicovered those who laugh meanest aren't the best athletes either. Many P.E. teachers are understanding. Don't consider them "the enemy," and never stop trying, Martin. — EVELYN

Finish Coat Hems In Same Fashion As In Suit Patterns

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

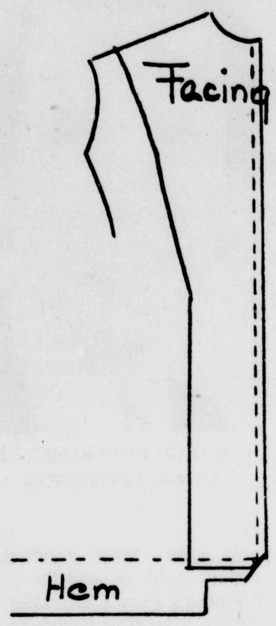

DEAR EUNICE,

Can we finish the hem at the facing the same for coats that we do for suits? It seems that when it is possible to cut the excess fabric away, the front edges will lay much smoother.
MRS. G. R.

DEAR MRS. G. R.,

Yes, I strongly recommend finishing the hem at the front facings the way we do on suits, for your coats also. However, it is not advisable for children's coats because there is a chance you will be changing the hemline as they need to be lengthened. If you cut the facing away from the hem, you cannot lengthen the garment.

Trim your facing to about one-quarter-inch below the hemline. The coat fabric itself is trimmed slightly longer. Begin trimming the coat fabric itself 1 inch past the width of the facing (within the facing) so the hem will extend into the facing and the cut edge will not show at the point where the facing ends.

MRS. MARVIN Kabachnick is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"With the variety of sizes of sewing machine needles that we all use for various weights of fabrics, I seem to have trouble remembering what size needle I have used once I have left the machine. To avoid removing the needle to read the number on it, I have used a magic marker to put the number on a small piece of fabric I leave under the presser foot. I have a separate cloth for each numbered needle, they can be found instantly."

DEAR EUNICE,

I am making a dress out of the shiny, sleek, panne velvet. The kind I am using is actually a knitted fabric. I am confused about the direction of this velvet since it looks so much nicer if I cut it with the grain.
MRS. S.N.T.

DEAR MRS. S.N.T.,

You were wise to hesitate and not cut your panne velvet the same direction you would use for ordinary velvets. Whether the backing is knit or a cotton or rayon back is not important. This kind of smooth, panne velvet must always be cut with the nap running down. In other words, hold the velvet up to your body and as you smooth your hand from the shoulder down to the hem, it would be the smooth side of the velvet. This is just one more napped fabric that needs its own set of rules.

For your own free, billfold-size, fabric conversion chart, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

DEAR EUNICE,

When sewing with leathers and vinyls, you have always said not to pin them together when stitching the seams because of the permanent marks the pins will leave. What is the best way to keep the two layers together to prevent slipping?
MRS. S.S.T.

DEAR MRS. S.S.T.,

There is a marvelous new product called simple tape that works beautifully. This tape comes on a small roll and is about ⅛-inch wide. It has a double adhesive.

Place the strip of tape just short of your seamline, on the seam allowance, on right side of leather, vinyl or whatever. Pull the paper backing off that covers the tape and place the second layer of your garment over it and finger press in place.

This wonderful tape will hold the two layers of fabric together and prevent slipping while stitching. Remember, you will never be stitching through the tape itself. After seams have been stitched, pull off the tape from both seam allowances.

John Merrill Grosvenor, Cathy Rose Costa Wed

Cathy Rose Costa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Costa of San Rafael, was married to John Merrill Grosvenor of Hamilton Air Force Base at Chapel One at Hamilton on Oct. 21.

Mrs. Joanne Laddy of Corte Madera was matron of honor for the bride. Robert Decubellius of Novato was best man, and ushers were Anthony Costa of San Rafael, the bride's brother, and Brian Smith of Hamilton.

A reception was held at the Noncommissioned Officers' Club at Hamilton. The couple is on a wedding trip to Seattle, Wash., and Vancouver, B. C. They will live in San Rafael.

The bride graduated from Terra Linda High School and Heald's Business College. She is employed by Hartford Insurance Group in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Grosvenor of Seattle are the bridegroom's parents. He attended Cleveland High School and is with the security police at Hamilton.

The Quiet Mood

For the boys and young men, fashion's quiet mood now taking hold will grow stronger by spring. That is the report from the Boys' and Young Men's Apparel Manufacturers Association.

Back In Fashion

Gloves really are back in the fashion picture for women — and not just to keep the hands warm.

There Are Sexist Laws In Israel

In Israel, where a 74-year-old grandmother heads the state and women are drafted into the army, there are sexist laws, according to Marcia Freedman, the 33-year-old American born leader of Israel's Women for a Free Society.

The Rabbinate, which has last word in all matters concerning a woman's marital status, and the Labor Ministry confirm that:

Women and men have different pay scales.

Housewives are ineligible for social security.

A married woman's possessions, and the woman herself, are the property of her husband.

Only husbands can ask for a divorce.

A dead man's brother must give the widow official permission to remarry. If the brother is not old enough to permit remarriage, she must wait until he attains his majority.

Upholstered Furniture Needs Dusting, Too

Upholstered furniture gets just as dusty as a table top, only you don't see the dust.

Try to remember it's there every time you dust other furniture. Run a cleaning tool from the vacuum cleaner over the upholstered furniture every time you "dust" other things.

Lots Of Madras

In fabrics for boys and young men in the spring the stars will be madras, seersucker, flannel, gingham checks. Patterns will be calmer, more orderly, simpler.

Halloween Got Start In Ireland

The Halloween customs of trick-or-treating and carving Jack-o'-lanterns both originated in Ireland.

Trick-or-treat can be traced back to an early Irish law that allowed farmers to solicit food for poor villagers at Halloween. Willing givers were promised a treat in the future. Hard-hearted or uncharitable folk were forced to perform some undignified trick in public, according to researchers.

Jack-o'-lanterns are named after a certain miserly and bibulous Irishman called Jack. When Jack died he couldn't enter Heaven because of his bad behavior on earth. So he bluffed his way into Hell. But on Halloween night the devil discovered he had been tricked. He threw Jack out angrily, but let him take a hollowed-out pumpkin he was eating and put a glowing coal inside for illumination.

Since then, the myth goes, Jack has wandered the earth with his lantern, appearing to human eyes only at Halloween.

Include Snacks

If the family enjoys snacks, plan to include them in your weekly menu. Homemade snacks are less expensive than ready-made ones. They may be more nutritious as well. Fruit or milk drinks, oatmeal cookies and raisins are examples of wholesome snacks.

ON THE AGENDA

Halloween Carnivals Will Be On Frontline On Tuesday

Halloween carnivals are being held at many Marin schools Tuesday under the sponsorship of the Parent-Teacher Association.

The Lagunitas School P-TA will hold a carnival for the children Tuesday at the San Geronimo School playground, beginning at noon with a costume parade. Game booths, cider, hot dogs and other appropriate Halloween refreshments will be featured until the 3:30 p.m. closing time. Mmes. Roger Machin and William White are the P-TA committee chairmen.

YOUNGSTERS AT the Larkspur-Corte Madera School will attend the annual carnival at school grounds from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday. Sponsored by the Larkspur-Corte Madera Parent-Teacher Association, the Halloween festivities will open with a costume parade. Game booths will award every youngster a prize.

The Larkspur Fire Department will also attend the event, according to the chairman, vice principal Al Kerr.

The evening will also feature a haunted house and the Halloween refreshments.

COLEMAN SCHOOL Parent-Teacher Association is sponsoring the school's Halloween family festival and parade Tuesday.

Students, their brothers and sisters, parents and teachers will march from the school to Dominican College and back to the school, where refreshments will be served at 1:30 p.m.

WITCHES, GHOSTS and goblins will visit the children in the Pediatrics Department at Marin General Hospital at 11 a.m. Tuesday to help them celebrate Halloween.

The party is sponsored yearly by the Jack and Jill Branch of Marin General Hospital Volunteers and will include decorations, refreshments and entertainment. Mmes. Patrick Conway of San Rafael and Thomas Elliott of Tiburon are supervising the party.

THE NOVATO Branch, Needlework Guild of America, will hold its annual ingathering at Casa Nova, 35 Carmel Drive, Novato at 1 p.m., Wednesday, announced president, Mrs. Richard Cole.

About 900 items have been made this year to distribute to the Red Cross, St. Vincent's School for Boys, and Sonoma State Hospital. Layettes, knit caps, slippers, crib blankets, lap robes and small children's clothing will be distributed at the public tea.

KAPPA PSI Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will hostess a "sing in" rush party at 1 p.m. Monday at the home of the chapter vice president, Mrs. Lyle Vincent of Novato. Members and their guests have been requested to come in a costume representing a song title. Old favorite songs will be sung followed by games.

Egyptians Had A Sweet Tooth

No one knows just when man first delighted his sweet tooth with a piece of candy. But early Egyptian drawings of the art of candy making indicate it was over 4,000 years ago.

Honey was the first sweetener, and the confections were flavored with various spices. Eventually, refined sugar became widely used, and candy-making flourished.

And flourish it still does, especially among the younger set.

Search Out The Unusual

When searching for gifts, look for something unusual, attractive and functional. A good expression of sentiment is to create the gift yourself.

Treat chess-playing friends to equipment that is novel and practical. From pawn to king the pieces can be made with nuts and bolts available at any hardward store. Choose nuts and bolts carefully to be creative and original; add washers and thread various shapes together.

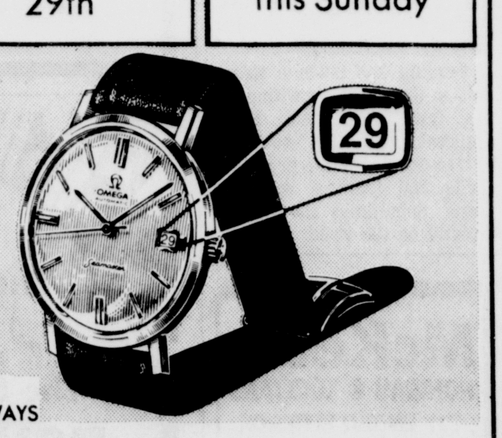

The board is readily made by painting or covering with vinyl, cloth or metallic tape a one-half inch thick, 16-inch square, piece of plywood.

RAINDROP — An ancient art form from the 13th Century is revived in the colorful hanging banners of Penny Zacharin, one of a number of artists and artisans represented at the Plaza in San Anselmo until Dec. 1.

ART REVIEW

The Plaza In San Anselmo Is Total Object of Art

By ADA GARFINKEL

If art is where you fine it, then the recently reconstructed old building at 21 Mariposa Street, San Anselmo, is a total art object.

Known as the Plaza, the building exposes its vast bare walls to the handiwork of a variety of local artists and artisans.

Also, as a spurt to initiate early recognition, monthly competitions are featured with prizes awarded in three different age groups. Starting with ages 2 to 6 years, they continue to 7 to 11 and 12 to 15 years. Some of the work is amazingly mature — for example, the handsome lusterware vases by Michael Leach and the soapstone sculpture by John Carter, two award winners in the present competition.

Because Pat Barbara, director of the Plaza, is an antique buff, there is an artful blending of the old and the new. Thus, while Gregory Boop's hard-edge oil paintings of faceted cars, animals, and foliage hang above eye level, a rare and rearing hand-carved Dentzel carousel horse prances beside the centrally located gazebo with its lattice work in natural unpainted wood.

As other antiques begin to assume a location role — a 1930 Rolls Royce; an old buggy, circa 1830; a family sleigh whose metal forging predates it to the late 1700's — they begin to relate to other current exhibits.

For example, there are artist Penny Zacharin's colorful banners which are contemporary in their use of receding swaths of color and zig-zag stitchery, but are actually a restored art form.

According to Miss Zacharin: "Banners were prevalent in the 13th Century; they hung free like the tapestries of the Middle Ages". Her "Pilgrimage" is a religious procession, and "Tunnel," with its winding gray road and snow-capped, mushroom-like trees, is childhood revisited.

Another display, the candid photos of children by Georgia Longini, are arrested moments of air-filled, sun-lit presence and unstudied poses — a child in reverie, one in tears, another sucking a thumb and a toddler enthralled by a dandelion fluff.

Some of the paintings are mediocre and others are of the "slick" variety. However, the handsome and dramatic drawings and paintings by David Aurbach are striking, particularly his "St. David."

Weaving has taken a strong hold in the art world within the past few years. Donna Bell's unusual weavings combine driftwood, weeds, grasses, shells and features with her yarns. Sometimes she weaves directly on the wood.

In one, the soft, lacy network of white looks like seafoam. Another with thick brown strands of yarn and speckled feathers against the smooth driftwood becomes a primative, totemic mask.

The Paza also houses a boutique where very elegant decoupage (another restored art) is lovingly crafted. And a quiet restaurant nook provides a restful area and an opportunity to observe the handsome macrame works of Kathe Hill and Edward Willis which grace its walls.

The present exhibit will continue to Dec. 1. The Plaza is open Tuesday through Sunday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Graffiti Artists In For Trouble

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mayor John V. Lindsay has signed into law bills to sentence graffiti artists up to three months in jail and make them clean up their work.

In the signing ceremony Friday, he called graffiti, which has reached epidemic proportions in city subways, "offensive and a visual insult." Lindsay called on paint can manufacturers to regulate sales of their products and threatened to propose legislation barring sales to persons under 18.

YOUNGEST NIXON AIDE

On Campaign Trail for His Boss

By JAY GOODWIN

Newspaper editors aren't likely to play "Hail to the Chief" when 23-year-old C. Gregg Petersmeyer shows up.

The Bronxville, N.Y., native may be an honors graduate from Harvard and the youngest staff assistant in the White House, but he's hardly a newsmaker. So, after a few months on the campaign trail he has learned not to expect a red carpet welcome when he stops by to pitch for President Nixon's reelection.

He's touricg newspapers and radio stations across the country as a member of the president's surrogate campaign.

In the last few months, he says he's learned one thing about the press: some reporters don't like Nixon — and their stories show it.

There was the interview he had a month ago at the St. Louis Post Dispatch. He remembers telling the reporter that he planned to work in the White House for another year in order to earn enough money to study in England the following year.

C. GREGG PETERSMEYER
Expects no red carpet

He didn't think about that remark until he read the Post Dispatch's story a day later.

After a lengthy discussion of the Watergate scandal, the article concluded with the sentence, "Petersmeyer plans to go to school in England if he can make enough money in the next few months."

He chuckled as he recalled that final sentence. "Oh come on. They implied that I wanted to embezzle enough money in three months to fly across the Atlantic and go to school for a year."

"If I read that story, I'd say to myself, 'Jesus,' that whole White House group is corrupt and that Petersmeyer guy is a real self-seeking young man.' "

Or there was the time he was interviewed in Rochester, N.Y., by a reporter who he said was a McGovern supporter.

"I was wearing a sport coat and a blue tie. Actually, the tie might have been 90 per cent blue, nine per cent red with one tiny white thread running through it somewhere."

The interview covered a wide range of topics, but, Petersmeyer said, it began with: "Clad in a red, white and blue tie. . ."

Petersmeyer is convinced that some reporters are unable to leave their biases out of stories about the presidential election. The distortions used to agitate him, but no longer.

"I look back on these distortions in an amused frame of mind because most of the stories have been straight down the line."

At first, he said, he didn't think that any stories had been slanted in his favor by pro-Nixon reporters. But then, when he recalled the appearance of such terms as "handsome, intelligent and articulate," in articles about him, he grinned and admitted there may have been some bias in the stories.

He works as an assistant to H. R. Haldeman, White House chief of staff. Before he started working full time, he put in four summers with Haldeman and Nixon's appointment secretary, Dwight Chapin.

While on the road, Petersmeyer is his own man. He can say what he wants, how he wants, with no limitations imposed by Haldeman.

"If I was putting my foot in my mouth all over the country, Haldeman would say, 'Gregg, you had better get back to a low-profile job.' But I don't think I've made any serious blunders yet that I'm sorry about."

He's recently carried his message to Redding and Chico and will soon be heading for Fresno and Bakersfield. Then, it's back to the Boston area for some speeches on college campuses.

He hasn't been back in Washington since his boss was linked in some newspaper accounts with the Watergate affair, but has talked with some of Haldeman's assistants by phone.

"There were a few secretaries who felt perversely elevated because the people they were working for suddenly came into the news. But the accusation was not the kind of cataclysmic, traumatic experience for our office that people might expect."

'Mame' Role To Lucille Ball

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedienne Lucille Ball, after a four-year absence from movies, is returning as the star of the musical "Mame."

Warner Bros. Studios said Thursday it will start shooting the movie in January with Miss Ball portraying the flamboyant "Auntie Mame," a role created in the nonmusical version by Rosalind Russell in the 1960s.

The film will be produced by Robert Fryer and James Cresson and directed by Gene Saks from a screenplay by Paul Zindel.

Miss Ball's last movie was "Yours, Mine and Ours" in 1968.

Money Thief Gets Jail Time

Ray Herbert Barnes III, 21, of Oakland, has received 30 days in jail and one year of probation for stealing $69 from a Fairfax church.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, in imposing sentence, declared the felony burglary charge a misdemeanor in accordance with a plea bargain.

Barnes was arrested last December, two months after the burglary at Christ the Victor Lutheran Church.

ISN'T GOOD SERVICE WONDERFUL?

Our service is "late" but nice. Marin commuters have found it very convenient that our service department is now open till 7 pm. Monday thru Friday. In most cases we can give your VW a maintenance or tune-up by 7 pm if you come in by 5 pm. Call our private service line 388-5230 and give us a vote for "late" service.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

An Ordinary False Card Takes Declarer By Storm

Some of the best bridge swindles depend on very simple plays. When today's hand was played in a national tournament some years ago, an ordinary false card won all the marbles.

TAKES IN DUMMY

West opened the king of diamonds, and dummy's ace won. Declarer led a club to the ace, and West dropped the jack of clubs on this trick.

There was nothing complicated about this play. It cost nothing since West still had the ten of clubs. This is the sort of false card that anybody can execute, whether he is an expert or a beginner.

BEAUTY OF IT

The beauty of it was that South couldn't be sure whether the play was honest or a false card. If it was honest, South would have to finesse with the nine of clubs to bring the rest of the clubs in without loss.

Before making up his mind, South cashed the ace and king of spades. East discarded a diamond on the second spade and South began to count. Evidently, West had started with five spades. It was reasonable to assume that West had started with about five of the missing ten diamonds. He could easily have two hearts and only one club.

HONEST PLAY?

In short, it began to appear that the jack of clubs was a perfectly honest play.

Hence South led a heart to dummy's ace and finessed with the nine of clubs. West pounced on this trick with the ten of clubs and ran the rest of the diamonds, earning a top score.

West was too polite to laugh at the success of his maneuver, but he still smiles whenever he sees the unfortunate South player.

DAILY QUESTION

♠ - A K 9
♥ - K 9 5
♣ - A K Q 9 5 3
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club.

The hand is not quite strong enough for an opening, forcing bid. If your long suit were a major you would open with a forcing two-bid in that suit.

Murder Suspect In Army Jail

HEIDELBERG, Germany (UPI)—The U.S. Army Friday jailed a triple-slaying suspect who evaded European police for three weeks and surrendered where no one sought him, in Lebanon.

The suspect, Sgt. Thomas de Gregorio, was returned to Army custody in Germany yesterday aboard a military aircraft from Lebanon, the Army said at its European headquarters in Heidelberg.

He is being held in the Manheim stockade, about 12 miles from Heidelberg, pending further investigation of his case, the Army said.

COMPLETION DUE — Resembling an inverted ice cream cone, Rio De Janeiro's 20-story cathedral nears its completion date. It will be able to hold 40,000 persons standing or, with chairs installed, 6,800 worshipers.

Deere Lecture Series Set

The second annual Derward W. Deere Lectureship will be held at Mill Valley's Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary Nov. 7 to 10 with Dr. Reginald H. Fuller, professor of New Testament at Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Alexandria, Va., as guest lecturer.

The four-day series of lectures, founded in honor of the late Dr. Derward W. Deere, for 18 years a professor of Old Testament at Golden Gate Seminary, will begin at 9:50 a.m. each day in John A. Broadus Hall Chapel on the campus at Strawberry Point.

Fuller, formerly Baldwin Professor of Sacred Literature at Union Theological Seminary, New York, and a recognized New Testament theologian in Europe and the United States, will present four lectures on the theme, "Jesus: Who Do You Think You Are?"

The lecture on Tuesday, Nov. 7, will be titled "Revolutionary." Wednesday's lecture title will be "Man for Others?" On Thursday, Fuller will speak on "Jesus — Married Man?" The Friday lecture will be titled "Christ, the Wisdom of God."

The 1972 Deere lecturer graduated with first-class honors in the classics and theology from Cambridge University in England, where he earned a master of arts degree. Fuller was awarded doctor of sacred theology degrees from General Theological Seminary, New York, in 1960 and from Philadelphia Divinity School in 1962.

Ordained as a deacon in the Church of England in 1940, Fuller became a priest in 1941 and was a curate 10 years. A former lecturer in theology at Queen's College in Birmingham, England, Fuller became professor of theology at Saint David's College, Lampeter, Wales, and was examining chaplain to the Bishop of Monmouth from 1950-1955.

He came to the U.S. in 1955, where he was named professor of New Testament literature and languages at Seabury-Western Theological Seminary in Evanston, Ill. Fuller joined the faculty of Union Seminary, New York, in 1966, where he remained until recently becoming a faculty member at the Protestant Episcopal Seminary.

Fuller has been a canon theologian of British Honduras and a member of the study commission of the World Council of Churches. He has been a member of the Episcopal-Lutheran Conversations and Anglican-Lutheran Conversations. He is a member of Studiorum Novi Testamenti Societas (society of New Testament scholars), the Chicago Society of Biblical Research and the Society of Biblical Research.

He has authored at least eight books, two of which are used as texts at Golden Gate Seminary: "Foundations of New Testament Christology," 1965, and "The New Testament in Current Study, 1962."

Another of his well-known books is "A Critical Introduction to the New Testament," 1966.

Fuller has co-authored three books and contributed to or translated at least 10 other major theological works.

Huge Cathedral At Rio Finally Nears Finish

By CHARLES E. PADILLA

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—A modernistic cathedral that will hold 40,000 persons and is so huge it has a posted speed limit inside it is nearing completion in Rio.

After eight years of work, the 20-story, cone-shaped cathedral is scheduled to be finished this December. It is located in the heart of downtown Rio.

"When completed, Rio can be proud that it will have the church with the most internal space in the world," the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Ivo Calliari, Rio archidocese administrator and project spokesman, said.

"In grandeur, it will be second only to St. Peter's basilica in Rome."

The prelate said the cathedral will hold up to 40,000 persons standing. That is about the entire population of a city the size of Santa Fe, N.M.

The first religious ceremony in the massive, concrete structure, which looks like an upside down ice cream cone with the tip chopped off, will be a midnight Mass next Christmas Eve. But no official inauguration date has yet been set.

Cost of the imposing structure thus far has been about $1.3 million, all of which came from archdiocese funds and projects, the prelate said. Work on it began in 1964.

Constructed entirely of massive, gray concrete slabs, the spacious cathedral will have an inside diameter almost equal to the length of a football field—96 yards. There will be no columns inside to obstruct the view of the altar, which will be built on a raised podium in the center.

A visit to the cathedral revealed a large sign at one of the three huge entrances which said "speed limit 10 kilometers" (6 miles per hour). Parked inside were nearly 100 workmen's cars and a few large trucks. Twenty stories above a giant crane swung material and concrete to the workers.

Total internal space will be 8,000 square yards and from top to bottom, the structure will measure 215 feet.

Three entrances, each 60 feet wide, will allow 40,000 people to exit from the cathedral in five minutes, Msgr. Calliari said.

The cathedral will have four stained glass windows—one on each side of the cone—and each will have an area of almost 1,000 square yards, he said.

Below the ground floor, the archidocese plans to install a 2,600 square yard museum of Brazilian religious relics. There will also be an archdiocese bank in the basement.

'Witnessing Weekend' To End Sunday

The Loma Verde congregation of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 375 Calle Arboleda, is undergoing a three-day county-wide "Witnessing Weekend," which ends tomorrow.

Priesthood members from all over California are participating in prayer, testimony services and home visits.

An introductory supper was held at the church last night.

Consummating the day of witnessing will be a ravioli feed and hootenanny at the church at 6 p.m. Tomorrow's activities will include a breakfast at the church at 8 a.m., a special "Witness for Christ" program at 11 a.m. and a potluck lunch.

Among those involved in the service will be Elders Robert Connell and David Seagraves of Sunnyvale, Elder Mel Holden of San Francisco, Priest James Hale of Liveoak, Priest Walter Scott of Marysville, Priest Lynn Wixom of Oroville, Deacon Richard Miller of San Diego, Elder Leon Myers of Petaluma, and Priests Al Fraser and Joseph Williams of Novato.

The public is invited to all dinners and activities.

Member Of Christian Science Unit To Talk

What is the significance of spiritual healing in today's world?

James Spencer, C.S.B., of Detroit, Mich., will discuss this question Monday in a lecture in Mill Valley.

Spencer challenges the view that physical healing through wholly spiritual means is mere faith healing.

"Spiritually scientific prayer," he said, "advances beyond blind faith. It demonstrates the spiritually scientific understanding Jesus taught and exemplified. This understanding is the cultivated ability to see beyond the superficial, to look through outward appearances to reality."

Spencer is on tour as a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship. He will speak in the Church Edifice, 279 Camino Alto, Mill Valley, at 8 p.m., under the sponsorship of First Church of Christ, Scientist.

There is a divine basis for being saved and healed — healed of fear, wrongdoing, ignorance — all that would separate or alienate one from God, Spencer believes.

Referring to Christ Jesus as "the most radically spiritual healer the world has ever known," Spencer says:

"He healed mental illness, blood disorders, blindness and deafness, paralysis, congenital lameness, and the dread leprosy . . . Jesus explained his healing method many times. But he put it most simply in these words, 'Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free' (John 8:32). Christian Science practice, is exactly that — knowing the truth."

During the Korean War, Spencer served as a lieutenant in the Marine Corps. He has also served as a chaplain in the U.S. Army and as a Christian Science minister for the armed servces.

Since 1953, he has been active in the public practice of Christian Science healing and became a teacher of Christian Science in 1971.

Faith Lutheran 'Birthday' Fete

Tomorrow at its 10 a.m. service of worship, Faith Lutheran Church, 355 Los Ranchitos Road, Terra Linda, will celebrate and observe its 16th anniversary of organization as a Christian community.

On this combined Reformation Sunday and anniversary date, guest speaker at the worship will be Daphne Greene of Ross. Mrs. Greene in 1970 was elected chairman of the board of trustees of the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley, one of only two women in the U.S. to head a major theological institution.

Since her election, Mrs. Greene has worked full-time at her job, heading one of the most unique ecumenical unions of theological education in the nation.

"On this occasion," said Pastor B. W. Bellinger, "of Faith's 16th anniversary and of the Protestant celebration of Reformation Sunday, Daphne Greene, an active Roman Catholic, will add both an ecumenical and reforming spirit to our community life and worship."

The schedule for Sunday's celebration will cover the entire morning: 10 a.m. to 11 a.m., Sunday worship and church school classes; 11 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., discussion and fellowship with Mrs. Greene with extended care for children; 11:45 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., family luncheon for those remaining through the morning's celebration.

The public is invited to attend and participate in all events.

Tonight, members and friends of the congregation will be celebrating with an anniversary dinner in San Francisco's Chinatown. Dinner will begin at 6 p.m. at Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit, 1725 Washington Street, San Francisco.

Baha'is To Host Annual Convention

The Baha'is of Marin will be host tomorrow to the annual Baha'i district convention to be held in Alexander Hall at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Some 200 representatives from the nine Northern California coastal counties comprising the district are expected to attend.

Baha'is from a dozen Marin communities will be present.

The primary purpose of the convention will be to elect the delegate who will represent the district at the annual national convention to be held in Wilmette, Ill., May 17 to 20, 1973.

Another purpose will be to provide an opportunity for an exchange of views on the affairs of the Baha'i faith in the district.

Next year will mark the end of the nine-year teaching plan to expand the Baha'i faith worldwide. The plan is expected to double the number of Baha'i local assemblies, groups and localities around the world.

The Baha'i faith has more than tripled its number of assemblies in the U.S. during the past decade and currently has 519 such assemblies.

AT SEMINARY — Dr. Paul Winston Turner, a Southern Baptist minister, is the new professor of ministry and director of professional training at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry. A major function of the newly created dual-role post involves overseeing projects in the ministry and progress of students in the new doctorial program.

More-Representative Catholic Government Urged By Bishops

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — More representative government of the Roman Catholic Church in this country, including participation of laity and clergy in choosing bishops, is recommended by a U.S. bishops' study committee.

Since local people are "coresponsible for the local church, they must be involved in an authentic way in the choice of the one who will lead them," the committee says. "This cannot be left to chance."

In early chruch history, the people elected their bishops. At present, provincial groups of bishops recommend nominees to the Pope, who makes the final choice. Bishops may consult lay leaders and priests about nominees, but are not required to do so.

The wide-ranging report, dealing with some of the sharpest tensions now affecting relationships between bishops and priests, presented some central questions for next month's meeting of the nation's bishops.

It also came amid keen protests by leading spokesmen for priests at new Vatican restrictions, and on the heels of a lay-clergy appeal for setting up a national pastoral council as a voice for laity and priests in the U.S. church.

The study committee, headed by Archbishop Philip M. Hannan of New Orleans, says the chruch is at a point where it must find ways "to involve the faithful more effectively in the process of selecting their leaders."

"If all the people of God share in the responsibility for the continuation of the mission of Christ," the report says, "so, too, should they participate to some degree in the determination of the one who will have the most to say about how that mission will be accomplished."

The committee says procedures should be set up requiring full, open meetings of clergy and laity for discussing and proposing nominees. This, the committee says, should give the process "a greater degree of acceptability than it presently enjoys."

Other recommendations include:

—That formally recognized relationships be set up between the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and representative organizations of priests.

—That representative priests have a voice in national, regional and provincial meetings of bishops.

—That standards be established guaranteeing "due process" in every diocese, including procedures for conciliation, arbitration and impartial judicial hearings for those claiming individual rights have been violated in the church.

—That an interdisciplinary committee be set up to consider fixing limited terms of office for bishops.

—That more Spanish-speaking and black persons be included in the American hierarchy.

The report came shortly after a U.S. Bishops' Advisory Council, made up of 50 priests, bishops and lay persons, urged creation of a national pastoral council giving clergy and laity a representative voice in the church.

Bible Classes In Spanish

Classes to study the Bible in Spanish are held Sunday mornings from 9:30 to 10:30 o'clock at 59 Kensington Avenue, San Anselmo. Rev. Hermes Barros of Brazil is the instructor.

Assembly of God Church of San Rafael is sponsoring the classes.

Barros also will be speaking in the Sunday 6 p.m. service at the church meeting at 517 D Street in San Rafael. He will speak in Portuguese and the pastor will interpret.

LDS Slates Open House

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Greenbrae will hold an open house Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the church chapel.

Speaking on "Mormonism Faces the Issues of the Day" will be Leonard Ellis, a member of Marin Stake High Council. A brief film, "Man's Search for Happiness," also will be shown. Refreshments will be served.

The chapel is located at Bon Air Road and Via Hidalgo.

San Rafael Rally Whips Drake Gridders, 34-20

By LEW CODDINGTON

San Rafael High School, all but buried under the latest rubble from a month-long avalanche of disaster, dug itself out last night by rallying for a 34-20 football victory over Drake High.

Running backs Craig Saunders and Steve D'Ambra scored two touchdowns each for the Bulldogs, while lightning streak Jim Grigg gained 83 yards and netted the other score before 2,000 at San Rafael's field.

The victory broke a three-game San Rafael losing streak and improved the Bulldogs' season record to 3-4 and Marin County Athletic League mark to 2-3. Drake is 2-5 and 1-3.

"They had a good opportunity to quit there, but they didn't do it," said coach Bob Muster of his Bulldogs, who fell behind in the first period, 20-7.

"When we got behind we threw a little more off the play action. Dave Steele (quarterback) called a fine ball game."

Steele threw for 105 yards and two touchdowns and ran for an additional 32 yards in his first start of the year.

"I was real pleased too with the play of Grigg, who showed us the good speed again after shaking off an injury," Muster said.

Grigg bolted 41 yards around left end with 8:34 left in the game for the touchdown which gave San Rafael some breathing room at 28-20. The Bulldogs had been sitting on a 21-20 lead since halftime.

San Rafael struck first in the contest when Saunders ran one yard after Kip Tonking blocked a Drake punt and Chris Valentino recovered on the Drake four-yard line.

Drake retaliated immediately, as Phil Wilkinson returned the ensuing kickoff 90 yards for a score, and kept on striking. Quarterback Tom MacAusland ran three yards and fullback Jim McCann ran two for touchdowns on successive series.

From then on, however, it was all San Rafael. The Bulldogs scored on four of their next seven possessions, and drove to Drake's eight, five and three on their other tries only to be repelled by penalties and fine defensive play by the Pirates.

D'Ambra caught a 17-yard pass in the left flat from Steele with 4:34 remaining in the first half for a touchdown, and then with only 25 seconds left, Saun-

Top Defense By Warriors

Lakers' Sharman Is Angry

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors had their best defensive night of the season and the Los Angeles Lakers had no defense Friday as the San Francisco Bay area team scored a 119-91 victory over the National Basketball Association champions.

"Our defense was the best it has been all year," said Warriors' coach Al Attles. "There will be some who will say the Lakers had a poor shooting night but credit our defense. We also did well on rebounding and passing. This game has to give us confidence."

Coach Bill Sharman locked the Lakers' dressing room for 13 minutes after the game to discuss the worst beating the team has suffered this season.

"It was a complete breakdown," he said. "We had no defense at all and our shooting was very bad. The fast break never materialized and we didn't pass well. But you can't get upset over one loss."

It was the Lakers' first defeat at home this season and it snapped a five-game winning streak. But Sharman was more concerned about the trend of his team.

"We have been falling back early and haven't been able to come back. In four games against quality teams, we have been wiped out three times."

Jeff Mullins and Cazzie Russell led the Warriors' attack. Mullins was the game's high scorer with 28 points and Russell had 26 while Rick Barry, off to a slow start, got 17.

The Lakers kept the game close in the first half, trailing 66-61 after two periods, ut they fell apart in the second half as the Warriors kept up their steady pace.

The Warriors, who now trail the Lakers by a half game in the NBA's Pacific Division, have held their opponents to an average of 92 points a game thus far.

Gail Goodrich was the leading Laker scorer with 19 points and Happy Hairston had 18.

In rebounding, at which the Lakers excelled last year, they were outjumped by the Warriors, 55-47 and San Francisco made good on 54 per cent of its shots from the floor to 38 per cent for Los Angeles.

Arnie Seeks First Win In 15 Months

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer wants to win his first golf tournament in 15 months.

John Mahaffey and Lanny Wadkins wants to win their first tournament ever.

Jack Nicklaus wants to make $300,000.

And Lee Trevino wants everybody to play a little faster.

Palmer and young pros Wadkins and Mahaffey were tied for first place today going into the third and next-to-last round of the 72-hole, $135,000 Sahara Invitational with 36-holes scores of 134, eight under par.

Play for the last two rounds will be at the Sahara-Nevada Golf Club. For the first two, the pros also played the Las Vegas Country Club. Par at both was 71 but it was 36-35 at Sahara-Nevada and 35-36.

Nicklaus is a stroke back of the leading trio at 135 on rounds of 66-69. He leads the money-winners for the year as usual with $284,000. First prize of $27,000 would put him over $300,000, a milestone never before approached in pro golf.

Also in the 134 bracket were George Knudson, who picked up $30,000 for winning the Kaiser Invitational last weekend, and Art Wall, the greying, courtly Pennsylvanian who is 48.

Trevino, the defending champion, shot 70-72—142, even par, and blasted Professional Golf Association officials for not penalizing players who go too slow. The usually merry Mexican claimed some threesomes took five hours but PGA officials said that was in error.

Trevino suggested slow players be penalized two shots as provided in the PGA bylaws.

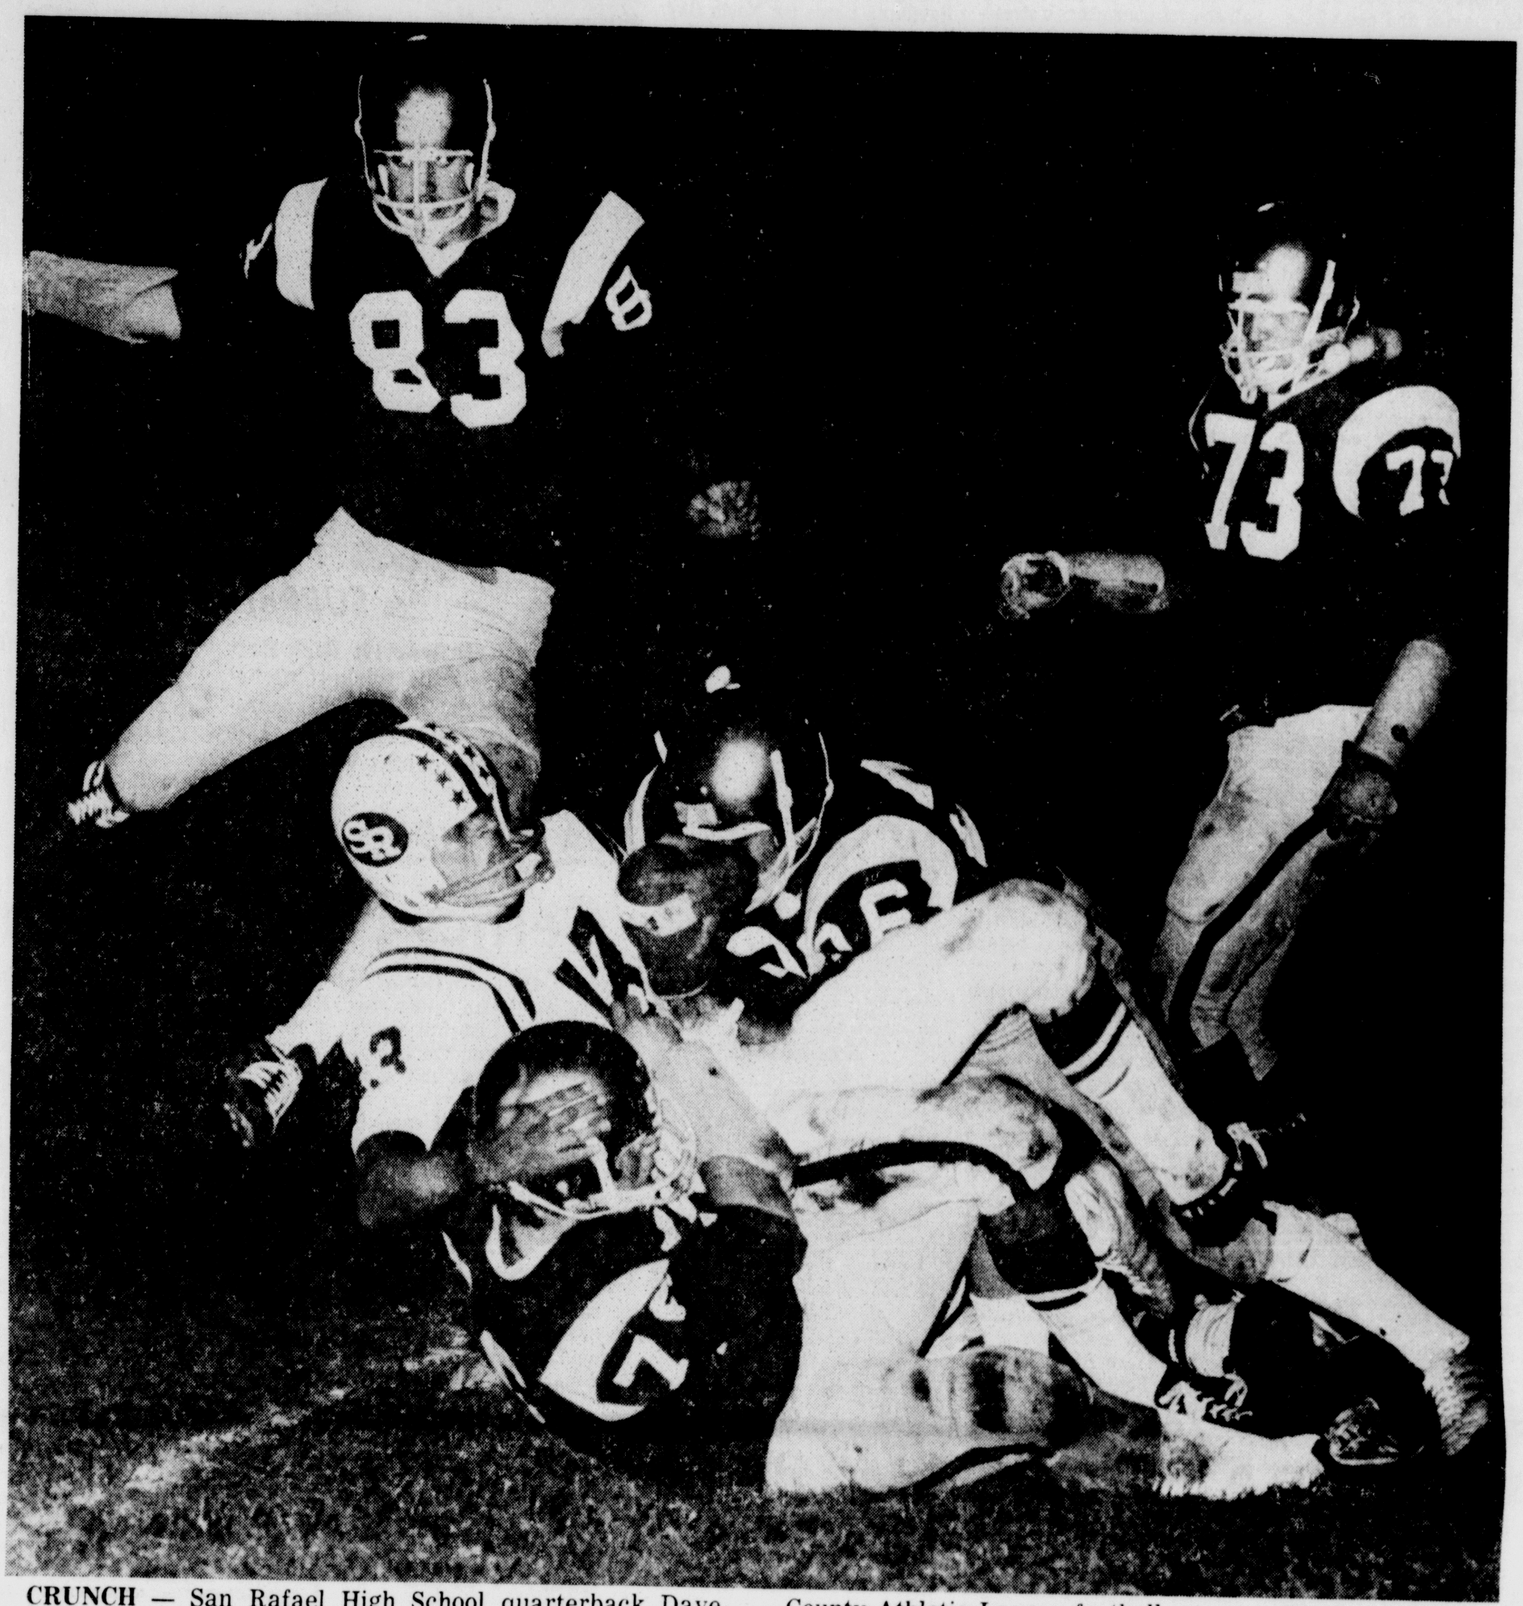

Palmer was not so vociferous but he agreed slow play was bad for the game.

Bobby Nichols, playing with Palmer and Nicklaus, was warned to speed up Friday. Officials put a stop watch on him at one tee and found it took him one minute and 20 seconds to get his drive off. It took only 40 seconds for both Nicklaus and Palmer to drive.

Palmer had rounds of 65-69 and Wadkins had the same. Mahaffey, University of Houston grad, shot 68-66—134.

The field was cut at 144 after two rounds and 76 pros remained in competition. Napa's Ron Cerrudo missed the cut with his 146.

The top rungs were crowded. At 136 were Bobby Mitchell, 70-66, and Dick Lotz, 67-69. At 137 were Bud Allin, 66-71; Doug Sanders, 65-72; Bob Eastwood, 69-68, and Jerry Heard, 71-66.

CRUNCH — San Rafael High School quarterback Dave Steele (13) was smashed to the ground by two Drake High defenders including Al Trainor (76) last night in a Marin County Athletic League football game at San Rafael High. Drake defenders Steve Wilgenbush (83) and Chuck Hildreth (73) looked on. San Rafael rallied for a 34-20 victory.

TOMORROW

Raiders Host Rams; Potent Running Set

OAKLAND (AP) — Two strong rushing attacks and a pair of stingy pass defenses will be matched at Oakland Coliseum tomorrow when the Oakland Raiders meet the Los Angeles Rams for the first time in regular National Football League season play.

Both clubs will be trying to safeguard leads of a half game in the West division of their conference. Oakland is 3-2-1 to Kansas City's 2-2-0 in the American half of the league. The Rams at 4-1-1 seek to stay ahead of Atlanta 4-2-0 in the National Conference West.

The contest is the only interconference clash of the weekend, and, as Rams Coach Tommy Prethro noted, is a meeting of "the only two division leaders that have beaten other division leaders." For what that's worth in looking ahead to playoffs, Oakland has beaten Green Bay and the Rams edged Cincinnati 15-12 last Sunday.

Los Angeles has averaged 166 yards a game rushing and Oakland 148.

Marv Hubbard has carried on slightly more than half the Raiders' rushing plays and gained 497 of the team's total 889 rushing yardage. He gets help from Charlie Smith, 167 yards in 48 tries, and sophomore Clarence Davis, who's carried only 16 times but has 104 yards and three touchdowns.

The Rams' running attack faltered against Cincinnati Sunday. Sparkplug Bob Thomas got only eight yards in eight carries and the team had only 55 yards — 30 in the last two runs that set up a winning field goal.

Ball-toting chores are divided more evenly by the Rams, with Thomas rolling up 354 yards on 56 tries; Willie Ellison 222 on 54, Larry Smith 195 on 40, and Jim Bertlesen 168 on 31.

In the pass defense department, the Rams lead the league, holding opponents to 106 yards a game. Oakland has the third best pass defense record in the American Conference, yielding 138 yards a game.

Coach John Madden said he expects to use more ground plays Sunday than when his club beat the Rams 34-9 in an exhibition last August. The Raiders have won two of three practice games against the Rams.

Quarterback Daryle Lamonica suffered muscle spasms from a helmet bruise in the back in the Raiders' 30-23 loss to Denver Sunday, but returned to practice in midweek and claimed there was no pain and he would be ready. If not, Ken Stabler will replace Lamonica who has 60 completions for 888 yards in 124 attempts. Stabler is 19 for 35 and 220 yards, and says he always seems to do well against the Rams.

Japan Title To Yomiuri Nine

OSAKA, Japan (UPI)—The Yomiuri Giants ripped four home runs in the third inning enroute to an 8-3 victory over the Hankyu Braves Saturday to win the 1972 Japan baseball championship.

The Giants, pennant winners of the Central League during the season, overpowered the Pacific League champions to gain a 4-1 victory in the best of seven series.

A paid attendance of 27,200 turned out at the Osaka Stadium to see the Giants seal their eighth straight Japanese national championship, as well their fifth consecutive triumph over the Braves in the annual classic.

MARINITES WIN, LOSE

Marin tennis players won one and lost one in the first round of the Windsor Candadian Tournament of Champions yesterday.

John Zwieg of Greenbrae defeated Henry Kamakana, 4-6, 6-1, 4-5 when Kamakana retired at match point, while Barry MacKay of Ross was upset by Greg Shepherd, 7-6, 6-2. Zwieg was playing on Golden Gateway courts in San Francisco, while MacKay was performing at the Berkeley Tennis Club.

Nevers To Talk At Marin Dinner

Pro football Hall of Fame member Ernie Nevers will be the guest speaker at Sportsmen Night Wednesday, 7 o'clock, at 1 Garden Way in Woodacre.

Nevers, a Stanford University product who played fullback in the National Football League for five years before his retirement in 1931, will attend along with four unnamed San Francisco 49ers. The dinner event is sponsored by the San Geronimo Valley Swim and Tennis Club.

The $5 tickets are available at Tarr's General Store in Woodacre and at the door.

2,500 Gather For Robinson's Rites

NEW YORK (UPI)—The man is gone, but the memories of those who played a baseball game with him, and of those who took time out from their own lives to cheer him on, remain as vivid as yesterday's ballgame.

A Hall of Fame collection of athletes, political dignitaries, show business personalities and just plain folk, an ample mixture of black and white, were among the more than 2,500 people who filled the Riverside Church on the west fringe of Harlem Friday to say their farewell to Jackie Robinson, the man who just 25 years ago made baseball truly an "American" game.

Perhaps a 100,000 more people had a chance to pay their respects to the man who integrated baseball as the cortege of almost 50 cars, stretching for close to a mile, wound its way through the predominantly black neighborhoods of Harlem and Bedford-Stuyvesant before reaching Cypress Hills Cemetery in Brooklyn.

"A sense of pride was created for America in 1947 along with a sense of challenge for white America," said the Dr. Rev. Jesse Jackson during his 15-minute eulogy, referring to the year the then 28-year-old Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier in baseball by joining the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947.

"America tried democracy and it worked," Jackson said, his voice booming so that it could be heard in the far reaches of the Gothic cathedral.

Jackson, founder and president of PUSH (People United to Save Humanity), of which Robinson was the first vice president, called the former ballplayer "a temple of God" and added, "When Jackie took the field, something in us reminded us of our birthright to be free....He didn't integrate baseball for himself. He infiltrated it for all of us."

Many former teammates and rivals of Robinson flew in from all parts of the country to attend the services for the Hall of Famer, who died of a heart attack at the age of 53 Tuesday morning. He had been suffering several years from diabetes and was nearly blind at the time he died.

"I just had to be here," said Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves, aptly summing up the feeling of all the other celebrities in attendance.

Sargent Shriver, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, made a surprise appearance at the services, saying, "I'm very sorry that a man who had such an inspirational career should die at such a young age."

Former Dodger teammates of Robinson in attendance were Roy Campanella, Don Newcombe, Pee Wee Reese, Ralph Branca, Jim Gilliam, Gene Hermanski, Joe Black and Billy Loes. Other sports noteables included Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, former National League President Warren Giles, Willie Mays, Joe Louis, Larry Doby, Bill Russell, Vida Blue, Ernie Banks, Bill Veeck, Bill White, Dodger President Peter O'Malley and Yankee President Mike Burke.

Coast Guard Day At Corinthian Y.C.

Coast Guard Appreciation Day will be held tomorrow afternoon at Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon with Rear Admiral Mark A. Whalen, 12th District and Western Sea Frontier Commander, and his staff honored.

The program is open to the public from noon to 3 p.m., and includes a one-hour concert by the Coast Guard Band on Corinthian's main deck and inspection of a Coast Guard cutter in the club's harbor.

SEALS WIN

Meloche Assist To McKechnie

OAKLAND (UPI) — Goalie Gilles Meloche of the California Golden Seals got his first win of the season but gave a big assist to center Walt McKechnie.

McKechnie, a 6-2 blond from London, Ont., scored two goals within 64 seconds of the third period and assisted on a third Friday night to lead the Seals to a 6-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

His first came off a goal-mouth pass from Gary Croteau and beat rookie goalie Denis Herron at 14:40. Then at 15:44, McKechnie took a feed from Craig Patrick and slammed a 15-footer into the nets.

Croteau also assisted on the Seals' second goal, by rookie Pete Laframboise, and gave California a 3-1 lead with Croteau's second-period score.

Coach-general manager Garry Young also was overjoyed by the victory which lifted the Seals into a tie with St. Louis for last place in the National Hockey League West.

"It was a little overdue," said Young. "We played more defense tonight against the Penguins. We waited for them to make a mistake and then we tried to capitalize on it."

Croteau's goal at 6:18 of the middle period explained what he meant. Croteau intercepted a pass between the blue lines and got an unassisted goal to up the Seals lead to 3-1.

49ers Fight For Title Survival

ATLANTA (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers could use hot performances by Steve Spurrier and Daryle Lamonica Sunday as they fight to stay in the National Football Conference race.

Spurrier has taken over at quarterback for the 49ers for John Brodie, whose leg injury is sure to keep him out of at least two games and maybe two more after that. In a Jeckyl-and-Hyde performance last Sunday, Spurrier hit two touchdown passes in the first half and threw three dismal interceptions in the second half as the Prospectors struggled to a 20-20 tie with lowly New Orleans.

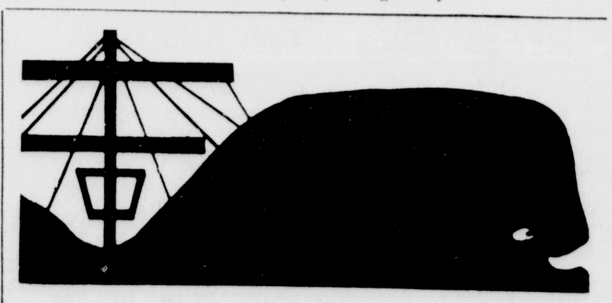

That gave the Prospectors a 2-3-1 record going into Sunday's tussle here with Atlanta, a team with a great rushing attack which is 4-2 in the same division.

But as coach Dick Nolan says "a win puts us right back in the race," which is right, especially if Lamonica finds the range at home for Oakland Sunday against Los Angeles, the division leader at 4-1-1.

While Spurrier took some criticism for his trio of interceptions, it's also true that he hit 19 of 35 for 286 yards in an otherwise good performance.

The real culprit for the 49ers has been the running game, which has been held to well under 100 yards per game each of the last three weeks.

Nolan has indicated he will try to "simplify" the running game against Atlanta and hope it can reach its glories of the past two seasons. He has four guys who have all had their good days in Vic Washington, Ken Willard, Jimmy Thomas and Larry Schreiber, but most of those good days were in years gone by.

PRO FOOTBALL

Jurgensen Vs. Giants' Snead

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It's Sonny Jurgensen vs. Norm Snead again Sunday but only the names and one of the uniforms are the same.

The two veteran quarterbacks, who were traded for each other back in 1964 in a trade that Philadelphia fans loathed and Washington fans loved, will be playing against each other again when the New York Giants host the Redskins.

They're no strangers since, except for last year when Snead was in Minnesota, they've always been in the same division since Snead became a pro in 1961 and have usually faced each other twice a year.

But there's a different touch to their meeting this year since Jurgensen, one of the best throwers in the game, is now a ball-control quarterback stressing his running game and Snead, who was practically booed out of Philadelphia and flopped in Minnesota, is No. 1 in the National Football League quarterback standings.

The change in Jurgensen has come about because he's now playing for coach George Allen, who likes to play a conservative game featuring defense and running and wasn't too wild about playing Jurgensec in the first place. But when Bill Kilmer was having too much trouble moving the club, he finally went to Jurgensen after the first three games.

But this isn't the old Jurgensen who used to throw, throw and throw. He's only passed 58 times although he's completed 38 for a percentage of 65.6. But since he hasn't thrown 60 times yet, he isn't even ranked yet in the NFL statistics.

Meanwhile, Snead, who was always considered an inconsistent quarterback, is having the best season of his career. When Snead failed to win the starting job at Minnesota last year, his career seemed to be in eclipse. He came to the Giants as a throw-in in the Fran Tarkenton deal as was supposed to be the second-stringer behind Randy Johnson.

Johnson had a good start in the exhibition season before being injured.

In the other 11 games Sunday, Los Angeles is at Oakland, Kansas City is at San Diego, Miami is at Baltimore, Minnesota at Green Bay, San Francisco is at Atlanta, New England is at New York Jets, Cleveland is at Denver, Pittsburgh is at Buffalo, Houston is at Cincinnati, Philadelphia is at New Orleans and Chicago is at St. Louis.

In the Monday night TV special, Detroit is at Dallas.

Miami, the only unbeaten team in pro ball with a 6-0 record, is favored to down a stumbling Baltimore team. At the start of the season, this looked like one of the better games of the season and will be televised to much of the nation as the second game of a doubleheader. It still might be an interesting game but Baltimore is 1-5 and out of the race.

Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, tied for the American Football Conference Central Division lead with 4-2 records, are both favored over Houston and Buffalo.

Minnesota, which was the pre-season favorite for the Super Bowl but has lost four of its six games, must beat Green Bay, tied with Detroit for the NFC Central Division crown with a 4-2 mark, or face virtual elimination from the race. Minnesota has won the division crown for four consecutive aars but their fabled defense has been a bit porous so far this season.

San Rafael Win Aided By Kamlers

Mike and Jeff Kamler scored all the points for San Rafael High School yesterday as the Bulldogs surprised Redwood, 15-6, in Marin County Athletic League water polo action at San Rafael.

In other games, Terra Linda remained on top, beating San Marin, 9-2, while Tamalpais edged Novato, 13-9. Drake drew a bye.

San Rafael broke open a close game in the third quarter to roll over Redwood. In what coach Bill Ranney called "our best team effort to the year", Mike Kamler scored nine goals while Jeff contributed six.

Terra Linda got back on the winning track, beating San Marin, 9-2. Trojans Keith Strange, Todd Gulick and Jon Fearn scored two each.

Tamalpais evened its record at 4-4 while Novato slipped into the cellar with Drake at 1-7.

The Reds assigned outfielders Ted Uhlaender and Al Crawford to their Class AAA farm team Indianapolis.

Petaluma Gridders Take 1st

By PAUL DWORIN

The Petaluma High School Trojans, like the Trojans at the University of Southern California, are number one. UUC leads the college ratings, and, now, Petaluma heads the North Bay League football race.

Petaluma, 1-0, battered visiting Hogan, 21-6, last night while Vallejo upset erstwhile co-leader Ukiah, 21-14. Thus, Petaluma has sole possession of first place in the NBL.

In other Southern Sonoma football action, Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park clinched its second straight Sonoma County League title with a 40-0 win over host Healdsburg, and visiting St. Vincent of Petaluma was beaten, 28-0, by Calistoga in a North Central League II game.

Hogan stunned Petaluma early in the first quarter when running back Harvey Aytch went 56-yards for a touchdown, but after that it was Petaluma's game, as the offense controlled the ball and the defense repeatedly came up with big plays in crucial situations.

Right after Aytch's sprint, the Trojans came up with a stunner of their own when quarterback Steve Crawford hit Tom Mercado with a 10-yard pass. Mercado put a move on two Spartan defenders and raced 37-yards to the end zone. The play covered 47 yards.

Rancho Cotate picked up its 16th straight win after exploding for 22 points in the first quarter.

NBA ROUNDUP

Celtics Like Last Year's Lakers

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

While the Boston Celtics continue to make like last year's Los Angeles team, the Lakers seem mere mortals this campaign.

Boston won its ninth game in as many contests Friday night but the National Basketball Association defending champion Lakers bowed to Golden State 119-91 and saw their record dip to 6-3.

Los Angeles was trailing 66-61 at halftime but could manage only 30 points in the second half and no Laker could reach the 20 point mark for the game.

The Celtics remained the NBA's lone unbeaten team with a 123-97 rout of the Cleveland Cavaliers. Celtics coach Tommy Heinsohn cleared his bench with all 12 players participating led by Jo Jo White's 20 points. Lennie Wilkens was high for Cleveland with 23.

New York remained 1 1-2 games behind Boston in the Atlantic Division with a 92-88 victory over Baltimore while Houston downed Detroit 130-118, Chicago throttled Portland 118-95 and Seattle beat Phoenix 120-115.

The Knicks won despite scoring only 10 points in the final quarter as neither team could tally in the last 2:13. Walt Frazier led New York with 25 points while Dave DeBusschere, who played even after suffering a broken nose in the third period, and Bill Bradley each added 17. Rich Rinaldi had 21 for Baltimore.

Jimmy Walker scored 30 points and Cliff Meely pulled down 16 rebounds for Houston as the Rockets took over first place in the Central Division with their win over Detroit. Bob Lanier of the Pistons led all scorers with 36.

Bob Love's 26 points and 22 more by Jerry Sloan paced Chicago past Portland. Geoff Petrie topped the Trail Blazers with 30.

Terra Linda Gridders In Sunnyvale

Continuing a non-league schedule which would make the Marquis de Sade chuckle, Terra Linda High School's football team will play Monta Vista of Cupertino at Fremont High in Sunnyvale tonight, 8 o'clock.

"They're as tough a team as we've played in the last 10 years," said coach Don Lucas, whose Trojans have rattled off three straight victories after losing their first three games — two to rugged non-league opponents Concord and Alameda.

"I think we'll be up for this game a little bit, but Monta Vista would have to be the favorite," said Lucas. "They're 4-1 on the year, and their loss came to Cupertino last week in overtime."

When two teams tie in the Santa Clara Valley League, each runs four more offensive plays, and the team gaining more yardage wins. Cupertino threw a 64-yard pass on fourth down to take the victory.

Trojan halfbacks Kevin O'Keefe and Larry Offenbach may miss the game with a possible ulcer and sprained foot, respectively, so Sean Casey and Dan Walsh will start in the backfield, Lucas said. Lineman Jon Loberg, whose injured knee is still tender, may be held out of the game.

Laney In Probe Of Crittendon

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

OAKLAND — Laney College officials here are checking school records hard to see if "Lon Crittendon" ever attended classes.

Crittendon, recruited to play football at the University of California, told the National Collegiate Athletic Association Council he was passed through Laney in one semester without ever attending. That incident was one of several which led to California being placed on probation until 1975.

A Laney spokesman said Friday that preliminary investigation showed "that a body named Crittendon was registered and a body named Crittendon appeared in class and took the significant tests."

"That is what our records show if we learn that such a body was not actually present but the records were falsified, that is one kind of embarrassment. If we learn that another person took the place of the real Crittendon on a false signature and social security card, then it is a different embarrassment."

Tennis

ESSEN, Germany — Bob Lutz of Tiburon and Cliff Richey today moved into the men's singles semi-finals of the 10th World Professional Tennis Championships.

Richey beat West Germany's Wilhelm Bungert, 6-1, 6-2, while Lutz disposed of Tom Okker of the Netherlands, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Lutz dropped the first set to Okker, but afterward seized the initiative, while the Dutchman's play deteriorated.

Baseball

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The St. Louis Cardinals said Friday they have obtained catcher Gene Dusan from the world champion Oakland Athletics' Iowa farm club to complete the Dal Maxvill trade.

Dusan was the player to be named later in the August trade that sent the veteran Maxvill to Oakland and third baseman Joe Lindsey to St. Louis.

Dusan, 22, a switch-hitter, led Iowa in hitting with .311 this past season.

Golf

ADELAIDE, Australia — David Graham maintained his lead by one stroke over fellow Australian Peter Thomson after today's third round of the $24,000 Quantas Australian Open Golf Championship at the Kooyonga Course.

Graham returned a two under par 70 for a total of 210 on the 6,727-yard course.

American Homero Blancas just made the cutoff but appeared to be out of contention at 219. The other American Bob Murphy, who won last week's Wills Tournament in Sydney, missed the cut after a 76 for a total of 232.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. — Marilynn Smith and Sandra Haynie have taken the lead going into today's second round of the $20,000 Corpus Christi Civitan Open. They had four under par 66s.

General

DENVER — The president of the U.S. Olympic Committee is glad the National Collegiate Athletic Association didn't withdraw its athletes from Olympic competition when it withdrew as a member.

"The services of many NCAA administrators and coaches are invaluable to the Olympic movement," Clifford Buck said. "At the Munich games, leaders from NCAA schools comprised 62 per cent of our games committees." Buck also said the NCAA pullout came as no surprise to him.

Trojan Booters Take 1st

Terra Linda High School Trojans moved into first place yesterday in surprisingly easy fashion, knocking off San Marin, 4-1, in Marin County Athletic League Soccer competition.

In other games yesterday, Redwood gained a 1-1 tie with San Rafael, while Tamalpais beat Marin Catholic, 2-1, and Drake tied Novato, 2-2.

The McCa rthy brothers o Terra Linda provided the hosts winning margin, as James scored two goals and Mark scored one. "We played very aggressively," said coach Bob Vasser, "offensively we really worked them over." Al Little put through the remaining Trojan goal, while Ken Niebur scored for San Marin.

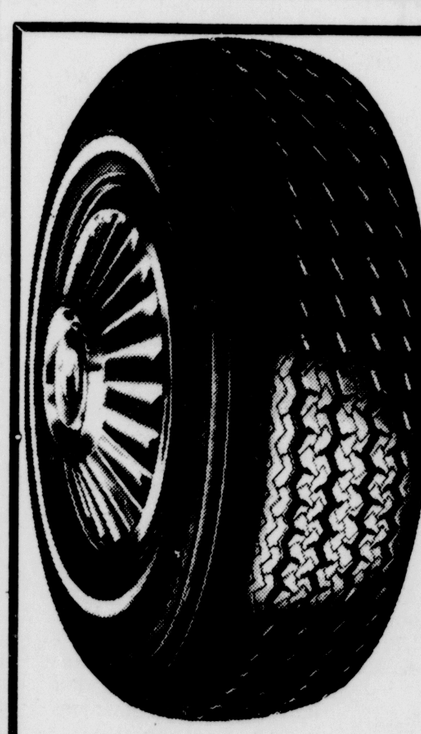

Tom Villasenor scored with one minute left in regulation time, enabling Redwood to tie San Rafael. Both teams are now tied for third place. Misak Pirinjian scored for the Bulldogs.

Hank Omwubiko scored twice for Tam, as the Indians got their second win of the season.

Drake and Novato remained deadlocked, 2-2, after two overtimes. Pirate Ken Light led game scorers, contributing two goals.

Standings

Terra Linda 8-2, San Marin 7-2-1, Redwood 6-3-1, San Rafael 6-3-1? Drake 4-4-2 Novato 3-5-2, Tamalpais 2-7-1, Marin Catholic 0-9-1.

Jail Term For Grocery Theft

Sharon Woodward Freeman, 44, of San Rafael, has been ordered to spend six months in jail for stealing $10 worth of groceries from a San Rafael supermarket.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner also placed her on probation for three years on the felony petty theft count. The sentence was reached through plea bargaining.

Mrs. Freeman stole the groceries May 5 from a Lucky supermarket and faced a felony count because she was convicted April 7 of another petty theft charge.

Man Reports Driveway Stoning

A Greenbrae man returning home from work Wednesday was attacked by a man swinging a sock full of stones, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

Kevin P. Burke, 22, of 44 Corte Morada, told deputies he was getting out of his car in his driveway at 3:05 a.m. when he was assaulted and knocked to the ground.

He said the attacker fled when he screamed. Burne reportedly suffered forehead cuts and bruises.

Deputies had no motive for the apparently unprovoked assault.

CONGRESSIONAL COFFERS

'Jake The Barber' Donates $19,500 To Demo Candidates

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A whopping $2.6 mill ion has poured into California congressional campaigns, including $19,500 given to Democratic candidates by John (Jake the Barber) Factor, an ex-convict turned philanthropist.

Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Portola Valley, received $193,952 in campaign contributions; Democrat Fortney Stark, a Danville banker, collected $178,009; and Roger Boas, a former president of the San Francisco board of supervisors, took in $178,300, according to reports on file with the secretary of state Friday.

Besides Factor, major contributors included Los Angeles oilman Henry Salvatori who gave $3,000 to the write-in campaign of retired businessman Gordon Knapp of Atherton, a Republican running against McCloskey, and Harry Belafonte, who donated $5,000 to Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Berkeley.

Factor, brother of cosmetics king Max Factor, gave $6,000 to Rep. James C. Corman, D-Van Nuys, and $1,000 each to eight other Democratic congressmen.

He contributed $5,000 to the California Congressional Campaign Committee at a dinner Oct. 6 given by Eugene Wyman, a top Democratic fund-raiser, at his Beverly Hills home.

Factor, a Los Angeles resident, also chipped in $500 to Assemblywoman Yvonne Brathwaite, who is running for the House of Representatives.

Factor's current occupation was described in three different ways on the candidate's contribution statements—"investor," "philanthropist" and "insurance broker."

In some cases, no occupation was listed.

Factor, who earned his nickname from a cut-rate barber shop he operated in Chicago during the bootleg era, has been a major contributor to Democrats in the past. He gave $32,500 to Democratic candidates in 1970.

Born in England, he served six years in prison after pleading guilty in 1942 to mail fraud in a $1 million Iowa whiskey-selling scheme.

Deportation proceedings were begun against Factor as a result of the conviction, but President John F. Kennedy pardoned him on Christmas day 1962.

The other Democratic California congressmen reporting contributions from Factor were Phillip Burton, San Francisco; Don Edwards, Oakland; Jerome Waldie, Concord; Augustus Hawkins, Los Angeles; Thomas Rees, Los Angeles; George Danielson, Los Angeles; Charles Wilson, Inglewood, and Lionel Van Deerlin, San Diego.

The $2.6 million in contributions to the state's congressional candidates was compiled by UPI from individual campaign statements filed with the secretary of state. They reported receipts for the year up until mid-October. Nearly 75 per cent of the candidates' statements were on file as of Friday.

McCloskey's total of $193,952 included $11,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Koshland, Hillsborough, and $5,810 from actress Jennifer Jones, wife of Los Angeles industrialist Norton Simon. Koshland is president of Levi Strauss Clothing Co.

McCloskey's statement also reported all campaign contributions above $10. Most candidates only reported those contributions required by law—ones above $100.

McCloskey's Democratic opponent, James Stewart of Palo Alto, received $33,094 while write-in candidate Knapp, a retired businessman, collected $40,685. The amount included $20,000 in Knapp's own funds.

Boas' $178,300 included $5,000 from the Committee on Political Education, AFL-CIO, and $100 from former madam Sally Stanford of Sausalito.

His opponent, Rep. William Mailliard, R-San Francisco, reported $135,646 including $1,000 from J.R. Dant, San Francisco, president of States Steamship Co., and $2,500 from the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Stark, who is known as the "maverick banker" because of liberal leanings, counted $2,750 from William M. Lunghi, a San Francisco real estate developer, in his $178,009. Stark also reported that his campaign committee was $169,063 in debt.

Stark's Republican opponent, Lew M. Waden, a Castro Valley attorney, received contributions of $19,695 including a $9,000 loan from Dorothy Bilodeau of San Luis Obispo.

In a Southern California contest, Democrat George E. Brown Jr. of Colton, a former congressman, declared contributions of $105,393. The amount included $500 from actress Donna Reed of Beverly Hills and $5,000 from Robert P. Jeans of Los Angeles.

His Republican opponent, Howard J. Snider, mayor of Ontario, reported $77,655 including $5,000 from the California Medical Political Action Committee and $2,000 from the Business-Industry Political Action Committee.

Brown Says Younger Voters Losing Faith

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's 10.4 million voters, especially the younger ones, are losing faith in the two political parties and becoming more independent, the state's top election official says.

"This is due to the fact people are more sophisticated, subject to more communication through the press and television, and not fooled as easily as in the past by political rhetoric — especially partisan rhetoric," Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said in an interview.

The 34-year-old Democrat Friday released voter registration figures for the Nov. 7 election which tended to support his contention.

The figures showed, Brown said, that "the number of Californians refusing to join any party has now hit an alltime high of 613,193, or 5.88 per cent of the voters." This compares to 4.8 per cent in the June 6 primary.

The number of registered voters totals 10,428,436—up 1.3 million from the primary—and Democrats hold a better than 3 to 2 lead, 56.02 to 36.70 per cent. There are 5.8 million Democrats and 3.8 million Republicans.

Since the 1968 presidential election, Democrats have increased their margin over Republicans by more than 5 per cent. In that year, nearly 8.6 million voters were registered, 54.5 per cent of them Democrats and 40.3 per cent Republicans.

But all parties have dropped slightly in percentages since June, even the Peace and Freedom and American Independent. They now are at .57 and .45 per cent respectively.

Los Angeles County contains 34.5 per cent of the state's voters. Numbering 3,613,450, they are divided between 57.5 per cent Democrats and 35.1 per cent Republicans. The county thus is more Democratic than the remainder of California.

During their Fall registration drives, Democrats signed up 708,201 voters compared to 437,500 for Republicans.

Brown estimated the proportion of 18-to-24 year olds who registered was not significantly different from their parents. But he said, "the greatest proportion of independent voters is among the young people."

"It's just a fact both parties are losing their hold on people," Brown said. "More and more people are not looking to the major parties as representative of their political philosophies. The day when Democrats and Republicans could count on automatic votes is fast fading."

Brown said he sees this "as a danger uignal that people are dissatisfied with politicians in general."

Additional evidence, he said, is that nine initiative measures are on the ballot, the biggest number in decades. "It took almost 5 million signatures, an astounding figure, to qualify all of these measures so the people could legislate for themselves," he said.

Strawberry Master Plan Review Is Set Monday

A community-sponsored master plan of the Strawberry area will be reviewed Monday at 9 a.m. by the Marin County Planning Commission.

The plan, a product of months of work by the Strawberry area community council, would limit construction of new apartment projects to those already approved by the county.

It also proposes keeping much of the undeveloped land around Strawberry in open space but would allow development of new single-family dwellings to nearly double the present population to 10,400.

The master plan covers Bel Aire, Bay Vista, Eagle Rock, East Alto, De Silva Island and Strawberry Point.

Some 25 items on the commission's agenda are scheduled to be postponed, largely because of the state Supreme Court's ruling that projects having a "nontrivial" effect on tha environment must have environmental impact reports.

Mind Training Course Slated

Rudolph E. Holzinger, a doctor of philosophy and psychology, will give a five-day training course in uses of the mind, starting Monday at the College of Marin.

Invited by the student's Experimental Studies Program, Dr. Holzinger described the course as: training "in alpha states of consciousness through sound synchronization and vocal direction."

The course will be held from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. every evening next week in the faculty lounge at the college center.

Master Plan Session

The Novato Planning Commission will hold another in a series of public hearings on the proposed city master plan at 8 p.m. Monday in the community house.

FBI To Halt Clippings On Congressmen

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III has acknowledged that since 1950 the bureau has been accumulating routine information on members of Congress and congressional candidates.

Gray, in announcing Friday that the program had been suspended, emphasized that "the FBI is not investigating and has not investigated members of Congress or congressional candidates."

He said the files, culled from newspapers, magazines, campaign literature and various reference publications, were used "to provide briefing material for FBI officials who might desire it before making a call on a newly elected congressman or senator."

He said it has also been used for "immediate use in following investigative leads" in connection with possible "violent offenses against members of Congress and members of Congress-elect."

Gray, who succeeded the late J. Edgar Hoover in May, said the information collection has been going on for 22 years but that it had "just come to my attention."

He said that after giving consideration to the need for the collection of such information, he had decided it "is not essential to FBI operations."

He added that "it is obvious that it can be misinterpreted easily as a program to investigate congressmen and congressional candidates."

The practice, he said, came to his attention when it was alleged that an FBI agent in Lorain County, Ohio, identified as Lee Kias, "has been making inquires about the background of the Democratic candidate for Congress in Ohio's 13th District." The candidate is John Ryan.

"This agent's inquiries were not authorized," Gray said. He promised an "internal administrative investigation" of Kias.

Gray said the only exceptions to the policy of not investigating congressmen or candidates "have been where a member was alleged to have violated a federal law or where the member is being considered for a top-level government appointment."

Some congressmen, including House Majority Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., have charged in the past that they were victims of wiretapping and other investigation methods of the bureau.

Boggs made an impassioned floor speech in April, 1971, charging the FBI with using "the tactics of the Soviet Union and Hitler's Gestapo." Boggs, however, failed to produce evidence of his allegation that the FBI routinely tapped telephones of congressmen.

Drop In Crime Rate Praised

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst said yesterday the nation's capital, has a "total systems approach" to crime and this has cut the crime rate in Washington, D.C., by 50 per cent in three years.

"The success of this approach in Washington has shown what can be done," Kleindienst said in an address prepared for a Commonwealth Club luncheon here.

The attorney general praised San Francisco Police Chief Donald M. Scott and Oakland, Calif., Chief Charles R. Gain for reducing crime in the two Bay Area cities.

Health Plan Group Endorses Prop. 2

The executive committee of the Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council has endorsed Proposition 2 on the Nov. 7 ballot.

The proposition calls for a $155.9 million bond issue to finance new health science building and equipment at University of California campuses.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Oct. 28, the 302nd day of 1972 with 64 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Saturn and Mars. The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

Jonas Salk, American developer of the first polio vaccine, was born Oct. 28, 1914.

On this day in history:

In 1636, Harvard University was formed in Massachusetts.

In 1886, the Statue of Liberty was dedicated on Bedloe's Island in New York harbor.

In 1929, losses on the New York Stock Exchange and curb exchanges ran to more than $10 billion. Some high-priced bank stocks dropped 500 points.

In 1968, thousands of Czechs rallied to protest occupation by Soviet troops. The rally was crushed.

A thought for the day: German poet Johann Heinrich said, "Who does not love wine, women and song remains a fool his whole life long."

Guilty Plea To Grand Theft Count

A Tiburon man, who allegedly took $28,000 from the motel room of an acquaintance, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of grand theft.

In return for the plea, Judge Samuel W. Gardiner agreed to dismiss a burglary charge and give William Andrew Stephen Hodge no more than 90 days in jail when he is sentenced Dec. 1.

The 34-year-old Hodge, who recently pleaded guilty in Ohio to conspiring to burn a warehouse to collect $420,000 in insurance, will also be required to make restitution and spend time on probation.

Hodge turned himself in to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Indianapolis, Ind., on Aug. 14 and was returned to Marin.

The local charge stems from the theft of a briefcase containing the cash from the room of Lee Carbone of Napa at the Tiburon Lodge on Aug. 3.

Tiburon police said Hodge spent the evening wining and dining with Carbone and his wife before taking the money.

1,200 Attend Mime's Wedding

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Mime Robert Shields and his bride, both wearing the painted white face of their art, were joined in silent matrimony Friday before 1,200 persons in Union Square, where Shields' free shows have turned him into a San Francisco tourist attraction.

Although actor Scott Beach performed the ceremonies, the participants asserted they were legal since Beach is a member of the American Humanist Association and the Humanist Institute of San Francisco.

"I call upon you to witness," intoned Beach, "that these two beloved have exchanged their vows and are husband and wife."

Peace Corps, VISTA Interviews Scheduled

Recruiters for the Peace Corps and VISTA will be on the Sonoma State College campus next week to interview prospective volunteers.

Representatives will be available at the placement office from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday. They will be particularly interested in talking to students with majors in mathematics and the sciences, economics, English, managements, political science and physical education.

Who Is Insured By Your Insurance?

WHEN YOU HAVE a loss covered by insurance, you rarely get what you think you pay for when you buy the policy.

The fine print seems to get you every time. It always works to the advantage of the insurance company. Even if you read it carefully before you buy, it turns out that it really means something different — to your disadvantage, of course.

ONE COULD SAY THAT INSURANCE POLICIES PROVIDE FAR MORE PROTECTION FOR INSURANCE COMPANIES WHICH SELL THEM THAN FOR THE INSUREDS WHO PAY FOR THEM.

Insure a pair of precious family heirloom ear rings, for instance. Then lose one.

As the insurance companies interpret the fine print, you are entitled to half the value of the pair.

The insurance company apparently thinks milady will be happy wearing one earring while holding an insurance check in one hand.

WHAT PROTECTION does the public have from such nonsense?

The state insurance commissioner is our protection. He approves the fine print before the insurance companies can sell their policies.

Trouble is, the insurance commissioner is an insurance man himself. Present incumbent in the job is a former insurance company president.

One might say once more, the insurance companies have more protection than those who buy insurance.

Any insurance man will tell you that if you want to avoid trouble in case of loss, have your insured items appraised by some competent expert.

Milady's diamond ring, for instance, can be formally valued by a diamond expert. If you don't know a diamond expert, your helpful insurance man will be glad to suggest one, or several.

You pay the expert a fee in exchange for a signed, written statement attesting to the value, in his expert opinion.

The diamond which cost $200 years ago, turns out to be worth $500 in the opinion of the expert. The insurance man rubs his hands in satisfaction because now you must pay for $500 instead of only $200 worth of insurance.

If you lose the ring, the expert appraisal establishes its value and you may get the full $500 of insurance which you have been paying for.

Suppose, however, that you are involved in an accident and the diamond is chipped. Now the insurance company adjuster goes to work. He decides the jewel wasn't really worth $500 after all; it was really only worth $350.

You may think you bought and paid for $500 worth of insurance and you certainly did pay a rate for $500 worth of insurance.

The way the insurance company reads the fine print, $350 is all you get, and they keep the chipped stone.

One would think that if he overpaid on insurance for a number of years, he would be entitled to a refund, with interest.

No way!

The fine print is interpreted to protect the insurance company against any refunds for overcharging its policy buyers.

Once more, the insurance company is better protected than is the insurance buyer.

The insurance commissioner, being an insurance man himself . . . (You finish that sentence. It's too painful for this writer.)

ONE IDEA ABROAD in our land today that the consumer (in this case, the insurance buyer) ought to be dealt with fairly. Most of us subscribe to this idea.

Our legislators and our public officials at least give it lip service. It can be supposed that even our state insurance commissioner would endorse the idea, in theory, at least.

But we need more than lip service.

Next time the governor picks an insurance commissioner, it would make more sense to select a person who had been skinned (oops, today's idiom would be "ripped off") by an insurance company. A victim is more likely to require fine print protective of the insured instead of the insurance company.

Meanwhile, our representatives at Sacramento, Senator Behr and Assemblyman Bagley, owe it to all of us to try to cause an investigation to be made to see what can be done to give insurance buyers protection at least equal to that which insurance companies enjoy in the fine print.

Fungus Degrades Tires

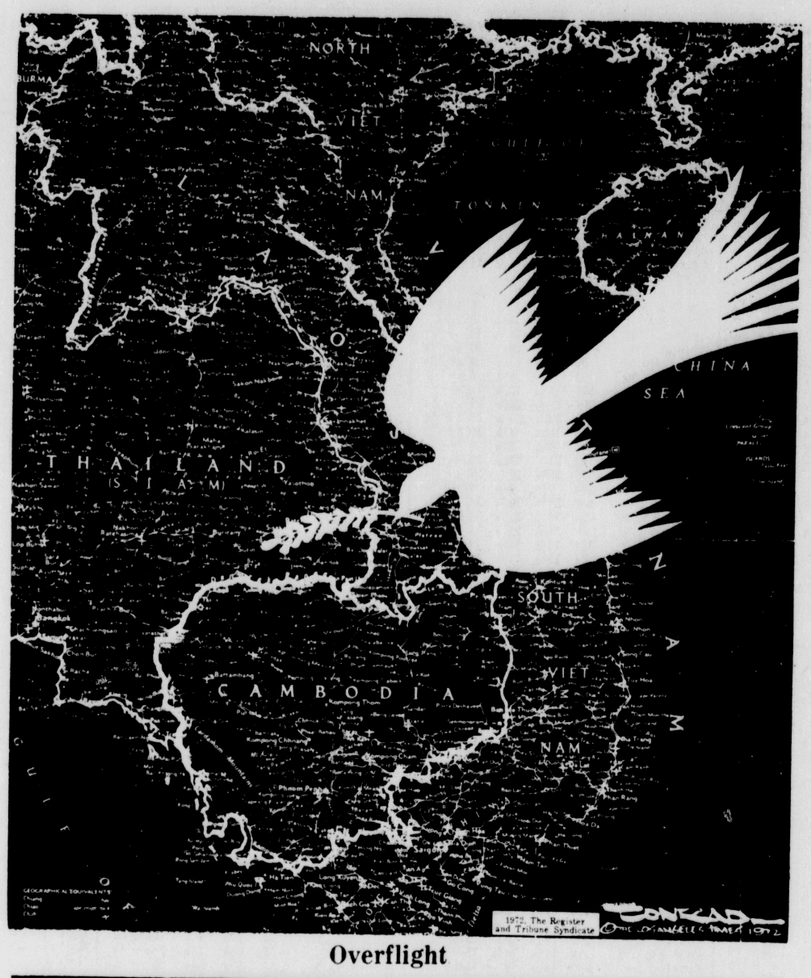

Piles of wornout tires are eyesores on the landscape, even in Marvelous Marin. However, now we read of a fungus which can decompose auto tires in a matter of months. The resulting by-product can be watered and with a few plant food additives, be made to produce vegetables. If we can do it with tires, we can do it with paper. And the problems of solid waste disposal will be on the road to solution.

Hedgerow Sanctuaries

Anyone who has driven about the English countryside can recall the miles and miles of hedgerows which are used as fences to delineate property lines. We have some here in Marin, but nothing like the extent in Britain. Ten years ago in England, 600,000 miles of hedgerows were strung, like an endless maze, through the landscape, providing refuge for a wide variety of wild creatures. Since then, however, the English have grubbed up 10,000 miles a year.

Some nature-lovers are alarmed by this trend. After all, what would England be without its tweedy naturalists poking about the hedgerows? The overwhelming appreciation of nature is almost a national eccentricity. Perhaps it will save the hedgerows from extermination.

Terra Linda Firemen Helpful In Emergency

I should like to commend the Terra Linda Fire Department for the help given to us in an emergency on Oct. 16 during a horrible rain storm.

We suddenly discovered our house was flooding from no obvious source and called friends who came to help but we could not handle the problem as the water was coming in too rapidly. We called the fire department and they arrived within 10 minutes and vacuumed the water out of the house.The water had been coming from the roof and down through the walls and they checked the electrical wiring to be sure there was no danger of fire and had us turn off the electricity until we could get an electrician. They were unbelievably helpful and kind and refused to allow us to reimburse them for all their trouble.

Points Out Fluorides Require Prescription

Because of the danger of toxic side-effects, fluoride can be purchased only with a prescription. The reason for this is the fact that fluorides are extremely toxic and side-effects can be very severe.

How, then, do we dare fluoridate the entire water supply? How can we possibly know who is getting how much fluorine? How can it be discontinued when side-effects begin to show up?

When we buy it in the drug store for our children's teeth, it costs about one dollar per year per child. It is free for those who cannot afford the dollar.

Rehabilitation Calls For More Supervision

The justice department and your paper are doing a good job informing the public about the merits of plea bargaining and how it works.

In spite of assurances from Bales and others I still have the impression the chief purpose is to keep the whole system of justice from breaking down because of clogged courts.

I am ready to hope that probation supervised could be much more rehabilitative than jail or prison terms.

To make such a program effective a greatly expanded force of probation officers will be required.

May we now have a report on plans for reasonable case loads to make counseling an effective tool of rehabilitation?

In other words give us some assurance that these offenders are not "on the loose" to offend the local community again.

Cannot Understand Editorial Conclusion

Re: your Proposition 19 editorial (Oct. 19). How can you in good conscience and in the same paragraph speak of the repeal of Prohibition and the defeat of Proposition 19? You mentioned nothing about the moral issue surrounding marijuana only your concern over the lack of controls on the sale of "bootleg" marijuana.

May I presume then that you oppose this proposition only because the sale of this marijuana would not be taxed therefore eliminating extra revenues for the state. On the contrary my friends, it is you who is lacking in merit. Vote yes on Proposition 19 and take another question of public morals out of the hands of government.

THE NEEDLE

On Daylight Wasting Day citizens are supposed to waste that hour of daylight they saved last April.

If this confuses you, Washington has experts who can show you how to waste time.

How you reset the hour hand determines whether you end up with a well-adjusted timepiece or a cuckoo clock.

McGovern complains that Republican spies keep trying to fix his clock by bugging all his calendars.

Daylight is like money. The government lets you save if for a few months, then takes it away from you.

Just Think! What If There Were A Few Other Zimbalists

WASHINGTON — Zimbalist phoned me at 11 o'clock the other night. "I have to see you right away," he said nervously.

"What is it, Zimbalist?"

"I can't tell you on the phone. Please see me. I beg of you."

"All right, come over," I said.

TWENTY MINUTES later a haggard and distraught Zimbalist arrived at the front door. "Where can we talk privately?" he demanded.

"Anywhere. There's nobody in the house."

He looked over at my wife and asked, "Can she be trusted?"

"She's my wife, Zimbalist," I said. "She's like one of the family."

"I'm sorry," he said. "I'm a nervous wreck. I'm going out of my mind."

We took him into the library. "Tell us about it," I said soothingly.

HE SIPPED hot coffee. "It happened three days ago. I was walking down the street when this man came up to me. In one hand he was holding a clipboard and in his other hand a pen. He said he was a Lou Harris pollster and asked if I would mind answering a few questions. I wasn't thinking, so I said I would. First he asked me my name, then my age, my religion, my income bracket and finally he asked me who I was going to vote for on Nov. 7. I told him Nixon."

"There's nothing wrong with that," I said.

Zimbalist put his head in his hands.

"I lied. I'm really going to vote for McGovern."

"YOU LIED to a Lou Harris pollster?" my wife asked in dibelief.

Zimbalist looked at her, tears welling in his eyes, "I didn't mean to," he said, "but I didn't know who the guy was. He could have been from the Committee for the Re-Election of the President or he could have been working for the White House. I was scared, I'll admit it. I just blurted out Nixon without thinking.

"But I represent 500,000 votes. Now Lou Harris thinks everyone in my age, religion and income bracket is going to vote for Nixon. It could throw off his whole poll by 5 per cent."

"I never thought of that," I said.

"For the last few days I've been going crazy," Zimbalist sobbed.

"I've been thinking about turning myself in. But if word got out that I lied to a Lou Harris pollster it could destroy me professionally. I have to think of my wife and the children.

"What am I going to do? What am I going to do?" Zimbalit moaned, rocking back and forth in his chair.

"LOOK," I SAID, "I think the best thing to do is make a clean breast of things. We'll call Lou Harris in the morning and tell him you made a mistake. We'll say you were temporarily insane and didn't know what you were doing. Maybe he won't press charges. Lou Harris may be a pollster, but he does have a heart."

Zimbalist, a shaken man, grasped my hand gratefully. "I don't know how to thank you," he said. "I'll never forget this."

After he left, my wife said to me, "I don't know if you should get involved in this or not. They might blame you."

"I have to do it. If I had lied to a Lou Harris pollster I'm sure Zimbalist would have done it for me."

Campaign Leaves Too Many Important Questions Unanswered

The most irksome aspect of this presidential campaign is what we do not know.

We do not know whether there will be a peace agreement in Vietnam. We do not know how much of the ceaseless flying and talking of Henry Kissinger is really credible, serious negotiation. We can assume that much of it is, or the Hanoi delegates would have refused to keep on talking.

It is conceivable that these efforts reflect great credit on the Nixon administration and should be given high marks by the voters on Nov. 7. It is also conceivable that they include missed opportunities and stubborn failures for which the administration should be penalized.

WE KNOW VERY little indeed about the allegedly unethical, possibly illegal, and certainly clandestine activities on behalf of the Nixon campaign. We know that certain individuals, some of them formerly connected with the White House and the Nixon campaign committee, were discovered in the Democratic headquarters and are under indictment.

We can ssume as fact, it seems to me, the telephone records and sworn statements connecting one Donald H. Segretti with the White House and other Republican campaign people. What do they mean? We cannot be sure. In addition, enterprise of the New York Times also has uncovered telephone calls between the same individual and the McGovern headquarters in California. What was really going on? We do not know.

There also is a lot that needs unscrambling, and has not been clarified, concerning the last-minute relations of the White House to important legislation that has fallen by the wayside in the final hectic days of the 92nd Congress. Who is really responsible for the lamentable failure of welfare reform? Some believe the President did not support his own admirable proposals strongly enough. But it was the Senate that refused to pass a reform measure. It is difficult and confusing to allocate precise responsibility.

Similarly, in the last-minute failure of the House to pass the highway bill, with its important component of aid to mass transit, was it White Huse intervention through a Republican congressman demanding a quorum that killed the bill? Who was responsible, the White House or the two-thirds of Congressmen who had already fled to the campaign trail?

THESE ISSUES are partly matters of fact and partly matters of opinion. In evaluating them, public opinion thus far has seemed to give President Nixon the benefit of the doubt. It is assumed that his efforts to achieve peace in Vietnam, despite nearly four years in office and a fantastically high level of air bombing, are credible and well-directed. This, despite the fact that practically nothing has been disclosed about the Kissinger negotiations. It is readily understandable that such delicate talks have to take place in private. But until the veil is lifted, the public would be justified in reserving judgment.

The campaign rhetoric, thus far — and it is getting late — has included little careful substantive presentation and analysis of basic policies. Senator McGovern's Vietnam position has been explicitly explained, opening the way to valid controversy. The administration position has also been explained, but as of now the public cannot be quite sure just what terms the administration is prepared to accept. Just what is the nature of the pressures being applied to Saigon's President Thieu? We do not know.

The whole area of fiscal policy is very unclear on the part of both candidates. President Nixon has issued a flat commitment against raising taxes, but few experts believe it can be kept. To put a price tag on Senator McGovern's domestic proposals is almost beyond the capacity of the statisticians. The voters are left in the dark.

This is not the way great issues ought to be presented in a democracy. Elections should not be decided on personalities, or on the underlying mood of the people. But that's how it is in 1972.

STROUT IN WASHINGTON

Memories Of 1948 Haunt Closing Weeks Of Campaign

By RICHARD L. STROUT

WASHINGTON — In 1948 pundits and pollsters informed the American voters they were going into the polling booths and would elect Thomas E. Dewey.

The electorate went into the polling booths all right and stunned pollsters by electing Harry Truman. They showed voters aren't always predictable and that they like a plucky underdog.

It is a memory that haunts the Committee to Re-Elect the President, but conditions are different today.

GEORGE McGOVERN is an underdog all right; he has only about half the campaign funds of the Republicans, lacks the aura of the incumbent President, and his organization in some states is sketchy.

Senator McGovern also is a game campaigner and is criss-crossing the vital states at a rate that would astonish President Truman on his famous three-week campaign special chugging cross-country with rear-platform appearances. But from there nearly everything else changes.

In 1948 the underdog was the presidential incumbent, not vice versa; in 1948 the majority of newspaper indorsements was only 4½ to 1 against Truman, whereas today it is 12 to 1 against McGovern according to the trade paper, Editor and Publisher. Above all, the gap in the polls today is an almost unbelievable 23 percentage points or, in some cases, 2-to-1. No man in history has ever been elected who trailed so badly in the home stretch.

How does this affect George McGovern? "I shall be elected," he declares with a confidence that makes accompanying reporters pinch themselves.

NOBODY QUITE like George McGovern has been nominated by a presidential convention in a long time, if ever. The first thought is of Vermont-born Calvin Coolidge, but he was conservative, conventional, and with no great sense of mission.

Mr. McGovern, as reporters are coming to know him, is a moralist with a feeling that many great issues like Vietnam can be reduced into elementary terms of right and wrong. Under these circumstances his candor sometimes seems to trip over itself, as when he first proposed a $1,000-per-person grant and then agreed that it was not so good an idea after all, or when he first supported Sen. Thomas Eagleton "1,000 per cent" in the vice-presidential fiasco, only to let him go a week later. (One explanation is that Mr. McGovern was trying to spare Mr. Eagleton.)

Now in the home stretch there are random signs that Mr. McGovern is cutting down the Republican lead.

Republicans are confident they are going to get a landslide, but there are some problems in managing even a landslide. One is that Nixon support, although widespread, seems to be shallow; there are an unusual number of "not decideds" in polls, and the assembblyline worker is cited who says he will vote for Mr. Nixon but still calls him "Tricky Dick".

Mr. Nixon has kept above the battle, and while this is probably politically effective, it does give Mr. McGovern a basis for attack, and leaves the issues vage.

THE PUBLIC SEEMS to feel they know the isuues. To mention only two: Mr. Nixon would give first emphasis to fighting inflation, Mr. McGovern to unemployment; Mr. Nixon is budgeting for more defense spending, Mr. McGovern would slash it.

In the final days, Mr. McGovern has finally centered on two issues which give his moralistic approach fullest scope: the war issue, and the so-called corruption issue centering around the White House.

Mr. McGovern is using sharper language and hitting harder. He has shifted from calling the Nixon administration "corrupt" to the judgment that it is "evil" is the sense that it has permitted the Vietnam War to continue for four years. Mr. McGovern's dedication to peace seems hardly in doubt.

Would the quick ending of the war aid him or injure him? Reporters asked Mr. McGovern after he had concluded a Milwaukee political broadcast. With mildness that characterizes him, and without raising his voice, Mr. McGovern simply said, "The point is that I don't give a damn".

Rural Wyoming Community Catches Flavor Of Election

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series by United Press International on issues and candidates in the 1972 election. This article on Torrington, Wyo., attempts to catch the flavor and feelings of rural America as the campaign heads into the homestretch.)

By PETER KELLY

TORRINGTON, Wyo. (UPI)— Rep. Teno Roncalio had finished a traditional campaign lunch of roast beef before Roger Courtney introduced him to the after-church crowd in the stuffy dining room. When he began talking, Roncalio wasted no time dealing with the Democratic presidential nominee, Sen. George McGovern.

"I don't care whether you vote for McGovern for president or not," said Roncalio above the voice of a farmer two tables away talking about his sugar beet crop. "But for heaven's sake, vote for me.

"If you can't vote for McGovern, don't alienate the whole ticket."

Roncalio, a Democrat and Wyoming's only House member, wasn't talking treason. He was talking political survival. Many Democrats in Torrington this election year say they will vote for Richard Nixon. And they say their choice is between a President they dislike and a man they don't trust.

The significance to Roncalio of the erosion is not that the town will go for Nixon but that Democrats, always a minority in Torrington's 10 precincts, are losing traditional solidarity over McGovern's candidacy.

The result could be disastrous to Roncalio. He is seeking his third House term in a predominantly Republican state that he won by only 602 votes in 1970 after a recount.

When Roncalio, 56, ended his talk in the restaurant run by a former deputy sheriff, Courtney had Twila Douthitt take a picture for the twice-weekly Torrington Telegram newspaper.

"Hey, Twila, who are you going to vote for?" asked Courtney, Democratic chairman for Goshen County, Wyo.

"I haven't even registered yet," she replied. "I really don't know."

Three days later, she walked to the white marble courthouse and registered as a Democrat. She said, however, she will vote for Nixon.

"It's kind of a question of the lesser of two evils," she said.

The Burlington & Northern Railway freight trains whistle through Torrington three times a day. The trains flash south of the Little Moon Supper Club on the Nebraska border eight miles east of town, then parallel the Oregon Trail past acres of frost-withered cornstalks that will be used for silage, and past the bare, brown fields now harvested of sugar beets.

It has been a good year for Torrington. Most crops came in at a profit. The Trailblazers have a chance for another Absaroka Conference high school football title. Cattle prices are high despite Nixon's lifting of beef import quotas.

In the past two weeks, late ripening tomatoes have been picked and canned. Halloween pumpkins and jugs of apple cider have appeared on front porches and snow skies of deep blue have started to stretch across the valley. The wind is colder and so are hopes of McGovern supporters.

Disaffection among backers of Sen. Hubert Humphrey in 1968 who say they will not vote for McGovern appears firm. They talk with bitterness about the future of the party if McGovern is elected. There is apathy among first-time voters at the junior college. McGovern has failed to excite students as Robert Kennedy did four years ago.

No one single issue—not the Watergate bugging, not the wheat sale to Russia, not Vietnam—has yet blossomed to unite Democrats for McGovern, despite Courtney's insistence that he is optimistic about the election. The hottest issue is the local zoning fight he hopes will result in a Democratic county commissioner.

Twila who arrived by bus from Wynnewood, Okla., in July to become news editor of the Telegram, has her apartment walls covered with posters poking fun at Nixon and Spiro Agnew. But, she says, McGovern lost her when he dropped Sen. Thomas Eagleton as a running-mate.

"I started out with McGovern," she said during a break in editing copy for the Telegram's special farm issue. "Then he dropped Eagleton but McGovern should have done some research on him before he picked him."

"I'll vote for Nixon," she said. "I think Nixon has accomplished an amazing amount and I think he should have an opportunity to finish up. I think he's done what he thinks is best."

"There is a strange feeling here," she said, rummaging on her desk for a misplaced photograph. "I think people feel more comfortable with Nixon. People don't like to be uncomfortable."

Torrington's courthouse is east of Main Street, where mini-drag races develop between high school students after Friday night football games. The races usually start at the traffic light north of the American Legion Hall filled with bingo players and stretch two blocks to the Conoco gas station edging the railroad tracks.

County Clerk Leonard Dehl's office is right off the carpeted main hallway of the courthouse, a route used by the six to 12 persons he registers daily for the November election. Dehl, first elected in 1967, says he doubts McGovern will carry Torrington.

"I don't know how he could unless there is a big turnabout in the next few weeks," he said. "Something drastic has to happen. I think it would be pretty near impossible."

Dehl also says he believes that the majority of voters in Torrington already have made up their minds, even though Courtney feels a sudden surge of support will surface for McGovern before Nov. 7.

Nor does Dehl believe that the youth vote will help McGovern, another hope of Courtney's. In the August primary, Dehl says the turnout of first-time voters was minimal.

"This is one of the reasons I'm pessimistic," he said.

The records of past elections that Dehl keeps in a vault in the back of his office also give an indication of trouble for Courtney, who says he is counting on Republican crossover votes. In 1968, the crossover vote occurred in congressional and legislative races. Humphrey lost 8 of the 10 precincts in Torrington.

One precinct split but the one precinct carried by Humphrey in 1968 was the railway depot, where the majority of Mexican-Americans south of Torrington vote. Bill McKenna passes the depot when he goes to the Indian Grill to drink Sanka and drum up support for an antizoning vote next month.

McKenna owns a 140-acre farm two miles west of town where he runs 40 head of cattle. He says he didn't like to see Nixon lower the beef import quota in June, but that cattle prices are still high.

Much of the talking McKenna does about the presidential election occurs at dinner with his wife, Violet, who says she will vote for McGovern because she believes change is good for the country.

"I think she is kind of sitting on the fence," said McKenna, who changed his registration from Democrat to Republican. "I don't know if she's kidding me or not."

McKenna, who also gives flying lessons in a Cessna-150 and does electric work in a corrugated metal Quonset hut next to his house, says he has no confidence in McGovern.

"He switches around," said McKenna. "Everybody knows that. He's too far out for me."

Across town on 22nd Street, Mary McLaughlin watched Cincinnati take its second world series win from Oakland on a new color television set delivered that morning. She decided in September she couldn't vote for McGovern because she didn't trust him.

"I'm not going to change my mind," said Mrs. McLaughlin, who Wyoming's Gov. Stan Hathaway jokingly called a "hard-headed Democrat" when they met downtown the day before.

McGovern, she says, still has not convinced her that he can make a decision and stick to it.

"He can't make up his mind," she said. "He just blows with the wind."

New City In Amazon Basin Represents Dream's Start

NOVO MUNDO, Brazil (UPI) —Two years ago Novo Mundo was little more than a patch of jungle and red soil near the Xingu River, a major tributary of the mighty Amazon.

Today it is a bustling frontier village with 6,000 inhabitants, a hotel, hospital, sawmill, airport and post office. It has long distance telephone service to Rio de Janeiro, Brasilia, Europe and the United States.

Novo Mundo (the name means "new world") is Brazil's first "agropolis," the largest of the new settlements planned for the Transamazon Highway, a road that is designed to eventually link the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans by crossing through the heart of the Amazon basin.

On Sept. 7 of this year, Brazil's President Emilio Garrastazu Medici declared open for traffic the first 776 miles of Transamazon Highway that connects Itaituba on the Tapajos River to Estreito on the Tocantins River. Between these two Amazon towns lies Novo Mundo, about 28 miles from the jungle port of Altamira on the Xingu River.

The pioneers who built Novo Mundo faced insects, loneliness, and diseases. Occasionally there was need to make friends with a handful of wild Indians who did not retreat immediately into the bush like most of the others.

Today there are new hazards of the frontier. The colonist crossing the street in Novo Mundo must look both ways to avoid getting run over by a truck. To get a loan or borrow machinery, he must contend with a thick government bureaucracy—instant made for the conquest of the Amazon.

Novo Mundo has its own form of "air pollution," the thick red dust kicked up in the dry season by wind and vehicles. It burns the eyes, fills the ears, and cakes the hair. Cabins freshly painted white quickly take on the rusty hue of the Amazon soil.

Even social classes have been created instantaneously at Novo Mundo. There are the colonists, who receive a clapboard cabin painted white, an outdoor privy, and 247 acres of land at low prices, with long-term loans, and low interest.

The administrators from the Land Reform Agency (INCRA) form the other social classes. Their dwellings are built of more expensive varnished wood and brick. They have indoor plumbing.

"For every 50 kilometers (30 miles) of the Transamazon Highway we will have one agropolis, and every 8 kilometers (5 miles) we will have an agroville," says Jose Francisco de Moura Cavalcanti, president of INCRA. An "agroville" is a little brother to the agropolis, containing only 50 families.

The military government of President Medici began work on the Transamazon Highway two years ago as a crash program to relieve population pressure on Brazil's overcrowded and impoverished Northeast and open for settlement a near-empty area half the size of the United States.

By the end of his term in office in 1974 Medici expects to finish 3,000 miles of the Transamazon, and link Brazil's Atlantic Coast to the Peruvian border. According to Cavalcanti, by that time there will be 300,000 persons settled along the road.

"The road means nothing without human beings," Cavalcanti said. Many of the colonists are a far cry from the poor "nordestino"—the northeasterner—for whom the road was intended. Many come from prosperous southern Brazil. A few have automobiles, which they leave parked in front of their clapboard cabins.

The government welcomes the richer migrants, most of whom come from President Medici's home state of Rio Grande do Sul, which has one of the highest levels of per capita income and literacy in Brazil.

"We want to make a mix," Cavalcanti said. "The 'gauchos' (people of Rio Grande do Sul) bring skills." He estimated that of the 15,000 families now settled along the Transamazon Highway, about 25 per cent are gauchos, while the others are nordestinos.

Cavalcanti maintains that "only about 15 families" have become disillusioned with the Amazon and gone home. The government gives a subsistence living allowance in cash for the first six months; the second six months the government gives only a minimum ration of rice, beans, and manioc (a root food). After one year, the colonist is on his own.

When Cavalcanti recently drove with a group of foreign newsmen to visit a series of agrovilles in the Altamira area, he was besieged by complaints from colonist at every stop.

Cavalcanti gave little consolation.

"Yes, I know it is hard, but you have to work for the future," was his stock lecture. "The government can help you, but it can not give you everything. You have to work."

At an agroville named Jose Bueno da Silva, Cavalcanti addressed a frontier school teacher as "minha amiga (my friend)."

"But you are not my friend," shot back 23-year-old Orfila Xavier, one of the migrants from Rio Grande do Sul. Both her children were sick. She had not received her salary for three months because of a feud between INCRA and the Education Ministry over who should provide the funds.

"This is the end of the world," she said, pointing to the agroville.

"According to Agriculture Minister Luiz Fernando Cirne Lima, in the Novo Mundo area yields of rice, corn, beans, and manioc in the first year have been "above the national average." Colonists will be encouraged to plant commercial crops—sugar cane, cacao, pepper, and coffee—once the region becomes self-sufficient in food, he said.

He sees the Amazon eventually as a great world beef producer, with its vast area turned over to the grazing of insect-resistant Zebu (Brahma) breeds of cattle.

"We think there is a sufficient world demand for medium-grade beef," Lima said. "The port of Belem (at the mouth of the Amazon River) will be Brazil's center of beef exports."

When does this start?

"Next year," Lima said. "Belem will begin shipping medium grade beef to the Caribbean in 1973."

A BREAKTHROUGH — A motor caravan makes its way following the opening of the first stretch of the Transamazon Highway — a road that is designed to eventually link the Atlantic and Pacific oceans by crossing through the heart of the Amazon Basin. Located on this stretch in Brazil is Novo Mundo, largest of the new settlements planned for the highway.

OUTLOOK IN BRITAIN

Economy Policy Going Through Giant Change

By JOHN ALLAN MAY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

LONDON — The British economy today is worth close study.

It represents an advanced mixed economy at a moment of genuine crisis. The word "crisis" is used here not in its doom-laden sense but in the sense of "basic and crucial change."

The country is very close to achieving a breakthrough to prosperity. The growth rate of gross domestic product is running at close to 5 per cent, twice the rate achieved for any period of years since well before World War II.

But there are a number of critical questions to be resolved about this rapid growth rate.

To what extent is it shared by different sectors of the economy, different industries, and different elements in the population?

To what extent is it inflation-powered growth?

To what extent is it a mercurial growth and to what extent can it be stabilized?

The government's current economic policy has three main aims: to sustain this growth, to reduce unemployment, and to moderate the present inflation.

The true rate of inflation probably is 50 per cent greater than the government yet admits. With wholesale prices rising, larger increases in food prices still to come, and value-added tax being introduced early next year —to say nothing of a general rate of rise of wage increases in the past 12 months of close to 10 per cent — the expected rise is not the 5.75 per cent spoken of by Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber but rather 8 per cent of 9 per cent.

Some of the impetus toward inflation will be absorbed by rapidly increasing productivity. Otherwise the expected inflation would be about 12 per cent.

To achieve its policy aims the government proposes a year of voluntary pay and price restraint, based on a nationwide understanding of the critical nature of the problem.

A flat-rate limit to pay increases of $5 a week for 12 months is one proposal.

Cautious, and possibly belated moves are being made to moderate the rate of rise of the supply of money at the same time. Earlier this year that rate ran as high as 80 per cent.

There is a central dilemma: If the prices are set too low and wages too high, there will be a fall in profit margins and probably a slower rate of economic growth.

But if prices are set too high and wages too low, there will be little growth in consumers' real income. This will affect confidence. And that, too, will be reflected in a slower rate of investment.

Simon and Coates, a leading brokerage firm on the London stock market, noting this central dilemma, remarks that with the rate of productivity growth running above 8 per cent it should not prove impossible to strike a fair balance "if a consensus can be achieved on the political front."

This emphasizes the truly crucial nature of the questions posed earlier.

It may very well be that for the great majority of people in Britain the recent rapid growth rate is indeed more a statistical phenomenon than an everyday experience.

The Treasury declares that real disposable income up to the half-year had risen on average 3 per cent in 12 months. The average, however, masks wide disparities in personal experience.

From detailed figures of the spread of national income one would deduce that more than half the population may have experienced a fall rather than a rise in real income.

This certainly is true for most of the unemployed, now numbering about one million.

Simon and Coates notes that in spite of a steady improvement in corporate profits (up 17.5 per cent) and the prospect of sustained 5 per cent overall economic growth, "many manufacturers still appear unconvinced as to the permanence of the improving demand situation."

In manufacturing, the firm adds, the consumer boom still has to be experienced anyway. So the prospects of reducing the high rate of unemployment are not as good as they ought to be.

This is only one clear indication of the uneven nature of Great Britain's "near prosperity."

It is the service industries that are growing fastest. And it is there and in the professions, and among the ranks of company executives, that incomes are rising fastest.

"Invisible exports" now provide Great Britain with a payments surplus of nearly $2.5 billion a year. Nobody would therefore argue that this prosperous sector is a burden on the economy.

However, as a factor in the uneven spread of prosperity it is becoming of greatly increased importance.

There has been a huge surge upward in prices of farmland here. Higher agricultural prices may be one factor in that surge. But they are not the main one. That more probable one is the effect of a great increase in money supply to business and individuals in one particular sector of the economy. An unnatural increase in demand meets the natural fact that the supply of land is restricted. Up go land prices.

It is probably this huge increase in money supply to a single sector that also accounts for the rapid rise in house prices, particularly in the favorite suburbs.

A three-bedroom house on a quarter-acre plot in London's "green belt" that 10 years ago cost $20,000 may cost $80,000 or more today.

Barber declares that this sort of thing, and the size of the incomes made by many traders and businessmen, are "the result of inflation — not the cause of it."

This Week In The World

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

With four words spoken by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger—"peace is at hand" —the White House this week confirmed reports of recent weeks that a breakthrough toward ending the Vietnam War had been made.

Kissinger said all that stands between final agreement is one more meeting with North Vietnam. North Vietnam "must know now that peace is in reach within a matter of weeks or less, dependent on when the meeting takes place," Kissinger said.

Some details remain to be worked out and the United States will not be hastened into signing despite a deadline of Oct. 31 set by North Vietnam, he said.

The agreement outlined by Kissinger provides that all prisoners of war are to be exchanged within 60 days of signing and allied troops will leave Vietnam in the same period.

President Nixon called the possible agreement "peace with honor and not surrender."

His Democratic opponent, Sen. George S. McGovern, said if peace is achieved he would give the administration "full support and cooperation." But he said if peace does come, students and political leaders who have opposed the war deserve the credit.

The fighting in Vietnam showed no signs of letting up with the announcement. The Communists escalated the fighting to the most intense level in more than five years, even surpassing the attacks of the 1968 Tet offensive, according to military spokesmen.

Around The World, Around The Clock

STAMFORD, Conn.—Jackie Robinson, the first black man to play major league baseball, died of a heart attack at the age of 53.

STOCKHOLM — The Nobel Prize for economics was awarded to Professor Kenneth J. Arrow of Harvard University and Professor John R. Hicks of Oxford. They were cited for contributions "to general economic equilibrium theory and welfare theory."

SEOUL — The South Korean government proposed a new constitution to allow President Park Chung-hee to run for reelection and weaken the powers of Parliament.

SANTIAGO — President Salvador Allende negotiated with strike leaders, but made little progress toward ending a series of businessmen's strikes that brought Chile close to civil war.

TEL AVIV — Israeli postal workers intercepted booby-trapped letters addressed to President Nixon and members of his cabinet. Israeli officials theorized the bombs were sent by Arabs in Israel.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon, in a Veterans Day address, said he would not dishonor returning Vietnam veterans by offering amnesty to draft dodgers or deserters.

PRINCETON, N. J.—The latest Gallup poll gave President Nixon a 59 per cent to 36 per cent margin over Sen. George McGovern—a two per cent gain for McGovern since the previous poll.

WASHINGTON — The Air Force dropped all charges against Maj. Gen. John D. Lavelle, who was removed from command after a series of unauthorized bombing raids over North Vietnam. The "interests of discipline" had been served, the Air Force said.

CHICAGO — State's Attorney Edward V. Hanrahan and 13 codefendants were acquitted of charges of conspiring to obstruct justice by hampering the prosecution of policemen involved in a raid on Black Panthers. Judge Philip J. Romiti ruled the prosecution had presented no case.

NEW YORK — Seven prisoners escaped by sawing through fourth floor bars in the Manhattan House of Detention, known as the Tombs. All but three were recaptured. It was the Tombs' first escape since it opened more than 30 years ago.

GREENWICH, Conn. — At least three persons, and possibly as many as 11, contracted polio at a school operated by the Christian Scientist Church which does not believe in inoculations. However, an inoculation program began after discovery of the disease and school authorities said they would follow the law.

STRATFORD, Conn.—Igor I. Sikorsky, the aviation pioneer who developed the helicopter, died of a heart attack. He was 83.

NEW YORK — Norman Norell, the dean of U.S. fashion designers, died at the age of 72 after suffering a stroke.

CINCINNATI — The Oakland Athletics won the World Series by defeating the Cincinnati Reds, 3-2, in the seventh game. Gene Tenace of the A's was voted most valuable playr of the series.

Harvesting Pumpkins At Home Is Fun

Novato Crop Is Plentiful

Traditionally Halloween is a time for candy, costumes, apple bobbing, trick or treating, pranks and happy parties for youngsters across America. But for many Marin youngsters, including the children in four Novato families, it's a time to harvest backyard pumpkin patches.

The home grown pumpkins will be sold, shared, entered in festivals or contests or kept for family use. But undoubtedly all will be carved into grimacing, grinning or grotesque Jack-o-lanterns for the delight of all making merry next Tuesday night.

MANY of Marin's pumpkins were judged for size, shape and best carving at today's second Festival of the Great Pumpkin staged by the Novato Jets 4-H Club of Novato.

Eight of the squashes competing in the contest were raised by the three daughters and three sons of Gerald and Nancy Gauer of 2358 Dominic Drive, Novato.

Mrs. Gauer, an energetic and robust mother who "likes to keep busy" organized the first Great Pumpkin Festival two years ago as a fund raiser for the Jets. She was chairman of this year's event.

(For the last two years she has also been chairman of the Novato Jets county wide parade held in downtown Novato during the first week in October to commemorate National 4-H Week.)

An enthusiastic 4-H mother who this year plans on teaching sewing, cooking and other skills in her home, she believes family participation in 4-H work helps to keep children out of trouble — "you don't find 4-H kids becoming juvenile delinquents."

Her daughters, all Novato Jets and busy with dog care, sewing and cooking projects, include Lori, 16, a 4-H junior leader and last year's president of the Jets; Lisa, 13, and Linda, 11.

Son, Gerry, 8, a third grader at the Pleasant Valley School, will soon follow his sisters into 4-H. The family is rounded out with tow headed Christopher, 4, and curly haired Anthony, 2.

The pumpkin festival was a natural brain child for this mother who maintains "every holiday is a big thing for us. The only one we don't celebrate in a big way is ground hog day."

EVERY October the Gauers drive to Sebastopol to buy a giant pumpkin weighing anywhere from 75 to 100 pounds.

The children's backyard patch was planted "last March or April" with the seeds from last year's giant pumpkin.

At the first Jets sponsored festival two years ago, the Gauers' 75-pound pumpkin carved into a cigar chomping clown won first prize for decorating and carving.

Last year when the Jets didn't hold a festival, the family entered a pumpkin contest in Corte Madera walking away with $55 in prize money that was used to take the family on a trip.

WINNING prizes is a common thing for the family. Their fireplace wall is covered with ribbons of all colors; 4-H achievement certificates and even the medals won by Gerald Gauer, a Western Electric supervisor in San Francisco, as an all state high school football player in South Dakota.

(Gauer is planning to soon become a Pop Warner coach to be ready when his sons are old enough to join the league.)

Not "liking store bought goodies," Mrs. Gauer works far into the night sewing clothing and elaborate costumes for her youngsters.

For the last three years the family that works and plays together has taken top awards and prizes at the annual San Marin Improvement Association halloween parade that is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon in San Marin.

TWO YEARS ago attired in Medieval finery that included a giant green dragon suit, knight's array and the family pony, Milton, draped in a skirt (all painstakingly designed and made by Nancy Gauer and her daughters) the family won first prize at the parade.

Last year dressed in blue and pink polka dotted elephant suits the Gauers again were top winners.

When asked what the family was planning this year Mrs. Gauer confidently replied "that's a secret."

But one thing is for sure, the Gauer children dressed in their new costumes will be ringing doorbells as they trick or treat next Tuesday night.

SPRING pumpkin planting was also a family affair for the four youngsters of Peter and Darlene La Dow who have been faithfully tending a large patch in a bed bordering the family's newly built swimming pool.

Using a scientific approach the youngsters — Craig, 15; Laura, 14; Jeff, 12 and Michael, 11 — planted their seeds exactly 128 days before Halloween.

The bountiful crop "is too personal to sell," explained the youthful Mrs. La Dow. Instead it will be "shared with friends and neighbors" and made into such delicacies as pumpkin breads for the family.

Sharing is a way of life for the La Dows who for the last four years have worked together to remodel and restore a rustic house sitting in a small pine forest at 793 Eucalyptus Drive.

Years ago the family who has always wanted "more children" started opening their home to teenagers who temporarily needed a family to call their own.

THIS FALL they acquired their "first legal foster child," Henry, an active, brown eyed, 6-year-old Indian boy who Mrs. La Dow said she hopes to have "for a very long time."

The country oriented family, which grows its own vegetables, keeps five chickens (including "four losers" who refuse to lay eggs); four horses — two family pets and two boarders; two dogs named Molly and Holly and Chester, a free roaming duck, "pull together to keep things going."

Four years ago when it came time to begin repairing the ramshackle house the family bought because they "loved its beautiful and peaceful setting" the youngsters worked right along side their parents improving the property.

TEARING down old chicken coops the youngsters used wire brushes to scrub and clean the wood that was used to refloor and panel the house.

Mrs. La Dow, a short story writer, has taken a leave from her writing, to help her husband, an independent dealer for the Independent-Journal, finish the remodeling project. She draws up her husband's designs.

Two years ago, with help from friends and neighbor children, a spacious cathedral ceilinged living room and adjoining upstairs ("we had to learn to make the stairs, Mrs. La Dow remembered) master bedroom and studio were added onto the house.

(During the three month building period the family "lived outside under the stars." The day the last nail was driven and the La Dows moved inside, "it started to rain and poured for days," Mrs. La Dow recalled.)

This year the family that enjoys doing things together pitched in to help install a large blue and green tiled swimming pool that borders the family's pumpkin patch.

THE CROP IS in at the pumpkin patch at the Gerald Gauer home, 2358 Dominic Drive, Novato, where four-year-old Christopher Gauer and 16-year-old Lisa Gauer tend the pumpkins. The backyard patch was planted last spring with seeds from a giant pumpkin the Gauers bought last year.

NEXT TUESDAY, as in years before, parents and children will celebrate Halloween with an informal and impromptu party that keeps the youngsters "safe and off the streets."

There will be the traditional games, apple bobbing and donuts to eat and a very excited and enthusiastic 6-year-old boy having his first Halloween with his new found family.

Ten-year old Eric Jensvold, a fifth grader at the Lu Sutton School, planted his first pumpkin patch last spring as his first venture into business.

The tow-headed youngster plans on selling four of his five squash crop to neighbors keeping one, the best, to enter in today's pumpkin festival.

Eric planted three seeds in a planting ed alongside the family home at 1963 Indian Valley Road. The seeds produced six pumpkins but unfortunately one was lost to a hungry deer.

ON THE advice of his father, Donald M. Jensvold (who grows a spectacular vegetable garden at the rear of the property) Eric dutifully watered his crop twice a week ("getting mud on my shoes") and placed boards under the pumpkins so "the bottoms don't rot."

Playing flag football for the first time this year, the young pumpkin grower also belongs to Cub Scout Pack 58 and daily rides and cares for a pet pony stabled at the family's small ranch.

He also helps tend the family's three chickens and two young calves that are being raised for table use. The boy who thinks someday he may become a rancher is followed everywhere by his dog, Fred.

Pumpkin growing is also a business venture for 14-year-old Stephanie (Stevie) Haught who has close to 50 of the brightly colored squash growing in her mother's vegetable garden.

Last year the curly haired, lively eyed youngster planted three seeds in 12 holes in her backyard at 724 Bradley Avenue. The pumpkins came up spreading over the entire garden and Stevie sold her crop for 5 cents a pound.

THIS YEAR forsaking pumpkins in favor of sunflowers (the seeds are one of her favorite foods but the acquisition of teeth braces will prevent her enjoying them) she was surprised when the pumpkins came back "killing beets, carrots, lettuce and pulling down the green beans" in her mother, Mae Haught's garden.

Stevie, who works Saturdays helping her father Walter O. Haught at the Dairymen's Milling Co. in Novato, plans selling this year's crop at work.

A five-year member of the Novato Stars 4-H Club, Stevie plans to start raising guide dogs for the blind this year. Her sister, Katie, 18, a longtime 4-H

For all of Marin's young pumpkin growers, Halloween should have a special meaning as Jack-o-lanterns are lighted across the county — Tuesday night.

Guitarist Gets 'Stoned' On Music

By DOROTHY GARDINER

The place: The North Carolina School of the Arts. The time: Six years ago.

Classical guitarists from across the country had gathered to play for the greatest guitarist of them all — Maestro Andres Segovia.

Among those assembled were Phillip de Fremery, 20, of San Anselmo and Michael Lorimer, his teacher at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music who had studied with Segovia for seven years and is now a concert guitarist under contract to world famous impressario Sol Hurok.

UNFORTUNATELY some of the youngsters were not prepared to play for "the Maestro," Lorimer, a Berkeley resident recalled recently.

It "was" the "last straw" when exasperated and by this time impatient, Segovia spotted an artificial fingertip on the young de Fremery's music stand, Lorimer remembered.

The Maestro bellowed "this is impossible . . . I don't want to hear this . . ."

But the next day he did listen and as de Fremery made his way back to his seat, Segovia speaking in Spanish (translated by Lorimer) apologized for "reacting so strongly when I hadn't heard . . . you've worked hard . . ."

TWO YEARS later de Fremery was in Spain at Santiago de Compostela working in a Master Class given by Segovia.

de Fremery, now 26, has continued to work hard, practicing from six to eight hours daily, and is beginning his third cross country concert tour that will take him to New York, Houston, Oregon, Montreal, Toronto and Aspen, Colo.

On a recent stopover at the San Anselmo home of his parents, Robert and Susan de Fremery, the dedicated and promising young musician spoke of how it all began.

Eight years ago, during his senior year at Redwood High School, he audited a Segovia Master Class at the Berkeley campus of the University of California.

"That did it," he recalled. After hearing the "best guitarist in the world I knew what I wanted to do."

THE FOLLOWING fall he enrolled at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music and started studying classical guitar.

Beginning with piano lessons at the age 6 he realized music was "something I could do . . . and I liked to perform."

During his years at Redwood High School he toyed with the idea of becoming a professional athlete. He was a long distance runner and pitcher and center fielder on the school's baseball team.

Extending his long tapering fingers, holding out the disfigured one, he added "I probably was too small" for professional ball but my accident "put an end" to it.

BUT THE loss of his finger tip did not stop him from going on with the guitar, an instrument that requires facile use of the fingertips and thumb.

In 1964, during his senior year, he started the independent study of the classical guitar ("I hadn't heard many guitarists before and was very green").

He also started playing folk music with a classmate, Rick Tuel. Using the mane the Balladeers they performed at such spots as the Gas Works in Sausalito.

But music wasn't his only interest at this point. He was sports editor of the Redwood Bark; associate editor of HARCS, a high school Red Cross publication and chief editor for Western Area Notes, a publication he suggested that was sent to high school Red Cross members in nine Western states.

He also helped cover high school sports events for the Independent-Journal.

ASKED IF he might return to writing he answered "there's a chance of it . . . I'm still finding out what I have to say . . . but the guitar is where my creative thrust is right now."

Realizing he was getting a late start in classical guitar and needed to do a "lot of work in a short time," he spent his first year at the Conservatory practicing.

(Michael Lorimer recalled de Fremery as having "old fashioned values" based "on hard work.")

During that busy first year as he sat listening to a young girl student sing Schubert's "Gretchen At the Spinning Wheel" de Fremery, just as at his first encounter with Segovia, realized "that was that."

The next year the girl, Sharon Hayes and de Fremery started "to go around" and during their third year were married.

de Fremery, first winner of a four-year scholarship in the history of the Conservatory, was elected student body president in his second year.

DURING his last two years he was a performing student appearing on the East Coast and in Spain.

Before graduating from the Conservatory in 1968 Phillip and Sharon de Fremery had already become well known in Bay Area music circles.

Mrs. de Fremery, winner of the L. Henry Garland Award at the San Francisco Opera Auditions in both 1967 and 1969, is scheduled to make her Carnegie Hall debut next February in New York. She will sing the C Minor Mass by Mozart under the direction of Robert Wagner.

Before taking a New York apartment about two years ago (That city is "the Grand Central Station for young musicians, the place for them to be, de Fremery explained) the de Fremerys were artists in residence at the San Francisco Theological Seminary.

DURING this time he taught at both the Seminary and Dominican College and became well known as a performer appearing in many local concerts and at San Anselmo's Cafe Ambrosia; Northgate's Holiday Inn and San Rafael's West End Villa.

Dedicated to teaching as well as performing he is now on the faculty at State University of New York at Purchase and is likely to take a position at State University College at Oneonta.

During a tour to Los Angeles this month he was scheduled to conduct Master Classes at Immaculate Heart College and California State College at Fullerton.

Last August he was an assistant teacher to world famous guitarist Oscar Ghiglia at Aspen Music Festival, in Colo-

About CARPETS

By Doug Emerson

CARPET CARE is just about as important in your satisfaction with any carpet you buy as the choice itself. It's a good idea to look in advance for such qualities as crush resistance, cleanability, along with soil and stain resistance.

But the fact remains that soil will accumulate, and stains or spots will occur, no matter what the carpet you have. So here is a 1-2-3 system for getting the most out of your new carpeting.

1. Give the carpet a thorough vacuuming at least once a week. Don't rush the job — long, slow strokes will remove loose soil and dust better. In rooms that get heavy traffic, vacuum oftener.

2. Treat stains or spots at once. Often cold water and a sponge will whisk stains away before they can become imbedded or fixed. A mild detergent solution is effective with many stains.

3. Don't let carpets become too soiled before having them thoroughly cleaned, preferably by a professional carpet cleaner. Carpets would last years longer in many homes if cleaned more often.

Our carpet specialists will help you choose the carpet that you need for heavily trafficked rooms, or for any specific decorating problem. See us for the finest carpet value and selection in town!

Writing Part Of His Past

rado. Next February while making three appearances with Rogue Valley Symphony at Ashland (performing Rodrigo's "Concierto de Aranjuz") he will also conduct Master Classes.

SITTING by a low burning fire in the antique filled living room of his parents' comfortable home, a green sweater draped across the shoulders of his sport jacket, he said his day begins at 6 a.m. when he gets up to practice exercises for about two hours.

This is followed by strenuous "physical exercise" such as "digging" in the garden, "doing and carrying . . . musicians can go crazy just sitting still."

While living in the New York apartment (where he spends about six months of the year) he keeps fit walking, doing "jumping jacks and calisthenics."

This winter he is looking forward to playing table tennis with a new friend found last August in Aspen and to swimming with his wife at an aquatic club.

FOR THE last three years he has limited himself to one meatless meal a day, usually eaten at noon, and claims to have "twice the endurance and half the need for sleep" as in his days as a long distance runner.

His day ends with a practice session that runs from 7 p.m. to midnight or 1 a.m.

Serious, intense and deeply religious, de Fremery who along with his wife frequently attends both Catholic and Protestant services pointed out that religion adds "dimension to our lives . . . God is there, like it or not. We like it; he's a friend."

He added much of his time is spent keeping abreast of what is happening in the world, in "talking with people and in prayer."

It's the spiritual quality of the second movement in Beethoven's Third Symphony that makes it one of his favorites.

MOVING to his family's grand piano, his long fingers began picking out the movement's melody as de Fremery explained that although written as a funeral dirge, the movement actually tells of life progressing from a happy child to adult failure followed by redemption through Divine mercy and grace.

"No one gets off scot free," he said as he returned to his chair in front of the fire. Beethoven has shown that man has not lived in vain.

Mozart, who "stands above them all" is his favorite composer and he regrets that his work "can't be played on the guitar."

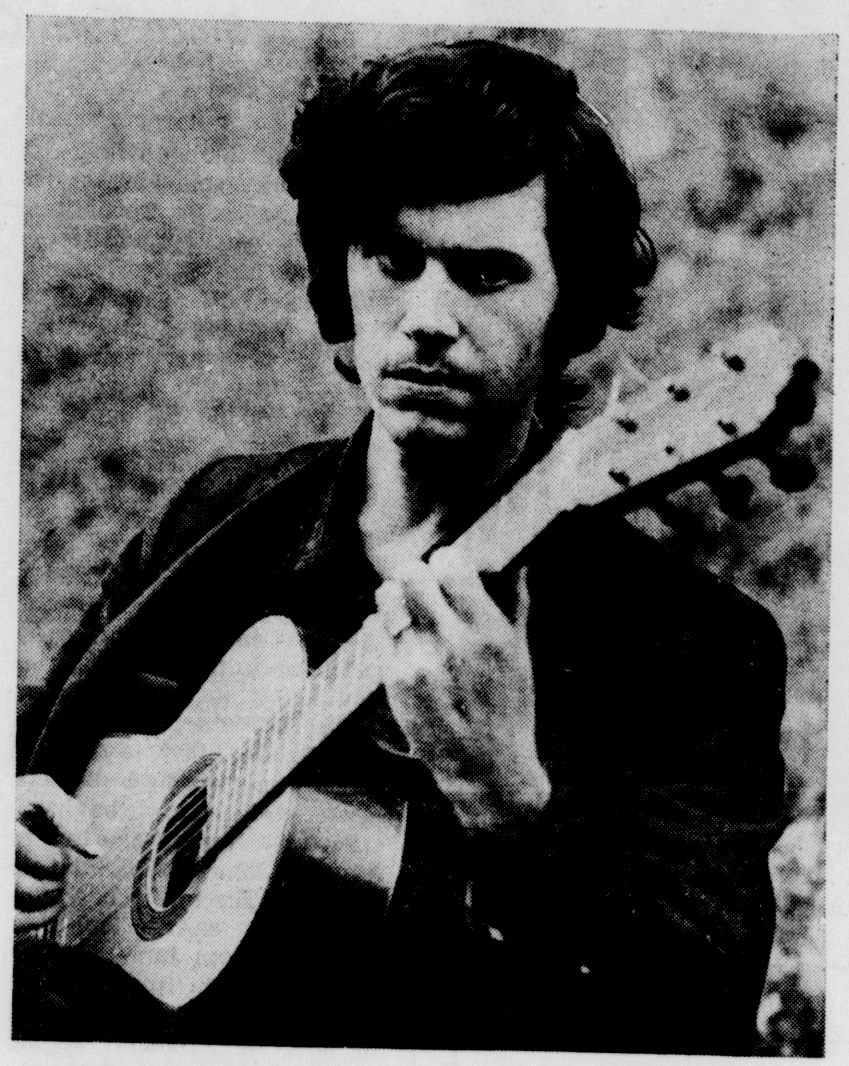

Optimistic about social, political and ecological strides taken in this country during the last 20 years he said today people are in better moods — "their steps bounce down the street and voices bounce as they say have a nice day — and mean it."

PICKING up his guitar (made to order for him by Eugene Clark of Santa Rosa) he noted "there is nothing else like it for me." It's the instrument's "ability to uncover every sound . . . it's palette, tone colors", the young musician explained.

Decrying musicians' use of "liquor and drugs" to achieve a good frame of mind, he said if you "get the right music, you get stoned on that."

The professional music world,

A SPIRITUAL QUALITY is evident in de Fremery, a religious youth who believes that religion adds dimension to his life and spends time in prayer.

Difficult Times In Music World

Less Music In Homes Since Turn Of The Century

in difficult times today with "symphonies going broke; opera companies in trouble and musicians out of work," is on its way to a new age within the next 30 years, he observed.

Since the turn of the century there has been less music in the home where "it should start and not with the teaching of a C Major scale."

Music has long been part of his own family life he describes as "close knit."

A MATERNAL grand aunt, Virginie de Fremery, was well known as an organist and pianist between 1920 and 1950, he said.

(The de Fremery family, Huguenots who fled to Holland from France during a religious persecution, was brought to Oakland a century ago by two brothers, James and William de Fremery. The musician's father, Robert, an economist, is descended from James and his mother, Susan, from William making the parents according to Mrs. de Fremery, second cousins, twice removed.)

Dorothy de Fremery, 20, Phillip's youngest sister is now learning to build a guitar at the Oakland College of Arts and Crafts and another sister, Mary, 22, is studying the instrument under George Sakellariou of San Rafael. She also has attended Master Classes given by Ghiglia at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

Next month following a brief return visit to Marin, he will leave for New York for a reunion with his wife who last month was in France performing at the Ravel Festival.

WHEN together the two hard working young people read together, attend concerts, movies ("if they're good ... some leave you feeling funny") walk and are happy. Sharon is also "quite a cook," he said proudly.

Before leaving for New York early next month de Fremery will perform Wednesday at the Marina Branch of the San Francisco Public Library at Chestnut and Webster streets at 7:30 p.m. On Friday he will give a concert in Alameda and Sunday wind up his Bay Area appearances with a 4:30 p.m. performance at the Bach Dancing and Dynamite Society Auditorium near Half Moon Bay.

As for his future: next fall Phillip and Sharon will embark on a European tour that will have them concertizing in Italy, London, Paris, Holland and London.

Regretting having such a short time back home with family and friends, noting it was "impossible to say" when he would return again, he is looking forward to his teaching ... "continuing to play and keeping in touch with what's going on."

You are invited to a preview showing Sunday from 1 to 5

Wall Hangings from Yucatan

These are woven sisal rugs approximately 3x5 ft. depicting highly stylized Mayan and Aztec motifs. Colorful and sophisticated, they are suitable either as area rugs or wall hangings in many designs.

These handsome, textured rugs are available for the very first time at the extremely low price of

Along with the rugs we have now authentic replicas of the famous "Lehi Stone" dating from 50 B.C.; the Aztec "Ritual of Tlaloc"; and Indian pottery lamp bases.

YUM KAAX (the corn god) Mr. Don Meeker, an authority on the Mexican hangings will be in our store Sunday.

FLAMENCO GUITARIST

CARLOS MONTOYA, world-renowned Flamenco guitarist, started his career accompanying dancers, but in 1948 started full solo recitals in Europe and the United States. He achieved another goal in 1966 when his "Suite Flamenca," a suite for guitar and orchestra, had its world premiere with the St. Louis Symphony. An innovative guitarist with advanced technique, Montoya is considered one of the most exciting artists in the concert world.

'Ned' Dean Eyes Business Need

Former Chamber President Criticizes City Hurdles

If someone asked about Norman E. Dean in Novato, chances are the response would be "who?"

But if he asked about Ned Dean, there wouldn't be any lack of recognition.

Norman E. Dean, 29, owner of Dean-Fry and Associates, business and tax consultants, is a smiling, congenial fellow with an easy manner whose nickname "Ned" fits.

Although he has a relaxed manner, Dean isn't complacent about the business future of Novato, subject of widespread community discussion in recent months.

THE CITY is in the midst of revising its general plan, debate has raged about on-again, off-again plans to form a redevelopment agency and joint civilian-military use at Hamilton Air Force Base has been strongly opposed by residents.

Dean, immediate past president of the Novato Chamber of Commerce sees the potential for Novato while at the same time acknowledging that it is a bedroom community and "the community has shown interest in remaining that way."

Dean said he would welcome "planned and esthetically designed" industry and believed that the city should welcome industry.

"One of the first things an industry considers is if it is welcome," Dean said.

IF RESIDENTS were aware of the tax consequence, they would "generate the welcome mat," he said. Encouraging industry doesn't carry the implication of a "smoke filled" community, he said.

Thousands of cities want industry and if firms feel they are not welcome in Novato, they will locate elsewhere even though Novato was their first choice, Dean said.

At present, he said, businesses and industry are being discouraged by city procedures that make it "improbable or impossible for business . . . going to the planning commission six or seven times . . . a number of businesses have difficulty getting approval on plans."

Dean said the city should have "a more comfortable system for new business," and be more flexible."

ANY MORATORIUM "would be disastrous to the economy," Dean said.

Dean who "bought into" the Novato business firm in 1967 and serves clients throughout the Bay Area and as far as Lake Tahoe, formerly was an accountant with a wholesale distributor in San Francisco for two years.

A native of Madison, Wisc., he studied two years at the University of Wisconsin, moved to California and earned his bachelor's degree in business administration at San Francisco State College.

After he joined the Novato firm, Dean, his wife, Kathy Sandreck, formerly of Tiburon, and two children, Daniel and Richard, moved from Mill Valley to Novato.

NORMAN E. DEAN, past president of the Novato Chamber of Commerce, presents a cheerful countenance across the desk of his Novato office, but beneath the smile is a serious concern about the future of Novato's downtown area and lacking business development in the city.

"The concept isn't true that the homeowners and the business community are in opposition," he said. "I'm a part of both."

ONE OF the major complaints from the community is "a lack of major shopping" facilities, he said. The city is "now living under the Sedway-Cooke plan which eliminates certain types of business in certain areas, and has a utopian concept" of establishing a huge regional shopping center, he said.

"What we need is continued improvement of competing businesses," Dean said. The city doesn't have a fully-developed downtown, but the business community is against having the Sedway-Cooke plan as an absolute, he said.

On the proposal to form a redevelopment agency to bolster downtown development, Dean said, "I have a feeling there has been a lack of information" since the exact area to be redemeloped wasn't set in the proposal.

"I think it would be disastrous to have a redevelopment agency for the purpose of establishing new or improved facilities in an area that wasn't blighted," he said.

Outside of business and civic activities, Dean is active in Young Life, a high school organization, which he said, "emphasizes the simplicity of the gospel — tries to introduce kids to Christ.

Dean, a member of the Young Life county board and one of the leaders of the Novato club, said the "concept is you earn the right to be heard."

Young Life serves about 600 youths in Marin at three clubs, Novato, Central Marin and Southern Marin. Leaders and their wives spend time where the youth are and there are camping trips and club meetings once a week, Dean said.

"To me the benefit is the new principles and concepts of life that maybe he's (youth) never been confronted with before . . . a whole new approach to other people, friends and community and love."

MELITA COOMBS, former Marin resident, a nationally-known artist of oil and pastel portraits, landscapes, seascapes and murals, now living in Las Vegas, is a frequent visitor to Marin where she exhibits her work.

Painters, Sculptor, Photographer

There are probably more artists per capita in Marin than in any other county in the United States.

They come in all ages and sizes and with varying degrees of talent, but it appears there is something in the county's natural beauty that spurs them to create.

From New York, Illinois, Oklahoma and Utah have come four artists, two painters, a sculptor and photographer whose work will be exhibited at the Torrance Galleries in San Anselmo during November and December, living examples that life in Marin stirs creativity.

ONE OF the quartet, Robert Bell of San Rafael, a noted watercolorist, started at the age of 12 when he drew a water scene on a piece of wallpaper with pastel chalks.

Now art director of the Oakland Tribune, Bell was once requested by Hallmark, of greeting card fame, to paint the portrait of his daughter in her wedding gown. Some of his work is now on exhibit at the Kaiser Center Mall.

Andrew Lester of Mill Valley began to sculpt when he was 16 using the red clay of the Oklahoma hills to create his first bust; Davy Crockett, an ancestor. The bust was dedicated at The Alamo in Aug. 17, 1933, and is on display in the Barracks Museum at The Alamo.

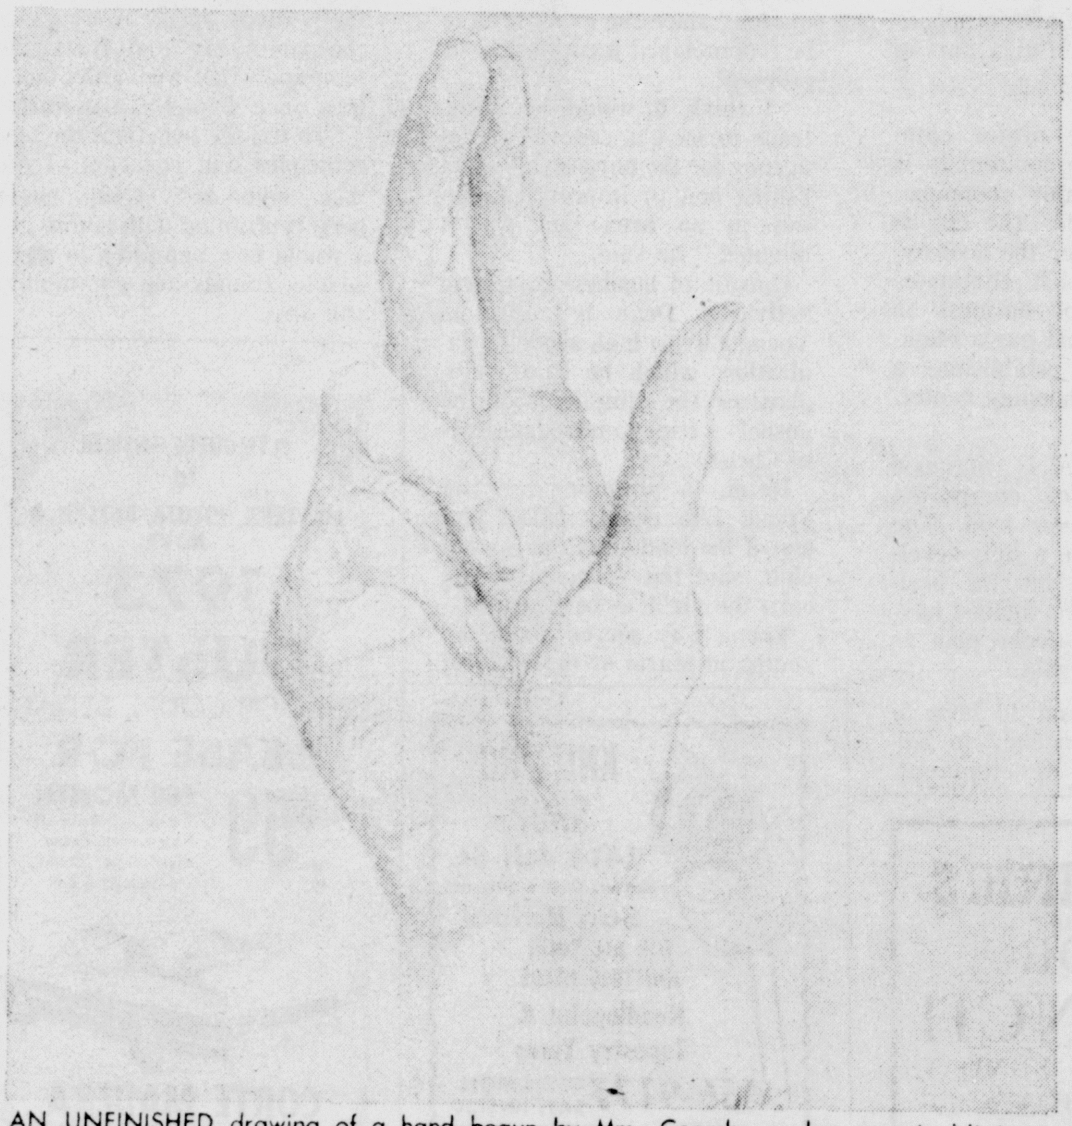

Two of the busts Lester plans to exhibit are of former President Eisenhower and the late Martin Luther King.

ALONG with a career in advertising and publishing, Rita Graves of San Rafael, has fashioned a second career as a portrait photographer.

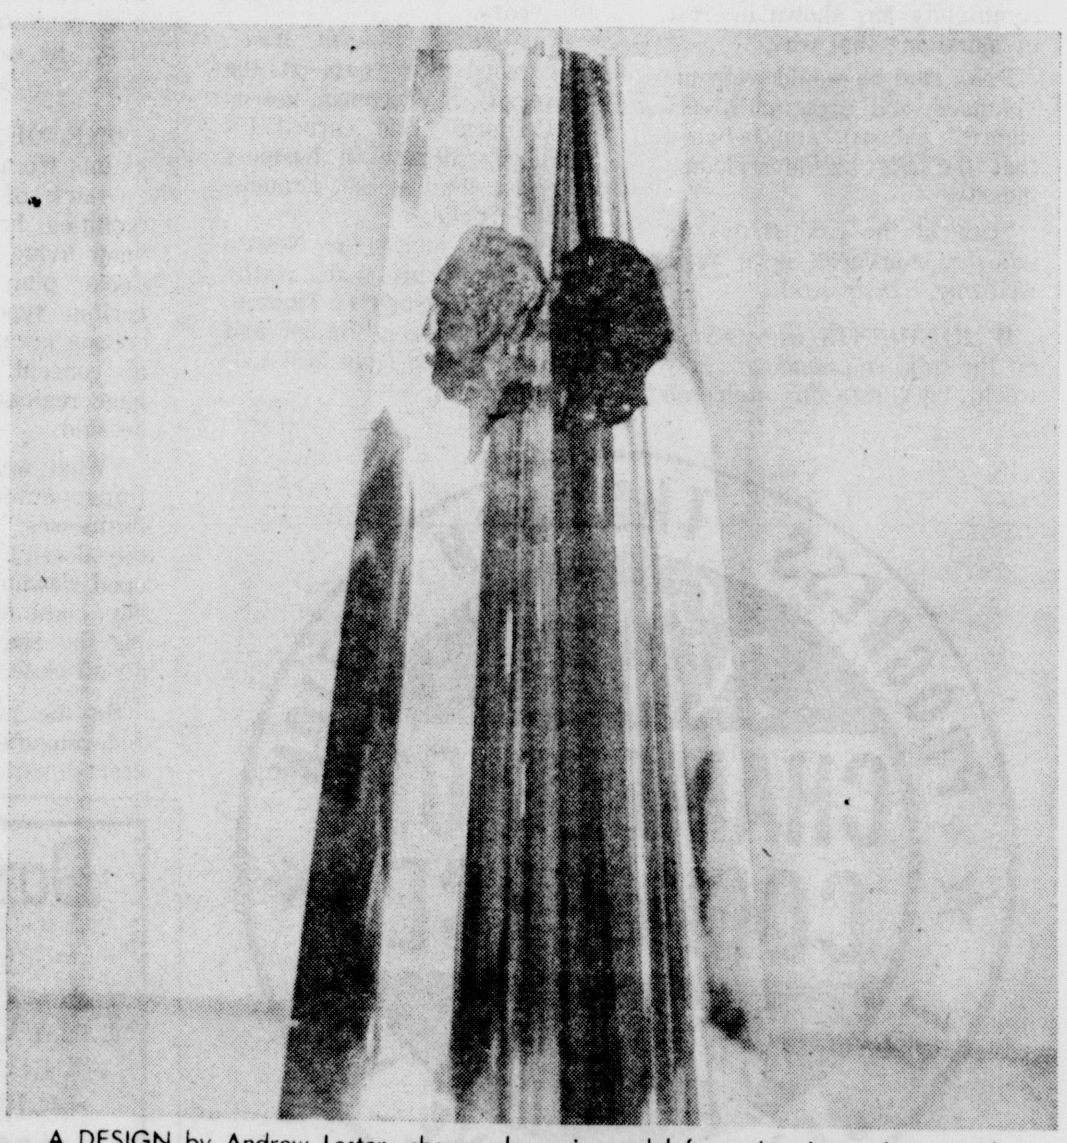

After closing her Tiburon studio in 1963 for a personal business trip, she has returned and is searching for "a jewel of a place which will serve as my studio-residence."

Many of her works are hung,

AN UNFINISHED drawing of a hand begun by Mrs. Coombs on her recent visit to Marin is slated to be finished in time to be on display during her exhibit. Mrs. Coombs has been chosen as one of California's best 100 artists and is National Arts Awards chairman for the National League of American Penwomen.

A DESIGN by Andrew Lester, shown above in model form, has been chosen to honor police officers in San Francisco who gave their lives in the line of duty. The sculpture to be placed in the San Francisco Hall of Justice will be of stainless steel, 10 feet by six feet, with four bronze heads representing the ethnic backgrounds of policemen.

A QUIET SCENE was captured in this photo of Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lamers of Portola Valley, who seems anxious to explore the vast outside world where the sun shines brightly.

in homes in Marin, San Francisco and on the San Francisco Peninsula.

A former Marin resident, who has moved to Las Vegas, but returns frequently to exhibit her work is Melita Coombs, chosen as one of California's 100 best artists.

Mrs. Coombs, who has been an artist since early in her life, said: "My aim in art is to express the realism and idealism of life and to emphasize the good and the beautiful. I look beyond the physical into the higher more spiritual world for interpretation."

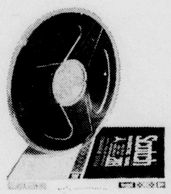

AN OLD BARN at Black Point provided painter Robert Bell with a subject to symbolize morning in Marin, a quiet scene which is a reminder of the county's agricultural past. The work was selected to hang at the Marin County Fair this summer.

OUR THIRD AND FINAL ANNUAL ½ PRICE SALE THIS YEAR

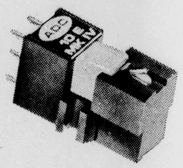

Despite our original intentions of holding our half price sale only once a year, it's turned out to be such a good way of offering you extra savings on complete music systems that we couldn't resist having another one. If there's a next time, we promise not to call it an "annual" sale; that's getting ridiculous. But what isn't ridiculous is the fine array of half price offers we have for you. We're featuring three Nikko receivers for half price when you choose the rest of your system from the components shown here, and we also have some excellent half price offers on individual items. You'll have to come early though, if you see something you want. You never know, it just might be a full year before we can put together another sale like this.

½ PRICE SALE ON SCOTCH DYNARANGE TAPE

We're selling Scotch Dynarange in 1800-foot 7-inch reels for $2.49, which is just under half of our usual $5.05 price. Scotch 203 Dynarange is top quality low noise tape with a polyester backing and you can record 45 minutes in each direction at 7½ inches per second or an hour and a half in each direction at 3¾. You'll certainly want a lot of reels at this price. $2.49

THE SUPERLATIVE ADC 10E MARK IV CARTRIDGE FOR HALF PRICE

It's hard to imagine any better record-playing performance than that afforded by the 10E Mk IV. This superlative elliptical cartridge startled Stereo Review's reporter by passing its tracking test at .4 grams, and at the optimum .7 gram pressure the 10E Mk IV will do a well-nigh perfect job of reproducing everything on your records. And there may be music on your records you've never heard, no matter how good the rest of your stereo system is. That's how much difference a really first class cartridge can make. It's easy to understand why people would cheerfully pay the $50 nationally advertised price for the ADC 10E Mk IV, but you don't have to. At $25 there's little or no reason anyone has to suffer through without one. $25.00

A MIRACORD 630 FOR HALF PRICE

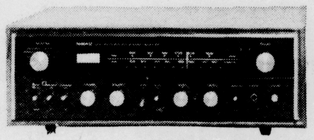

The Miracord 630 is a very fine automatic record player that a lot of people considered a good value at $129.50, the original nationally advertised price. Right now you can get one for half that price if you buy a base and any elliptical cartridge as well.

Miracords are known for their light touch pushbutton operation and their precise cueing mechanism which gently lowers the arm into the exact groove you want. The 630 has an adjustable anti-skate control to keep the needle centered on the groove, preventing distortion and uneven wear. The dynamically balanced tonearm can handle cartridges that track at pressures well below a gram. The heavy weighted turntable is cast and machined for precise balance, and the powerful motor holds the speed steady and unwavering. Pick up a Miracord 630 now for just $64.75

A HALF PRICE OFFER ON QUADRAFLEX'S BEST SPEAKERS

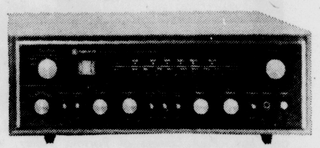

Quadraflex Q66 speakers are full range three-way twelve-inch acoustic suspension systems. They sound absolutely great from low organ pedal notes on up, and it's very hard to understand how Quadraflex was able to come up with such a full range system for a paltry $139.95 each. If you buy one now at that price you can get the second one of the pair for half price. $69.97

A NIKKO RECEIVER FOR HALF PRICE...

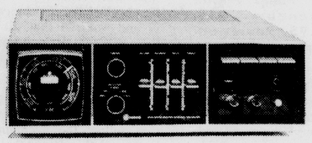

THE NIKKO 6010

Just seeing the name Nikko on a receiver should alert you to look for features and performance you otherwise wouldn't expect to find for the price. And the $200 Nikko 6010 won't disappoint you. It has 30 RMS watts of power and a tuner section that's predictably better than most comparably priced receivers can offer. If you're on cable, you'll get even better reception by using the 75 ohm cable connection that's provided along with the standard 300 ohm connection. There's tape monitoring, connections for two sets of speakers, and a loudness contour switch to compensate for bass loss at low listening levels. High and low filters will cut out any extraneous noises from scratchy records or FM interference. You can see why Nikko is known for value, but "value" is hardly strong enough to describe what you're getting when you can pick up a Nikko 6010 for $99.48. That's even less than half of the manufacturer's $214.95 price. But it's all you have to pay this week if you choose the rest of your music system from the components described below. $99.48

OR THE NIKKO 8010

The only thing that can equal a Nikko for value is another Nikko, so if you want more power consider the Nikko 8010. Its normal price is $254.95, for which you get 40 RMS watts of power, all the features of the Nikko 6010, plus a better tuner and an FM muting switch to provide absolute silence between stations when you're tuning. The FM tuner section's rated sensitivity of 2 microvolts is very good indeed for the price, and you'll get clean, clear reception of even weak stations. Another feature worth mentioning (also found on the 6010) is the circuit breakers used in place of fuses. If you choose a turntable and a pair of speakers from the components shown below, you can get the Nikko 8010 for half price and you'll have a very fine music system for surprisingly little. But you should act fast, because $127.48 is really an awfully small price for the Nikko 8010 and we expect a lot of people will want one. $127.48

FINALLY, NIKKO'S VERY BEST, THE 9010

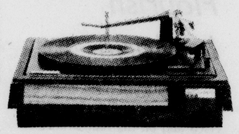

Nikko's best receiver, the 9010, is also their most distinctive looking model. Its futuristic front panel has slider-type controls for volume, balance, bass and treble, while piano-key switches control mode, tape monitor, loudness and FM muting. Naturally, the 9010 has all the features of the 8010, as well as more power (60 RMS watts). The tuner section has still more refinements over the 8010 in every performance characteristic. This Nikko is a good value at its $309.95 nationally advertised price; you'll certainly never find anything to compare with it when you can grab one for $154.98

WHEN YOU CHOOSE A RECORD PLAYER...

The popular Garrard 40B is an outstanding value. It's a totally reliable three-speed record player with a viscous-damped cueing lever to gently put the arm and the ADC 220X cartridge on your records for you during either manual or automatic operation. With this cartridge and the base, the 40B's normal price is $55.90.

The BSR 310 automatic record player is also a fine value at $54.95, including a base and a Shure M75 cartridge. Besides the three standard speeds, the 310 offers the 16 rpm speed for "talking books," and its manual cueing lever makes it awfully hard to scratch a record. There's even an anti-skate control.

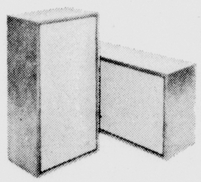

The Garrard SL55B's a three-speed automatic record player with Garrard's Synchro-Lab motor for in tune record playing, a cueing and pause control, fully-adjustable anti-skate control, and a gentle fail-safe record changing mechanism. The price is $70.90 with a base and an ADC 220X cartridge.

Another good choice is the four-speed BSR 510. It also provides you with a synchronous motor and just about everything in the way of record and needle saving devices. Also, it has a full-sized platter for better support for warped records. You get it all for a most reasonable $74.95 including the base and a Shure M75 cartridge.

AND A PAIR OF SPEAKERS.

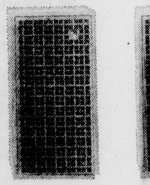

KLH 32 speaker systems sell like gangbusters. One reason is their tiny $99.90 a pair price and another is that they sound awfully good. What's inside is an eight-inch acoustic suspension bass speaker and a two-inch treble speaker. What's outside is clean, wide range sound.

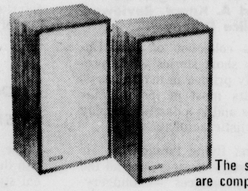

You probably know all about Harman-Kardon's very fine receivers, and you should get to know their speakers too. Harman-Kardon 20's are two-way eight-inch systems in walnut-veneer cabinets with good looking dark basket weave grilles. You'll like their sound and you'll like their most reasonable price of $109.90 a pair.

Quadraflex Q33's are two-way systems in walnut veneer cabinets. Their eight-inch acoustic suspension bass speaker enables them to reproduce big cabinet bass notes and they sound clean and clear no matter what kind of music you like to hear. They sell for $109.90 a pair.

Rectilinear XI speaker systems make it possible to get bass down the bass player's scale and clear, detailed sound for the lowest Rectilinear price there is. They're $159.90 a pair in walnut cabinets with fretwork grills, but you won't believe it when you hear these fine two-way ten-inch systems.

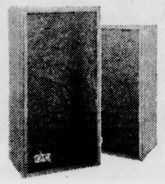

The smaller Advent speakers are compact acoustic suspension two-way systems with an eight-inch bass speaker. They sell for $149.00 a pair in walnut vinyl cabinets, and they reproduce everything there is to hear off records. They're an amazing achievement and you probably won't believe that it's these two compact speakers producing all that sound. But it's them alright.

Quadraflex Q44's sound super good from the bass man's low E on up. They're two-way ten-inch acoustic suspension systems in solidly built walnut grain cabinets. Their low price will surprise you when you hear them: they're surely the best two-way systems you can find for anywhere near $139.90 a pair.

KLH 17 speaker systems are very popular, like all KLH speakers. It's easy to hear why. They're two-way acoustic suspension systems with a ten-inch bass speaker for low bass notes, and their clarity of sound is outstanding. The real surprise is that the price is still so reasonable: $155.90 a pair in walnut.

SUN. 12-6

A WRITTEN NO HASSLE 5 YEAR WARRANTY. You get free parts for 5 years and absolutely free labor for 3 years right at the store where you buy on any complete music system we advertise. What you don't get is the fine print or bunch of exclusions you'll find on almost everyone else's warranty form. Our only exclusion is the needle on the record player. This warranty also can be made available for any system you wish to make up.

60 DAY EXCHANGE PRIVILEGES. If you're not happy with what you bought from us within 60 days from the time you bought it you can bring it in and exchange it.

A ONE YEAR SPEAKER TRIAL PRIVILEGE. You have a full year to receive your full purchase price of any speakers costing up to $200 in trade toward costlier speakers you decide you'd rather have.

MANUFACTURER'S WARRANTIES ON ALL PACIFIC STEREO PRODUCTS. Every item at a Pacific Stereo store is fully covered by its manufacturer's warranty. The Service Department is the authorized warranty station for almost all these items and we are prepared to fully carry out the terms of the warranties. Whenever your equipment needs servicing, in or out of warranty, bring it to Pacific Stereo for fast skillful service.

A RAINCHECK AND A SHORT SUPPLY MERCHANDISE SEARCH. Because we offer such attractively priced merchandise, it sometimes happens that a store runs out of an advertised special before you get there. If that should happen to you, just ask a salesman for a raincheck. We'll then search to try and find the equipment in one of our other stores and your raincheck entitles you to have it at the advertised price for one week.

A LIBERAL TRADE-IN POLICY AND A LARGE SELECTION OF GUARANTEED USED GEAR. All our stores have a Halb Blue Book in which the trade-in value of just about every piece of audio equipment ever made is clearly stated.

LAY-A-WAYS, BANKAMERICARD, MASTERCHARGE, MONTHLY PAYMENTS, 90 DAY INTEREST FREE ACCOUNTS. Pacific Stereo gives you all the above ways (in addition to cash payments, of course) to make your purchase. Whichever method you choose, you'll find it at Pacific Stereo.

PROBABLY THE BEST PRICES IN TOWN. We're almost positive nobody will give you a better price on current models of new merchandise than we will. Just in case someone would have or will, we'll be glad to refund the difference or match the price as the case may be within 30 days.

Doctor Visits Vietnam

A CIVILIAN DOCTOR IN VIETNAM by Dr. Fred Gloeckner; Winchell Co., 123 pages, $5. Reviewed by Elizabeth Finch.

Fred Gloeckner describes his experiences as a volunteer physician in Vietnam for two months. He says that during this period America was losing far more spiritually than in land and air defeat.

His concern is with describing the people and ideas rather than with medical practices. He states that he writes as an American rather than a doctor. As a reviewer I observe he writes as Fred Gloeckner.

The author was born into a family of doctors. Even in his educational and professional life he has been "intensely aware of growing into a world of war and prejudice." He worked in Vietnam with a medical program organized by the AMA in collaboration with AID, a branch of the U.S. Department of State. He felt no alternative but to act upon this opportunity which would be just for all humanity.

However at the first briefing he was informed that the primary purpose of the mission was one of "political impact," second to the job of teaching the Vietnamese better medicine and third to caring for the sick and wounded.

Gloeckner describes the Vietnamese where they are "at home with themselves" as being efficient and aggressive and steadfastly loyal to the sick. He questions that they have an allegiance to the military goals of the U.S. in their country.

When he left Vietnam Dr. Gloeckner felt the situation there was much the same as when he arrived. His successes would be known only to a few but he knew a personal gain. He writes the Vietnamese have but one hope — a Hope For Peace.

Aftermath Of Accident

RAGE by Philip Friedman; Atheneum, 314 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Al Powers.

Nobody ever questioned Fort Howard's right to be located where it was. The Army, its personnel, and the Wyoming sheep ranchers who bordered the military property, had always gotten along well and there was no reason to believe that the good relationship would ever change.

As Capt. Roger Liefler banked his jet for another trial run little did he realize that he was going to bring the "wall of good will" crashing down when he checked the instrument panel and realized that all of the "experiemental" gas had been accidently released over the Wyoming countryside.

Author Philip Friedman has written about the consequences that follow the accidental release and the effects that it has upon the lives of the principal characters, rancher Dan Logan and his 12 year old son, Cris.

Dan Logan doesn't understand this strange malady that has all of a sudden taken over their lives but is determined to find out. In his efforts to find the reason he encounters silence from those he thought were his friends, lies from the Army, smiles from the nurses at the hospital.

Suffering one indignity after another, Dan Logan musters all the strength that he has and decides to strike back at those who have used him and his son as guinea pigs. It's at this point that the book gets "explosive" and the reader wishes that he too could help Dan Logan fight back.

Friedman has illustrated so well in his book what can happen to a man that is pushed too far, by people who could care less about his welfare as a human being but who are actually more afraid of being caught short when retirement time rolls around, and protecting their gwn "hides."

The ending is the real "blockbuster" to this fast moving, compelling book. To divulge it would be doing a dis-service to the reader.

Little Glamour

CENTER DOOR FANCY by Joan Blondell; Delacorte Press, 312 pages. $7.95. Reviewed by Jorie Parr.

This is a novel. It says so on the cover. Yet the biographical strain is undeniable, and it is amusing to transpose the real for the fictional. If you've forgotten who movie star Joan Blondell's husbands were, the dust jacket reminds you.

But with all the vaudeville and Hollywood razzle dazzle in her background, there is ruddy little glamour in the book. It is a housewife's story. The woman who thinks with her heart and suffers from the shortcomings of her men.

Her childhood, on the road in show business, was interesting enough, though she seems to have had more than her share of sordid experiences. She blossoms into a beautiful young woman, at times naive to the point of insanity. There follows a successful cinema career, and three failures at marriage. Husband number one was an infantile spendthrift, number two a pennypinching prude, number three a fantastic lover . . . but this go-around ended badly as well.

The book gets off the ground occasionally, but in spite of its intriguing subject matter, is not sensational.

Talk Lacks Freshness

RELUCTANT NEIGHBORS by E.R. Braithwaite; McGraw-Hill, 184 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

The black man sits pensively on the New Canaan, Conn. to New York commuter train. He is amused by the other passengers who carefully avoid the lone empty seat in the compartment — the one beside him.

More people and seconds pass. Soon, the seat is reluctantly occupied by a white man who begins to make awkward attempts at conversation. These result in launching a pedantically stilted, and tepid interracial dialogue that is overall unsatisfying for its lack of freshness and originality.

The book's best sections are those of bittersweet reverie in which memories of Braithwaite's days as a school teacher in England are triggered during the train trip. But he previously covered them to much acclaim in "To Sir With Love" several years ago.

Smog Attacks Manuscripts

Smog, the bane of 20th Century man, has found yet another target-priceless old books.

Theodore B. Kalhle of Berkeley, 50, one of the few still practicing the art of fine bookbinding, says increased chemicals in the air are attacking manuscripts in libraries all over the country.

Increased carbon monoxide in the air combining with hydrogen sulphide from diesel fuels and components of automobile exhaust unite with these metal impurities, creating acids which destroy the paper, Kahle said.

Updike Tales Dazzle In Stylistic Show

MUSEUMS AND WOMEN, & OTHER STORIES, by John Updike; 282 pages, $6.95. Alfred A. Knopf. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

This collection of John Updike's short stories — all previously printed in magazines — exhibits most of his peculiar genius and is a dazzling display of stylistic acrobatics.

Here, flying through the air from story to story, are all the literary devices — imagery, personification, allusion, prose rhythm and, most beloved by Updike, alliteration: "A shredding kayak shared a room with a rack of Polynesian paddles."

Even the title story "Museums and Women," is an extended analogy, an elaborate essay comparing various museums to the women in a man's life.

Here, too, are five stories about the problems, mostly sexual, of The Maples, that painfully modern couple, residents of a suburban never-never land that could be Marin County.

All these pieces are slick and entertaining. Recommended for fans of the eternal running Rabbit.

Japanese Best-Seller

The best-selling book in Japan during 1971 was an historical study written by an author whose identity was hidden in mystery.

The popular "Nihonjin to Yudayajin" (The Japanese and the Jew) was written in Japanese by Izaya Benda, who the publishers claimed was a foreign Jew who grew up in Japan.

Some critics said they doubted any foreigner could possess such a knowledge of Japanese culture and Japan's written language. Efforts by Japanese newspapers to trace the author to the United States failed, and the publisher remained silent.

Chinese, Asian Arts Get Varying Treatment

By LARRY KRAMER

THE ARTS OF CHINA by Hugo Munsterberg; Charles E. Tuttle Company (Rutland, Vt. and Tokyo, Japan); 234 pp; $17.50.

ASIAN ART TREASURES, edited by Keiko Chiba; Tuttle; 105 pp; $21.50.

Art books are expensive! For this reason they must speak strongly and specially to some need or desire of the prospective buyer or they are doomed to join many of their fellows on the remainder table of myriad bookshops, to be picked up for a fraction of their original price. My hunch is that just such a fate lies in store for Asian Art Treasures.

On the other hand, Munsterberg's "The Arts of China" may well join the more select company of need-fulfilling works which gradually pass out of print into the libraries of professional and serious amateurs bent on improving their understanding of China's arts.

So much for prophecy, here are the reasons behind the soothsaying. "Asian Art Treasures," edited by Keiko Chiba, is a large volume, 12 x 17. It contains glossy reproductions of 48 works of art ranging from floral arrangements to paintings from India, China, Japan and the Philippines.

The pages are perforated so that they can be removed, mounted or framed. Each picture is accompanied by a few paragraphs of text from another Tuttle publication, printed on the back of the previous illustration. The illustrations are technically good, but the glossy finish makes them seem hard and glib, very much like the handsome calendars which Japan Air Lines distributes.

The quality of the text is uneven. The comments seem to be taken out of the context of larger works. The overall effect is of a collection of chapter conclusions from a general volume of Asian art history.

So for $21.50 what do you have? A catalog of the publisher's authors and a picture collection suitable for coffee table or framing. An unsatisfying antipasto of commentary. And even this is lost if the reproductions are removed for display.

Munsterberg's "The Arts of China" is a different matter. The author has a broad and deep knowledge of Asian art. Our family used his "The Folk Arts of Japan" as a guide to Japan's kilns and pottery.

Like "The Arts Of China" it was clearly written and tied aesthetics into the historical context. "The Folk Arts Of Japan" is an acknowledged classic having filled a void in Western knowledge about Japan's practical arts.

"The Arts Of China" fills no such void. It contains very little that is new. It does not go deeply into any period or style, as for instance the de Young series on aspects of the Brundage collection does with "The Ancient Chinese Bronzes or Chinese Ceramics."

What Munsterberg does do is use carefully chosen bits of his encyclopaedic knowledge of Chinese history and art to tie period and aesthetic product together.

"The Arts of China" is an introductory book. It introduces the reader to the flow of Chinese history, to the arts which grew out of that history, the influence of outside forces invading China with arms (Mongols, Manchus) or ideas (Buddhism). A brief, but excellent bibliography opens the door to more detailed knowledge about specific periods, — and their art forms. Excellent end paper maps locate important historical sites in China's art history. The largest fault of "The Arts of China" is that the illustrations are grouped throughout the book rather than placed next to the relevant text so that words and pictures could be seen in tandem.

Munsterberg and Tuttle have combined to make "The Arts Of China" an excellent survey of the intertwinings of Chinese art and history without lapsing into the sterility that makes more formal textbooks such enemies of insomnia. It is to be fervently hoped that it follows the same author's "The Arts of Japan" into a comparatively inexpensive paperbound edition.

THE EXPLOITS of men and women who explored the heart of Africa are recounted in "Congo" by Richard West, Holt Rinehart and Winston, $7.95. Special attention is given to Pierre Savorgnan de Brazza, above, an enlightened Italian nobleman for whom Brazzaville is named.

ALL MEMBERS of a family could have fun with "Fingerprint Owls and Other Fantasies" by Marjorie P. Katz, published by M. Evans and Co., $3.95. It explains an unusual technique, fingerprint art, and shows how anyone can create pictures and patterns using an ink pad, the tips of fingers and a pen. From the simple and humorous designs, fingerprint artists can graduate to creating designs for stationery, gift-wrapping or greeting cards.

FOR FANS of horror movies, Thomas G. Aylesworth has compiled a survey of ghoulish movie monsters and a look into the elements of folklore and fiction that contributed to the development of the monsters.

The spooky old favorites, Frankenstein, Dracula, Dr. Jekyll and Mrs. Hyde, the Werewolf of London and others are revived in a well-illustrated paperback edition by J. B. Lippincott Co., $1.95.

HARPER AND ROW has published a new volume in its New American Nation Series "France In America" by W. J. Eccles a professor of history at the University of Toronto.

Eccles views events from the French rather than the British side in his efforts to analyze the crucial role of the French in the Western Hemisphere from the arrival of the first fisherman on the Grand Banks in 1500 to the sale of Louisiana in 1803.

The volume, priced at $8.95, provides background of understanding of U.S.-Canadian relationships and provides insight into the French Canadian nationalism which continues to be a force in Canada.

"SUPER FLY," a colorful movie that drew enthusiastic reviews, has been published in paperback by Ballantine Books, $1.25. The story of Priest, a successful black New York cocaine dealer, who decided to quit, takes the reader into the seamy side of drug dealing in Harlem and the life of the pusher. The novel version by Booker Williams is based on the original screenplay by Philip Fenty, with 24 pages of photos from the film.

NORTH SHORE BOOKS, P.O. Box 293, Point Reyes Station, has reported that Jack Mason's 1970 sellout "Point Reyes The Solemn Land," is now in its second edition. The book including 24 pages of photos and maps can be obtained through North Shore Books at a price of $7.50.

Latest in "The American Wilderness" series from Time-Life Books is "Wild Alaska" by Dale Brown and the editors of Time-Life Books, a 184-page illustrated book, priced at $7.95.

Alaska, vast in size and varied in topography, represents an area where wilderness abounds. "For many Alaskans, the wilderness starts in the backyard," Brown said. "It could hardly be otherwise in a state that is 99 per cent uninhabited."

The book includes tours through Alaska's national parks and in closing the author weighs the ecological threats to Alaska's natural life.

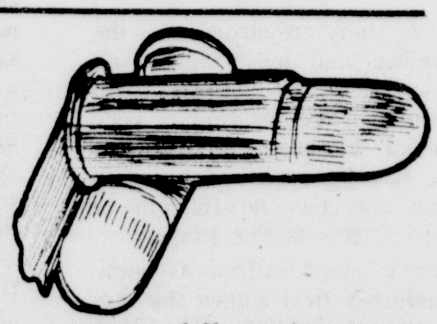

ABRAM L. SACHAR, chancellor of Brandeis University, who has met success with his public television program on modern world history, has been praised for bringing the subject to life. Viewers have written for transcripts of his telecasts to read at their leisure, but now a series of his programs is available in "The Course Of Our Times: The Men and Events That Shaped the Twentieth Century," published by Alfred A. Knopf, $12.50. The series starts on the eve of World War I and concludes with current developments.

J. P. DONLEAVY has been called one of the finest and most touching comic writers of our time, turning out novels, stories and plays. His plays have been published in a single volume by Delacorte Press-Seymour Lawrence, $10, under the apt title "The Plays of J. P. Donleavy." It also is available in Delta paperback, $2.95.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE LISTENING SILENCE by Helen Lillie; Hawthorn, 184 pages, $5.95.

IRONWOOD by Jennie Melville; David McKay, 191 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Anyone for Gothic suspense? Here are a couple that fans of the genre will drool over — and which disparagers of the field will disdain. Never mind such snobbery. Sit back and enjoy damsels in distress in gloomy old mansions inhabited by strange and handsome young men, and haunted by sounds and dark memories.

The authors are two of the best spinners of these tales of fright and romance, the one, Helen Lillie, Scottish born but now living in the United States, the other, Jennie Melville, London born but now living in Scotland.

The Melville story is set in a mansion near London to which Anna Barclay flees, hoping to escape the shadows that have been pursuing her. But the menace follows her to St. John's. And, naturally, the one she comes to fear most is the man to whom she is curiously attracted.

Miss Lillie's "The Listening Silence" is set in a village in Scotland where Maggie Fraser is called to settle the estate of her sister who has died mysteriously. In the manor house there, Maggie, like Anna, finds herself surrounded by people she cannot trust, and her own life in danger.

Neither novel breaks any new ground. But both cover the familiar Gothic course competently, and to the satisfaction of those who thrive on these tales of terror and somber atmosphere.

Montecatini — Spa Through The Ages

By ADAM SHAW

MONTECATINI, Italy — They start drinking here at 7 a.m., but W.C. Fields wouldn't buy it.

"Water?"

Yup, and 10 kinds of it, hot, cold, lukewarm, salty, sweet, and bitter . . . water.

"The curative properties of Montecatini's thermal waters are not necessarily linked to their purgative actions," reads a brochure put out by the local medical society.

A VISITOR to Montecatini's most elaborate, largest and expensive spa reaches out for a glass of water from one of the fountains on the premises. There are ten kinds of water in the Tuscan town, which attract hundreds of thousands of Europeans.

BUT HUNDREDS of thousands of Europeans flock to this small Tuscan town specifically "to get cleaned out," as one German lawyer put it.

"I won't tell you my name because my friends in Stuttgart make fun of me when I come for a cure," he said, downing a glass in the clear seven o'clock-in-the-morning light. "They think it is silly to come all this way just for a glass of water . . ."

People — many of them bearing famous names — have been flocking to Montecatini since the Middle Ages. One of the regulars was Giuseppe Verdi.

THE COMPOSER "sought the secret of lenghtening his youth in these waters," according to a plaque on his namesake street leading to the spas.

Montecatini is Europe's largest, though no longer most chic spa. The locals who complain that people such as Princess Grace of Monaco, Orson Wells, and the late Duke of Windsor now are replaced by tour groups and state-subsidized health seekers.

"Mass thermalism," grumbled Fernanda Bigindi, supervisor of the town's most elaborate watering hole. Eight "establishments" serve up different "aquas" to cure such things as angopcholitis, dudodenitis, neurovegetative dystonia, and plain constipation.

THE SPAS range from the institutional, white-tile variety to the huge, colonnaded, Tettuccio with its formal gardens, wall frescoes and liveried attendants.

There are mud baths, underwater massages, oral balneotherapy a fancy brochure term for mouth sprays and other acquatic goodies featuring waters ranging from sulphuric to radioactive.

The suggested length of a cure is 12 days, and the right to drink the water in one of the posher spas costs about $35. "Of course I don't drink the water," said Daniela Giannini, 22, daughter of the local hotelier. "It tastes awful."

The town's souvenir shops are full of cartoony postcards showing people in various stages of distress as the water's properties take effect.

IN THE same spa, a 10-man orchestra, complete with aging violinists and a mustachioed conductor, play the music to drink water to: Rossini, Straus, and of course Verdi.

The music and the water stop at noon, and the drinkers repair to one of the 800 hotels to eat huge Tuscan lunches washed down by good local Chianti.

Water is the economic mainstay of Montecatini and its one big problem. The local officials complain that the hotelkeepers use too much "real" water.

"We have plenty of thermal water," said Mayor's aide Gino Magiani. "But real water, very little."

The community recently passed a law forbidding the digging of wells within a three mile radius of the town.

Jet to Miami and cruise to eight Caribbean ports. From only $606!

Only American Express and the all-French crew of the M/S Mermoz could fill 13 days with so much extravagance—from only $606 to $1,373 (based on space availability and double occupancy).

This complete Caribbean vacation includes Group Inclusive Tour air fare from Los Angeles to Miami via National Airlines, transfer from airport to ship, French cuisine and vintage wine aboard a floating French resort—the M/S Mermoz. Plus eight Caribbean ports such as St. Thomas, Martinique, Aruba! It could cost as little as $71.62 per island.

Years Ago Camping Was Chore

"Camping by motor car" nearly half a century ago involved a bit of effort that today's mobile camper — encased in his home on wheels — doesn't face. The American Automobile Association's first "Campground Directory," published in 1926, gave this advice:

"Look over the tool box and see that it contains the necessary wrenches; a spark plug socket; a pair of pliers; also chain-repair pliers; a box of extra tire valves; a tire pressure gauge; some extra spark plugs and rim lugs; a role of tape; a grease gun; an extra fan belt; a sheet of cork for emergency gaskets; and a small bottle of shellac.

"MAKE SURE tires are in good condition and with two extras (with covers), preferably inflated on rims. Take three extra tubes, carefully rolled and packed in burlap to keep from chafing, and a box of tube patching, a blow-out patch or inner boot.

"Carry a tire pump in good order and a good jack, also a small piece of plank two by eight by 18 inches to use as a base for the jack on soft ground.

"Tire chains, preferably two sets, are necessary equipment; also carry a steel rope for towing, a collapsible canvas bucket and a five-gallon canvas water bag; also one upper and one lower hose connection for radiator . . ."

New York's Plaza Hotel Reaches 65th Birthday

The lady regarded as the loveliest and most elegant on New York's fashionable Fifth Avenue is celebrating a very special birthday this month. She has just reached her 65th year and has no thought of retiricg. She is The Plaza.

Ever since Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt first signed the register back in 1907, The Plaza has been affectionately ranked by thousands as "the" hotel in New York, if not the world.

She made history her opening day by becoming the first hotel to be the permanent residence for families who could well afford to build stately mansions along the avenues — the Vanderbilts, the Harrimans, the Billings, the Goulds.

IN THE early part of the century, The Plaza was the favorite haunt of Lillian Russell, "Diamond Jim" Brady, Anna Held, Billie Burke. George M. Cohan was such a regular in the Oak Room that a bronze plaque has been hung over his favorite table. Constance Bennett, Rudolph Valentino, Mae Murray and Zelda and Scott Fitzgerald danced their way through the Roaring Twenties at The Plaza. In fact, the hotel will be used for location shooting in the film version of Fitzgerald's popular novel, "Great Gatsby," next spring.

Khrushchev was booed at The Plaza, General Eisenhower was cheered. King Hassan II of Morocco was visited by Emperor Haile Selassie and the King of Siam and his Queen received their subjects. Truman Capote chose The Plaza's Grand Ballroom for his legendary Black and White Masked Ball; David and Julie Eisenhower greeted their wedding guests in the same room a few years later.

Svetlana Alliluyeva presided at one of the largest press conferences ever held at the hotel; The Beatles attracted the largest throng of fans, who were politely, but firmly kept outside.

In 1969, The Plaza was designated a New York City landmark. On this, her birthday, she celebrates a landmark — her first 65 years.

Cruise Ship A Home For Traveler

By RALPH HUBLEY

Breaking away from office and home routines, the cruise passenger finds a new world aboard ship, a miniworld as it were, where every whim is a command and every other passenger a close friend.

This luxurious living is so satisfying to some cruise addicts that they sometimes prefer to stay aboard rather than face adventure ashore when their ship puts into a new port of call. But most cruise veterans advise taking advantage of every shore opportunity.

The port of call usually is selected by cruise operators for its exceptional scenery, shopping values, or historical significance.

AND THEN returning to the familiar facilities of the ship in the evening, the passenger finds it's like returning home. He can appreciate it even more than before.

Among the recent trends in cruising is the seeking out of new and exciting ports of call. Although the majority of cruise vessels still swarm around Bermuda, the Bahamas, and the Caribbean islands, nautical charts are beginning to show courses extending father along the coast of South American and far into the Pacific Ocean and the South Seas.

The recent travel cooperation of the fly-cruise phenomenon has made these ports of call available to vacationers around the world.

The following are some ports of call that are either new to cruise ships or evolving into principal stops for the first time this season:

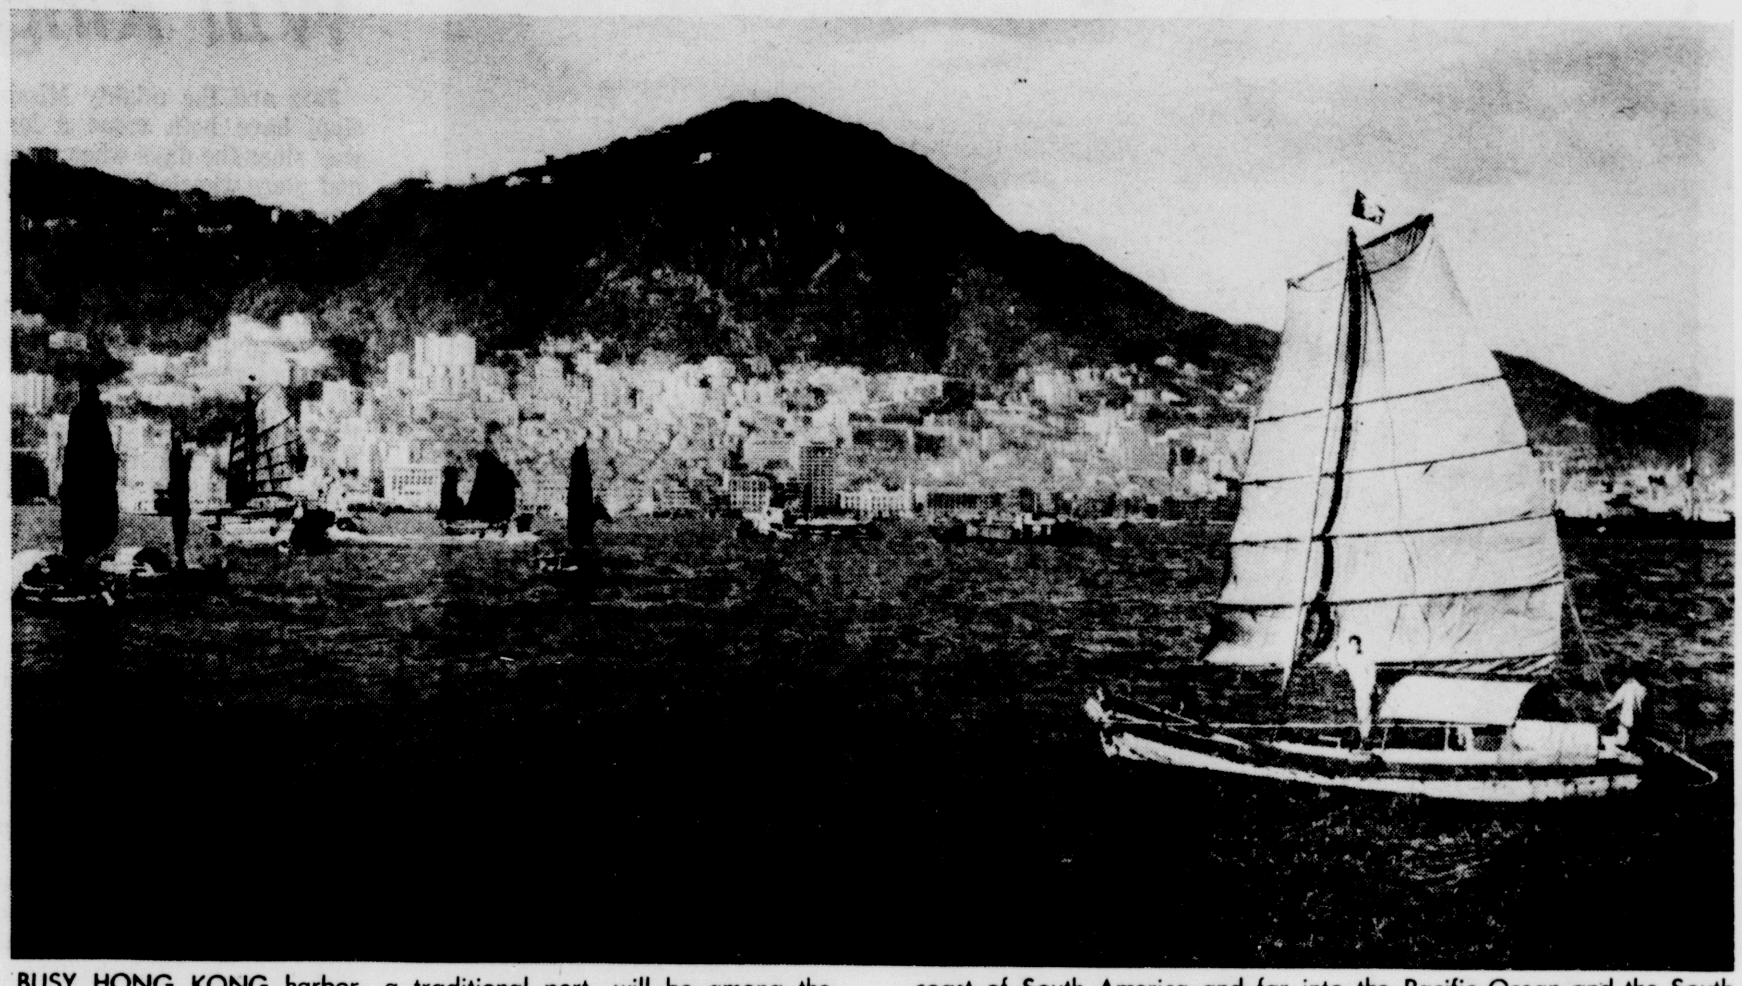

Cabo San Lucas at the southern tip of Mexico's Baja California, previously accessible only to wealthy yachtsmen and private plane owners, will be visited by a cruise ship for the first time next month. Princess Cruises hopes this former British buccaneer base will become as popular as Zihuatenejo, which received cruise ships for the first time last year and now is on the cruise schedule of many other lines.

CRUISES TO the Galapagos Islands off the coast of Ecuador are not new but have picked up increased interest recently. They are called the "enchanted islands" because of the unusual species of plants and animals found there. The tameness of the wildlife and the advantage of isolation enjoyed by these islands have been recognized as an unusual outdoor laboratory of ecology as well as evolution. They are served by — who else? — Galapago Cruises.

Guadalupe, a small Pacific island off the coast of Baja California (as distinct from Guadeloupe in the West Indies), will be one of the new ports called on by Holland America's Rotterdam on a world cruise.

The Rotterdam will also be stopping for her first time at such interesting places as La Guaira, Venezuela; Trincomalee, Ceylon; Madras, India; and Puerta Valarta, Mexico.

Some ships specialize in certain types of ports such as the Hamburg of German Atlantic Line, which is offering new "Spanish Main" cruises in January. Calls will be made at Port au Prince, Haiti; Montego Bay, Jamaica; Cartagena, Colombia; Cristobal and Balboa, Panama Canal; and Acapulco, Mexico.

BUSY HONG KONG harbor, a traditional port, will be among the many ports of call to be visited by cruise ships this fall. Along with stops at familiar ports, ships will be stopping at new ports along the coast of South America and far into the Pacific Ocean and the South Seas. Among the new stops will be the Cabo San Lucas at the southern tip of Baja California, the Galapagos Islands and the Amazon River.

(Christian Science Monitor Photo)

IN THE spring the Hamburg makes the rounds of the Pacific, with stops at exotic ports such as Muku Hiva, Marquesas Islands; Papeete, Tahiti; Cook's Bay, Morea; Apia, Western Samoa; Niuafo'ou, "Tin Can Island"; Suva, Fiji; Hanoiara, Guadalcanal; Madang, New Guinea; Bali, Indonesia; Singapore; Bangkok, Thailand; Hong Kong; Nagasaki, Kobe, and Tokyo, Japan; and Honolulu.

The Monterey of Pacific Far East Line will visit the Orient for the first time this fall when she embarks from the West Coast on a 60-day "Grand Pacific Circle Cruise."

Besides touching popular Pacific ports, she will stop at Green Island, part of the Great Barrier Reef. Also, the schedule is reported to be flexible to include visits to mainland China, should tourist restrictions ease in that country.

The Renaissance of the Paquet Lines will sail around South America this winter, stopping at most of the continent's port cities. The ship will also specialize in a Maya cruise to the archaeological wonders of Central America this spring as well as conduct the Sixth Music Festival at Sea in January.

FOR THE truly adventurous there is the Lindblad Explorer, which has pushed back cruise frontiers with expeditions into the Arctic, Antarctic, South Atlantic, and Indian Ocean, scoring dozens of "firsts" in ports of call.

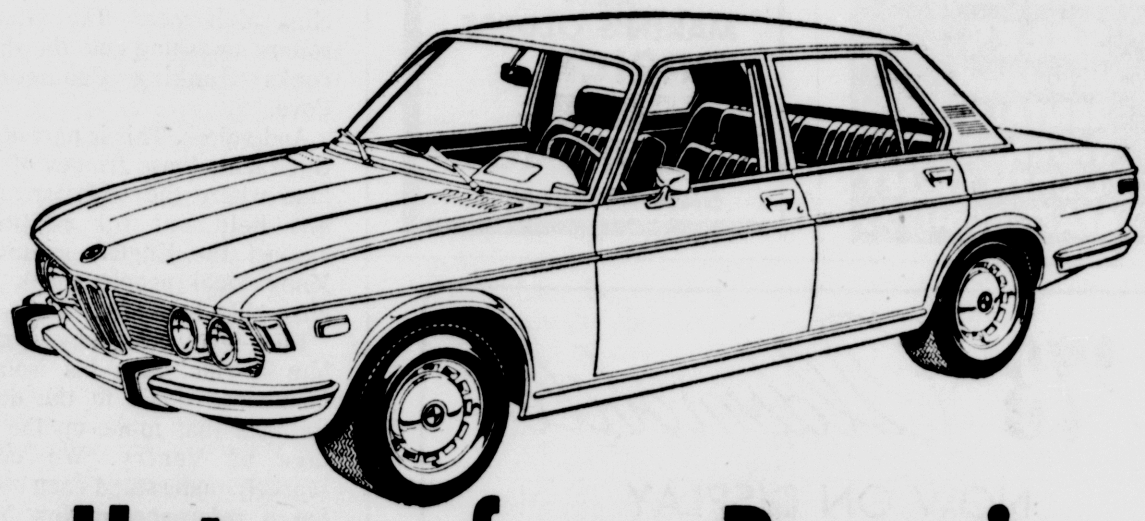

The Amazon River will be the scene of four Lindblad Explorer cruises in October and November after which the ship will head again for the Antarctic. In the spring the South Pacific will be explored with first-time calls by any cruise ship at Sala y Gomez, Pitcairn, Mangareva, and Palau.

Transatlantic and transpacific passenger ships have begun calling their voyages "cruises," but only a few can be so considered. By applying certain cruise yardsticks the traveler should be able to detect the difference:

1. To be a cruise ship there should only be one class — first class — throughout the vessel.

2. There should be fewer passengers compared with the ship's personnel. For instance, ships used on regular transatlantic runs will cut the passenger load in half when used for cruising to give the passenger the service to which he is entitled. The newest ships have been designed for cruise-only operations.

3. Excursion arrangements should be available on board for ports of call. These are sometimes taken care of by outside agencies such as American Express, but they should be available — if the passenger desires shore arrangements for tours at the port of call.

Hot car from Bavaria.

The amazingly successful new BMW Bavaria is here.

6 cylinders, 3.0 liters. 130 mph. Under $7,000. Wundercar!

It's here. The exciting new BMW Bavaria. From the famed Bavarian Motor Works. No other car in the world can do what the Bavaria can in performance, handling, roadholding. Yet it costs less than $7,000!

Performance. An unsurpassed example of fine German engineering "sporty" doesn't even begin to describe this car. The Bavaria is fast. Cruises all day at 120 mph and 6000 rpm. Easily reaches a top of 130.

Handling. Steering is quick and sure. There's optional power-assistance for steering if you prefer. Massive disc brakes are fade-proof and dependable, even on the steepest hills.

Roadholding. BMW's full independent suspension gives you a tenacious grip on any surface. Let you move at fantastic speeds. Through incredible conditions. On impossible roads.

Economy is yours in the new Bavaria. It'll get well over 20 miles per gallon, while it carries four adults in comfort. At less than $7,000 this is a tremendous buy.

The BMW Bavaria is designed for the man who loves to drive. If you're that kind of man, we defy you to test-drive this hot car and still keep your cool.

Irish Calm Remains Away From 'Troubles'

By DAVID ANABLE

DINGLE, IRELAND — "It's the stillest place in the world," the Irishman said. (The Irish are not given to understatement.) "You can hear the seagulls' wings roaring as they drop onto the lake."

He's right. The haunting cries of gulls and the slap-flap of their wings above the surface of Eagle Lake are just a sampling on the sounds of the Dingle Peninsula.

The memory of some places floods back at the scent of a flower, or tang of a salt breeze, or smell of damp camp clothes.

But it is the Dingle's sounds that lodge in my mind.

THE WHISPER and flutter of wind through gorse. The crunch of cows pulling and chewing course grass. The rumble of big, slow-turning wooden cartwheels on stones.

The early-morning song of thrushes and blackbirds. The clink of harness. The Atlantic rollers smashing onto the sharp rocks flanking Coomeenole Cove.

And voices. This is part of the Gaeltacht, those fringes of Ireland where the Irish language has held out for centuries against the English incursion. Many local people speak English only haltingly.

Like farmer Murphy. I gave him a ride from his isolated farmhouse down to the dozen cottages that make up the village of Ventry. We could scarcely understand each other, but a reference to New York awakened a lively interest:

"D'y'know Tom Murphy?" he asked eagerly . . .

At the Hotel Sceilig the staff is bilingual — English and Irish. The Sceilig marks the border between the old and the coming new.

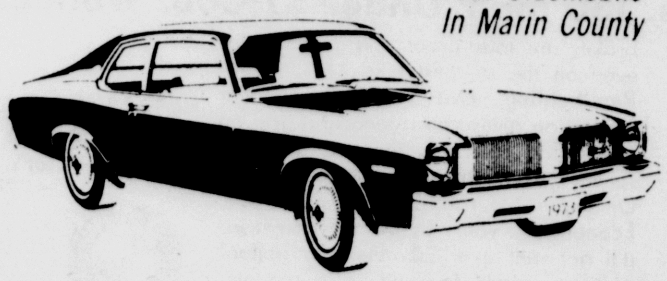

To the east of the hotel (and of the town of Dingle, a few minutes' sea-edge walk away), Gaelic culture thins out as the neck of the peninsula stretches toward Tralee. To the west is true Gaeltacht.

ONE OF only two hotels on the peninsula, the Sceilig is not complete. The grass has yet to grow around the heated seawater pool. But already the hotel is bringing in tourists, faintly jarring the gentle stillness which is the outstanding attraction of this wrinkled finger of Ireland.

Riverboat Jazz Will Ring Again

Jazz and the mighty Mississippi have both come a long way since the days when music and stern-wheeled paddleboats were a familiar and anxiously awaited sight at ports from Cincinnati to New Orleans.

The steamboats — with only one exception — are gone or have become day-steamer curios. Jazz is nightclubs, amplified rock-combinations, and the Newport Dazz festival in New York City instead of Newport.

The jazz and river buffs of New Orleans, however, have never forgotten the glory days.

NOW they've decided to recreate one of those nostalgic river cruises, combining some of the great names in jazz with the authenticity of the only surviving paddlewheeler still regularly carrying overnight passengers.

According to the American Automobile Assn., the adventure gets underway on Dec. 4, 1972, when the Riverboat Delta Queen sails from New Orleans on the first leg of a 12-day cruise up the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers to Cincinnati.

The 170 passengers on the cruise — sponsored by the Louisiana Jazz Club — will be overwhelmed by the program planned by the cruise directors. Shore stops at Baton Rouge, Natchez, Vicksburg, Memphis, Evansville, and Louisville will be highlighted by jazz balls in Vicksburg's Municipal Auditorium and Memphis's Rivermont Grand Ballroom at the Holiday Inn.

ON-BOARD entertainment will include such present-day stars as Bert Peck's Kings of Dixieland; the famed Olympia Brass Band; Abe Franklin and the original Market Square Band of Memphis; Jack Jones and his Jackson Jazz Band; Charlie Booty, top ragtime pianist and the Delta Queen's own Riverboat Ramblers.

Passengers won't just be listening, says AAA, they'll be participating as well, since many on-board activities other than dazz concerts are planned. Included will be such items as mint julip parties, sing-alongs, banjo concerts, calliope playing contests, vintage movies and old-time vaudeville performances, card and scrabble tournaments, and, of course, the inevitable jam sessions.

TICKETS for the cruise are available in three segments says AAA: the four-night New Orleans to Vicksburg segment, the three-night Vicksburg to Memphis section and the five-night Memphis to Cincinnati finale. Because of the way the cruise has been divided into three parts, more than 170 people will be able to take at least part of the cruise.

Cost of the cruise will vary, depending on how long you're on board and the type of accommodations you desire.

Total cost for the entire 12 days in Class C would be $384. In the deluxe category, accommodations will cost $672 for the whole cruise. Costs for individual segments, of course, are much lower. For additional information on costs, sailing information, and availability of accommodations, AAA suggests contracting: Durel Black, Louisiana Jazz Club, 336 Gateway Building, New Orleans,Louisiana 70130.

Reindeer Safari

You never signed up for a jungle safari because you can't stand heat? Then, how about one on snow? If you're receptive to new and novel experiences then you'll be ready to spend your winter holiday in friendly Finland on a "reindeer safari."

Here, in the vast wilderness of Lapland, in almost virgin land at the Arctic Circle, you can join a five-day, four-night caravan on snow and enjoy a once in a lifetime kind of holiday.

Finland's domestic reindeer have been trained for this special expedition. The nimble-footed animals will lead their sleighs over 30 miles of tranquil and awe-inspiring winter landscape, terrain dotted with dwarf birch trees over miles of snow-covered "fells" (hills).

THE SAFARI entitles each one who signs up for it to his own sleigh and reindeer. There will be four sections departing on the trip, the first scheduled to leave Helsinki on March 21, 1973, followed by others on March 24, 27, and 29.

The $312 per person package price is all-inclusive. It covers transfers from any of Helsinki's hotels to the city's airport and an afternoon flight via Finnair to Rovaniemi, Lapland's dazzling white capital. Motorcoach fares, hotel accommodations, all meals and entertainment are included in the plan.

The actual safari begins after breakfast on the third day, upon arrival by bus in Enontekio, located in the far Northwest. It is then that each member of the safari, lined up single file, takes the bridle of his reindeer in hand and begins the exhilarating drive under a brilliant and strong Lapland sun.

THE 30-MILE trek isn't covered in one long uninterrupted drive, of course. There are interesting stops at picturesque shelter stations along the route for coffee breaks. The safari comes to a halt late afternoon at Pahankuru hut, where, that evening, a typical Lapp meal is served, followed by the traditional Finnish sauna.

After breakfast next morning the troupe is off again for the reindeer drive back to the Hetta Tourist Hotel in Enontekio. A farewell party, a Lapp reindeer lasso contest and an evening of native entertainment fill the agenda to wind up the unconventional holiday.

Hyacinths Are Plant Of Ages

Hyacinths are known as very versatile bulb performers. They adapt themselves to either formal or informal settings. Their rich, heady fragrance makes Hyacinths ideal for creating free-flowering drifts throughout the garden. And, the lovely bulbs are valued for use in formal beds.

The popularity of Hyacinths dates back at least three centuries. Today, the bulbs are being planted in unprecedented numbers — in the garden, and in pots to serve as indoor decorations.

NURSERIES have a large selection of Hyacinths to choose from this month, in an impressive array of colors. There are several shades of blue — from light lavender to near purple. There are many shades of pink, rose and red to choose from, as well as soft yellow and brilliant white. Hyacinths begin to bloom in mid-February in most parts of California.

These early-blooming bulbs can be used to highlight the foreground of shrub borders. Hyacinths are an eyeful in individual masses, and in small random drifts. Appealing accents can be achieved with Hyacinths.

Use five or seven bulbs in a cluster. The effect will be fantastic — and will overshadow a similar planting of just two or three bulbs. Avoid the temptation to see how much area can be covered with the fewest number of bulbs. If necessary to do so, concentrate the bulb plantings into areas where the cool season color is needed most in the garden.

A MODEST amount of bulbs, massed for effect, will provide a spectacular show, whereas a like number of bulbs, spread throughout the garden would be lost in the overall scheme of things.

Hyacinths will take more sun than most people think, and will also tolerate moderate shade. If in doubt in what exposure to plant Hyacinths, your local nurseryman can provide the information, and outline simple planting instructions so that you can enjoy a maximum of beauty from these ever-popular bulb flowers.

Lawn Aids Life

Lawns, like other green vegetation, are essential for animal life. By trapping carbon dioxide from the air, utilizing water and minerals from the soil, absorbing power from sunlight for photosynthesis, the lawn not only builds food but releases oxygen which animals breathe.

No wonder the ancients recognized that "all flesh is grass"! The cycle repeats unendingly, continually freshining the air and recycling vital elements that make the land tolerable for humans.

BUT NEITHER does man "live by bread alone!" The esthetic dividends that good lawns yield add to life's enjoyment. In a world increasingly crowded most men must look to their own home yard for the understanding of nature that wilderness once provided.

The groundswell of new varieties allows a homeowner to exercise creative landscaping with lawngrasses.

And the lawn very well may be the modern arena for exercise, — be it tumbling with kids, working up a badminton sweat, or merely trotting around the property behind the mower. Whatever the relaxation, the lawn is your private game preserve.

A GOOD lawn is a buffer against pollution, too. It absorbs dust, sound, and to an extent noxious gases. It "breathes" moisture in summer, cooling the surroundings many degrees below what the temperature would be over paving. In winter the lawn prevents the soil from freezing deeply. In spring it certainly keeps the mud out of the house compared to what would be the situation if only bare ground existed.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

The Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔It's not too late to sow Sweet Peas for spring bloom.

✔Hoe weeds that sprout-up over bulb beds. Early rains will promote their growth and attention now will eliminate having to pull them later in the year.

✔Many cool season vegetables are available as seedling transplants in nurseries. Shop this week to see what is available, so that you can enjoy tasty harvest of home-grown produce.

✔Top quality Hybird Lily bulbs are available this month in local nurseries. Give them a well-drained soil in filtered shade.

✔Plant spring-blooming bulbs now. Ranunculus, Anemones, Daffodils, Tulips, Hyacinths, and Dutch Iris are but a few of the choices to rely on for outstanding color. Nurseries have a wide selection from which to choose this month.

Gardening Courses

Pennsylvania State University, Box 5000, University Park, Pa., 16802, offers two correspondence courses of prime interest to gardeners: "Annuals for Your Flower Garden" ($3.45) and "Flower Arrangement" ($3.05). Checks should be made payable to the university.

New Plants For House Can Be Grown From Old

By MILLICENT TAYLOR
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

You can grow new house plants from your old ones. Practically all house plants can be propagated from cuttings or slips. Some will develop from offshoots, runners, extra crowns, or from leaves.

Slips can be made by nutting back plants that are woody, sprawling, or too big and, in most cases, the parent plant will be improved in shape and strengthened. Large geraniums and begonias, for example, should be severely pruned and repotted in good potting soil.

CUTTINGS are made from tip growths that are neither woody nor soft. The stem should be crisp and healthy. Make such a slip just below a node of joint with a sharp knife. Remove all but one or two of the top leaves.

A terrarium or discarded aquarium makes a good rooting container, although a large flower pot or a wooden box with drainage holes will also serve. Some cuttings will root in a jar of water or in a plastic bag of wet peat moss.

In a flower pot or a box put a layer of potsherds over the holes. Then add three or four inches of moist sand. With a knife or plant label make a trench and insert the cuttings an inch or so. Firm the sand around the slips, and water. Place this container on a pan of wet sand or peat and cover with cheesecloth.

In a terrarium put an inch of gravel or pebbles for drainage and two or three inches of sand. Keep the sand moist but not waterlogged. A glass lid, lifted occasionally to give air, can be used to control moisture.

SLIPS WILL root best in a warm room in medium light. To find out if roots are formed, carefully lift out one of the cuttings. If rooted, pot it in garden soil.

New plants may also be propagated by division. Some plants, like African violets, sansevieria, and ferns, develop multiple crowns and offsets. These can be pulled or cut from the parent plant and potted separately. Keep the young plants from sun or bright light until they are adjusted, and do not overwater.

Plants that form runners, like the spider fern, peperomia, hen-and-chickens, and strawberry begonia, are easily increased by potting the runners.

A large number of plants also can be increased by rooting leaves, among them African violets and rex begonias. African violet leaves can be rooted by inserting the stem (about two inches) up to its leaf in a rooting medium. An inverted tumbler can make a small greenhouse over it.

A mature leaf of your favorite rex begonia, with or without a bit of stem, will send roots down from its veins or ribs if the underside is cut at intervals and the leaf placed bottom side down on moist sand. Hold the leaf against the sand with toothpicks, small pebbles, or wires.

Cacti Suitable Inside Homes

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

Although you may feel up to your ears in other activities, you can still grow an indoor garden. The secret is choosing only easy-to-care-for plants. There are many of these, and they do add a decorative, companionable touch to house or apartment living.

A collection of cacti is fascinating. Have you a sunny or partly sunny window with plenty of light? Shop for a decorative ceramic bowl or colorful pottery rectangular container.

At this season you usually can buy small cactus plants in variety in individual pots. They are fun to choose. Some are spiny barrels, some flat and branching, others round, and some are like long fingers.

A GROUP called "cactus bunnies" have pink, red, yellow, and lime-green heads of different shapes atop thick, slightly spiny green stalks.

Cactus soil is sold by some garden shops. In any case fill the container about a fourth full of drainage material. If you mix your own soil, combine three parts of rich loam with one part of coarse sand, smashed bricks and old mortar or ground limestone. The soil must be alkaline.

You can include some of the smaller succulents in your cactus container, for both are watered sparingly and only when quite dry.

Among the succulents are decorative rosettes and branching "trees." The crassula, or jade tree, will last for years and makes an attractive tree shape, occasionally blooming.

The kalanchoe, usually available around Christmas time, is a pretty plant for the table with its clusters of red flowers. The aloe you may find is a cluster of triangular grayish leaves, although there are many other varieties.

THE HAWORTHIA likely to be in garden centers is a thick rosette of wide pointed leaves, the undersides jeweled with white raised horizontal markings. It does need repotting every two years as the outside roots die off annually, but otherwise needs only easy care.

A standby plant for busy people is the sansevieria. It has stiff, erect, sword-shaped leaves that will grow two feet tall, very handsome, and will survive an amazing amount of neglect.

Some varieties have dark green leaves cross-banded with gray-green. Others have creamy streaked leaves or leaves with yellow margins. Let the plant dry out between waterings.

Probably everybody knows how easy philodendrons are to grow. There are, however, many varieties — trailing, climbing, heart-leaved, and cut-leaved. Most popular is the heart-shaped trailing variety, but handsome for planters or for large pots with bark supports are those with deeply cut large leaves.

THE PEPEROMIAS are low, bushy plants with thick fleshy oval-shaped leaves of green, gray, and silver, prettily marked. The so-called "watermelon begonia" is a peperomia. Its rubbery leaves on thick pink stems are marked like the outside of a watermelon.

You may find several other rugged plants to add to your easy-care garden. The Norfolk Island pine is a pot-plant form of a beautiful tree growing in Hawaii and the South Pacific.

The aspidistra, or cast-iron plant, has tall, lance-shaped leaves striped along the rims in yellow. The old-fashioned rubber tree is a ficus, of which there are many variegated forms.

Good for hanging baskets are grape ivy and also wandering Jew in several variations.

In an attractive colored-glass ivy bowl you can grow in water a pretty little form of English ivy, plain or variegated, with small leaves. It is also happy in soil.

POINT REYES — C. B. GEARHART

Haydn Symphony On The Stereo Scene

PABLO CASALS, pictured while performing at a concert in the public square at Prades, France, several years ago, is not only one of the world's great musicians, but an able conductor. In a recent record release, he conducted the Marlboro Festival Orchestra in performances of Haydn symphonies.

By JOHN SUNIER

HAYDN: Symphonies Nos. 94 ("Surprise") and 95 — Pablo Casals cond. The Marlboro Festival Orchestra — Columbia M 31130: I was surprised myself to discover that I didn't have a recording of Haydn's old chestnut, the "Surprise Symphony, in my collection.

I never missed it, since the work is heard over-much on the air and at concerts, but after hearing Casals' supremely exciting version, this album will be treasured in my collection from now on. Taped at a live performance at the Marlboro Music Festival, both performances glow with captivating warmth and good humor and the audience was respectfully free of rustling and coughing fits.

WALTER CARLOS: Clockwork Orange — Columbia KC 31480: This is claimed to be the only recording of the complete musical score of Stanley Kubrick's award-winning film, including even music which didn't make it onto the final release soundtrack. There is of course the Beethoven Ninth material, but Carlos' own music is the major interest, with the complete 14-minute version of his "Timesteps," which he had begun to compose before ever hearing of either the novel by Burgess or that Kubrick was planning a film on it! Also heard is "Country Lane," which in a few minutes seems to sum up the entire mood of the film. The master of the Moog strikes again with some very original electronic sounds.

MOZART: Suites from the great operas, Arranged for Wind Ensemble — London Symphony Band conducts by John Snashall — Columbia M 31310: This appears to be a sequel to the recent excellent "Bach for Band" LP. Some of the most cherished Mozart melodies from four of his operas are enthusiastically delivered by this precision wind group. "The Marriage of Figaro" selections were my personal favorites.

BEETHOVEN: Serenade for Flute, Violin and Viola in D Major; C.P.E. BACH: Duet for Flute and Violin in G; TELEMANN: Trio Sonata for Flute, Violin and Harpsichord in A Minor — Pinchas Zukerman, violin/Eugenia Zukerman, flute/Charles Wadsworth, harpsichord — Columbia M 31309: When you combine young performers who are experts in the chamber music area with three composers who are also masters of chamber music composition, you have a winning album. Balances are perfect and sound is state-of-the-art.

24 HISTORIC ORGANS IN 8 COUNTRIES COVERING 7 CENTURIES OF MUSIC BY 24 COMPOSERS — E. Power Biggs, pipe organ — Columbia MG31207:

This double-disc package presents highlights from Bigg's previously-released albums displaying the historic old organs of Europe. Beginning with the oldest playable organ in the world, built in 1390 in Switzerland, and featuring music from Bach to Zipoli chosen to show off each organ to best advantage, this is a highly listenable yet informative collection. Bigg's own notes are fascinating reading. He says that though these organs display a wide variety of timbre, they all have in common their tone which is as vital as on the day they were built.

My favorites on these Bigg's recordings have always been the organs of Spain and Portugal, with their "Trompetas Reales" that jut forth in horizontal array and sound so stentorian on the recordings. From wheezes to roars, these organs all have definite personalities and comparisons are fascinating. The sound is top-notch.

MEDICINE, MIND AND MUSIC — A Consideration of Their Links Through the Centuries — Columbia Legacy Collection L2X 30680: This is a lavish two-LP set with illustrated hardcover book similar to earlier efforts such as those on the Confederacy and the Union. There are illustrated articles on "Music Physician of the Soul," and another by Nicolas Slonimsky. The musical research and many of the performances are by vocalist Meg Welles and harpsichordist-conductor Fred Karlin.

Here is some idea of what's on the discs: an invocation to an Egyptian god, medieval incantations to cure illness, three songs from the Black Plague (including Ring Around the Rosie!) humorous songs sung by Oscar Brand about doctors and nurses, modern blues about having pneumonia or drug addiction, and even a programmatic account for speaker, viol and harpsichord of a gall stone operation — dating from 1725 and composed by Marin Marais.

Mellow Miles Davis Set Own Direction

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

Modern jazz is considered old stuff by the younger breed of rock advocates but it is not quite ready to retire.

In the beginning, modern jazz was as far out as some of the hard rock music of today because it represented a breakaway from conformity.

It's early practitioners, especially Dizzy and Bird, either created new sounds or squeezed the old ones beyond recognition.

MILES DAVIS, one of the alltime greats of modern jazz, was on the scene at the outset of the bop era but seemed to be a settling force.

In the years that followed, Davis developed a musical style on trumpet that moved in the opposite direction from Satchmo and Gillespie and other giants of the horn.

It consisted mainly of slow, drawn out sounds which added texture to whatever he was playing.

"Sketches of Spain" was perhaps Davis' most expressive album in this vein.

SOME fine music which Davis recorded in 1953, 1954 and 1955 has been reissued on a two-LP album, "Tallest Trees" Prestige PR 24012.

Davis is backed in these sessions by such formidable jazz musicians as Thelonious Monk, Charles Mingus, John Lewis and Horace Silver on piano; John Coltrane and Sonny Rollins on tenor sax; Milt Jackson on vibes and Percy Heath on bass. Even so, Davis seems to stand alone with his brooding interpretations.

Among the selections are "Bags' Groove," "Miles Ahead," "The Man I Love," "Round About Midnight" and "Oleo."

Rudy Van Gelder deserves special mention for his excellent work in remastering the originals and sound reproduction is clear and undistorted.

LIKE Miles Davis, Don Shirley and Ahmad Jamal developed distinctive styles on their instrument, the piano, that put them in their own niches.

On "The Don Shirley Point of View" Atlantic SD 1605, Shirley offers an exquisite interpretation of "Bridge Over Troubled Water" without wandering away from the framework of the original composition. Shirley enhances this particular number with a rich organ background. As played by Shirley, "The Shadow of Your Smile" could have been written by Chopin. The longest section contains the music from "Porgy and Bess" and perhaps the highlight is Shirley's keyboard work on "I Got Plenty o' Nuttin'."

"Outertimeinnerspace" by Ahman Jamal Impulse AS-9226 was recorded at the Montreux Jazz Festival and consists of only two compositions "Bogota" by Richard Evans and "Extensions" by Jamal. Ahmad's music has been described as cerebral but no matter how you define it the only thing you can do is sit back and listen.

Inside Your Home—Choice of Fire

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

Except for a few outrageously humid heat spells, our North American weather does not discount the use of the fireplace.

It's hard to separate fire from our lives. Most of us respond to the sight and sound even when we don't need the creature comfort it brings. I, for one, respond to those fake fires created by electricity and a moving spiral of colored light.

BUILDING a fireplace as an integral part of the house can be super costly. Stonework is a hand craft, frequently executed by persnickety characters who hand choose each stone. More power to them, but the cost can sometimes be out of whack with reality.

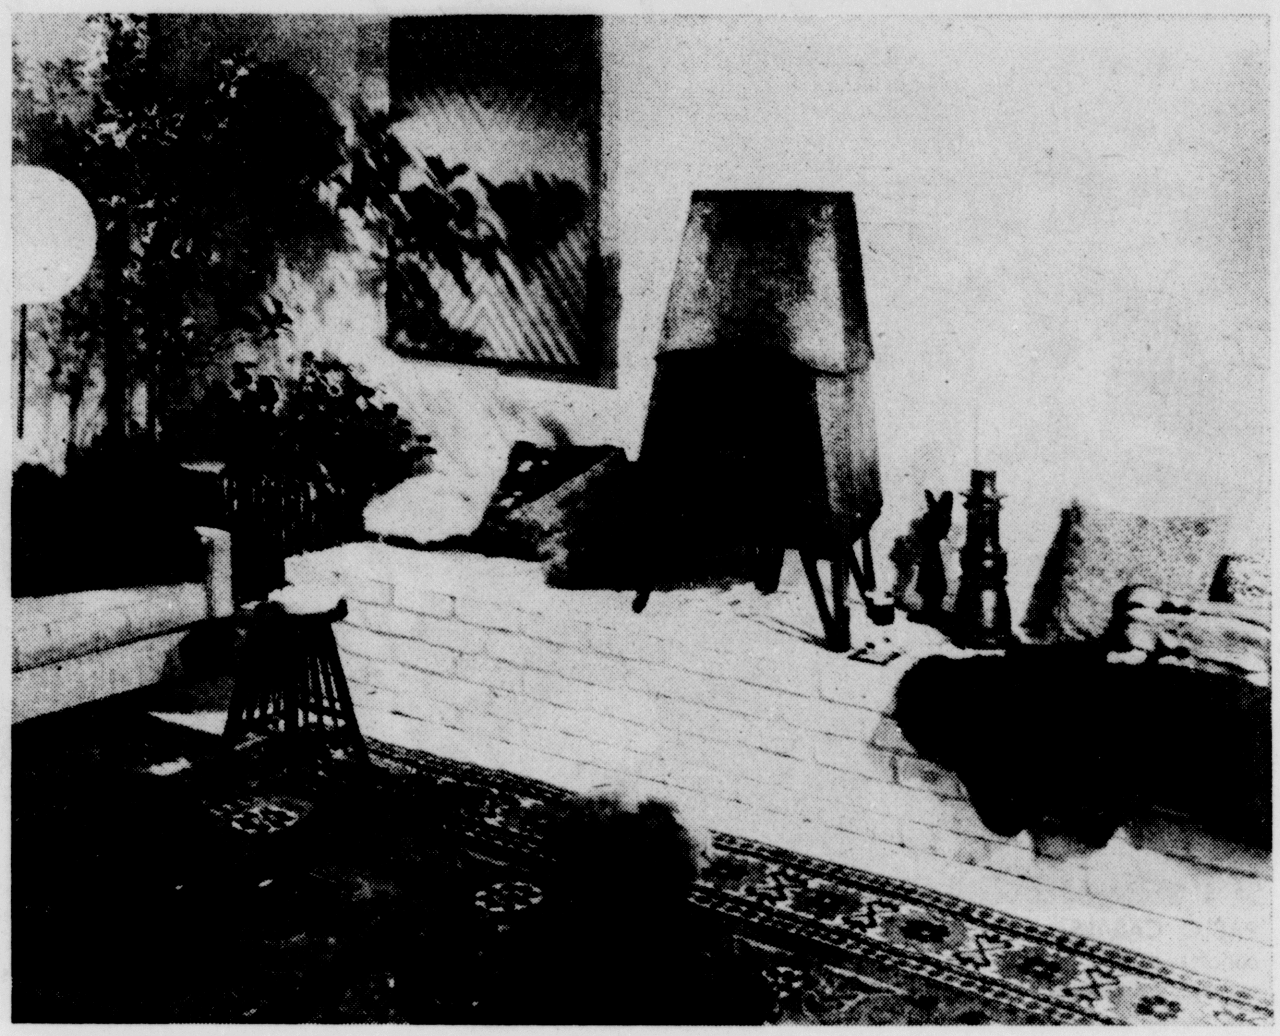

Also, as more families move into modular or mobile living accommodations, that old fireplace concept will have to be updated.

So currently I'm opting for more of the free-standing, add-on stoves or fireplaces. Pick a period of design and there should be a stove to suit the need.

Potbellied types are reappearing in the junk and antique shops; French porcelain types are being imported in pretty pastel colors; contemporary styles are abundant according to advertisements we see in national magazines.

THERE ARE always several design choices in the warehouses of companies like Sears and Montgomery Ward. I'm sure I've seen reproductions of some classic Franklin stoves in the Sears catalogue. With the right chimney and flue equipment, it wouldn't be hard to warm up the atmosphere any night of the year.

If you want or need to create a hearth area around your store-bought fireplace, try installing some of the fake brick wall covering. One line, Dacor Miracle Bricks, are one-quarter-inch thick and are made of tough, nonporous polyester in the absolute image of real bricks.

Brushing Lacquer Can Do The Job With Extra Care

By ANDY LANG

Most furniture manufacturers use lacquer to produce those beautiful, clear, hard finishes that are so difficult to achieve by the amateur.

While the lacquer is sprayed on by the professionals, most do-it-yourselfers do not have the necessary spraying equipment or know-how.

It is possible, however, to get excellent results by applying lacquer with a brush, provided you are willing to spend a little time getting the hang of it. This means practicing on scrap wood before tackling a serious job.

MOST hardware stores, paint shops, lumber yards and home suppliers carry what is called brushing lacquer. Unfortunately, manufacturers often do not designate on the label the type of lacquer inside the can.

If the one you select does not give this information, ask the dealer whether it is the kind of lacquer that is intended for use with a brush.

IN USING lacquer, the beginner should always dilute it with lacquer thinner, preferably of the same brand as the lacquer. Make a 50-50 mixture. After experimenting, you can then determine whether to use a lesser amount of thinner.

As with all finishing materials, lacquer is best applied in several thin coats rather than one thick coat.

Lacquer begins to dry instantly after it is applied. This is both an advantage and disadvantage.

THE ADVANTAGE is that the finish is not as susceptible to dust as some other finishes, notably varnish. The disadvantage is that extra care must be taken in the application.

Work small areas at a time, putting on the lacquer with a fairly full brush and working quickly without missing any spots.

You must not go back over a section that has already been done, because it will have started to dry and thus will interfere with smooth application by the wet brush.

Line Drawer Or Shelving With Cedar

Space-shy homes or apartments can have moth protection without having a cedar-lined closet.

Instead, they can devote shelf, drawer or cabinet space to a cedar-lined haven for their woolens and furs, at small expense.

For instance, the wall benches in a game room, bedroom or elsewhere can be lined with aromatic red cedar, available at most lumber yards. Sold in precut packages and tongue-and-grooved for easy installation, the pieces can be nailed or glued to the interiors.

THESE benches then become cedar chests — accessible to human but a "no-no" for moths, which can't stand the fragrant odor of the cedar wood.

In some cases, the bottom drawer or space in a dresser can be made into a cedar drawer. To assure airtight construction, it's a good idea to lay some cedar boards across some narrow quarter-round to form a drawer lid. The pieces should be fastened together by gluing a thin strip of wood around the edges forming the lid's perimeter.

Even basement shelving can be converted into moth repellent cedar caches for woolens and furs. Simply select a shelf or two and line all sides with the red cedar. The front can be a pull-down door, providing the cedar has been given a light perimeter framework like the one described for the drawer lid.

Never paint or seal the wood. Such treatment prevents the natural fragrance from coming out.

A LIFE-SIZED SANTA display, suitable for roof or yard, can spread Christmas spirit in a neighborhood. The popular Santa, his reindeer and Mrs. Santa with her tray of cookies for youngsters make an attractive group. The display is easy and inexpensive to make by gluing the waterproof pictures to hardboard or plywood and then sawing out the forms. Directions can be obtained by sending $12 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, for the complete display. Figures can be ordered separately at the following costs, Santa, $2.50; Mrs. Santa, $2.50; sleigh, $2.50, deer, 75 cents each. In ordering, include your zip code number.

Make Check Before Toilet Falters

By ANDY LANG

Repairs inside a toilet tank are made more easily if you have knowledge of how the mechanism operates. The best time to get acquainted with the system is when it is working properly.

Remove the tank lid and trip the flush handle. You will see that the movement of the flush handle lifts up a rubber ball or stopper at the bottom of the tank.

As the ball comes up, the water in the tank rushes out and flows into the bowl. As the water gets lower and lower in the tank, so does a large metal or plastic float suspended on a rod.

WHEN the water gets near the bottom, the stopper falls back into place and the tank begins to refill. As it refills, the suspended metal float keeps rising.

When it reaches a certain point high in the tank, it shuts off a valve, thus preventing any more water from entering the tank.

It may sound complicated, but it will become clear if you try tripping the flush handle a few times and watching what happens.

THE MOST frequent problem is a trickling flow of water from the tank into the bowl when the toilet is not being used. This means that the ball or stopper at the bottom of the tank is not seating properly and is thus permitting water to escape.

Check to see that the rod holding the stopper is directly over the valve seat. Next, steel wool the inside of the valve seat lightly so as to smooth out any irregularities.

If there is still a trickle, it means that the ball or stopper itself needs to be replaced, a similar maneuver, since the stopper screws off the rod.

ANOTHER common ailment is a slight gurgling sound caused when the water in the tank rises too much and flows into the overflow tube, a hollow cylinder usually a little to the left of center in the tank.

The float rod, to which the float is attached, should be bent downward a little. Use both hands to do this, working carefully so the entire tank mechanism is not thrown out of alignment.

Flush the tank and the chances are that the water will not rise so high this time, ending the flow into the overflow tube.

If this doesn't work, the chances are that the float has lost its buoyancy and needs replacement.

IT CAN be screwed off the float rod. In buying a replacement, you will discover that you have a choice of several kinds, including metal, plastic or foam floats. All work well.

There are, of course, half a dozen other things that can go wrong in a toilet tank. But those mentioned cover the large majority of cases. Sometimes you can uncover the problem and solve it merely by observation. If you can't, you'll simply have to get a plumber.

Decorative Lighting Tips For Buyers

— If that new house you're thinking of buying has an unfinished look about it — if no lighting fixtures are installed that is — the builder may be doing you a big favor.

"More and more builders are leaving the choice of decorative lighting fixtures up to the home buyer," Stanley Johnston of the Scovill Lightcraft division told the National Association of Home Builders show here.

"After all, these fixtures represent the only permanent interior decoration of the house, and who knows what period of furniture the purchaser wants to bring into his new home?"

HOW TO avoid having to sit at a Modern Ranch dining room table under a Renaissance chandelier?

"If the builder doesn't volunteer it, and many now do," Johnston advises, "ask him for a dollar-allowance for the lighting fixtures so that you, rather than he, can do the selecting.

"He should be glad to cooperate because once you make this request, he can be pretty sure that he has sold you the house."

Marin Homeowner's Notebook

HIDDEN ENTRANCES TO YOUR HOME?

A home anywhere in Marin County might have several hidden entrances and some very unwanted intruders. Termites!

Mud tubes like those shown above are built by subterranean termites to sneak into Marin's nicest homes. Termites invite themselves into both new and old homes. And contrary to popular belief, they love dining at homes built on concrete-slab floors (especially ones with radiant heat). In fact, 60% of all Marin homes have termites present right now.

Once inside, the termites eat their unsuspecting hosts out of house and home. Literally.

Termites eat wood. And since these extremely social insects live in giant nests with up to 250,000 relatives, having the family up to dinner can be a very expensive proposition.

The termite workers shuttle up and down constantly, carrying bits of wood back to the nest. But they are masters at keeping their activity hidden. They work inside of walls and floors, then span open spaces with mud tubes. So a considerable portion of your house can be out to lunch before you know it!

Every homeowner in Marin should check regularly for termite mud tubes around his foundation, post footings, garage, fences, and particularly in winter, the hot water heater and furnace areas. If tubes are found, call Hinkley & Gordon immediately.

Hinkley & Gordon is a state-licensed structural pest control company. For two generations, we've been providing Marin's most expert and thorough pest control services.

The cost of a Hinkley & Gordon inspection is just $35 for the average Marin home. And it certainly beats allowing a sneak attack on your home investment.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

However numerous and logical — from their standpoint — may be the networks' arguments for 26 weeks of repeats of television series each year, the fact remains that regular viewers hate the policy almost 100 per cent. But don't expect a return to the old policy of 13 weeks of repeats despite official pressure for this.

With the networks' new shows now on record, a snap judgment would be that the one that is certain to make it big is "Maude" on CBS. This comedy series starring Beatrice Arthur, a seasoned Broadway theater actress, as a dominating female in a domestic setup is bound to appeal to women viewers.

Paul Lynde's new comedy series on ABC has its origin in a 1958 Broadway stage flop titled "Howie." Strange thing is that Lynde did a pilot based on the same property 10 years ago, but it didn't work out at that time. The son-in-law character in the television series, a know-it-all who is a major irritation to the lawyer character played by Lynde, is still named Howie.

A gimmick of dubious merit that crops up a couple of times each season is a two-part drama that has its first installment on one series and the second on another on the same network, naturally. The latest example was the one that began on NBC's "Ironside" program, with the doctor stars of "The Bold Ones" involved, and which was concluded on "The Bold Ones" program the following week. Two-parters on the same program are trying enough.

Comedian Alan King's first special of the season for ABC will be telecast Nov. 15. They're calling it "The Wonderful World of Aggravation — Part 12," with a subtitle: "Living May be Hazardous to Your Health."

The Experts Disagree On Political TV

Political campaign specialists are widely divided on the effectiveness of paid television in the current Presidential campaign, according to TV Guide magazine reports.

Joseph Napolitan, who directed Hubert Humphrey's 1968 media campaign, thinks that paid TV is still the most valuable part of a campaign, while Roger Ailes, who guided President Richard M. Nixon's 1968 media drive, believes that spending massive amounts of money on TV spots does not guarantee victory.

Still another view comes from David Garth, who was John Lindsay's media consultant in his recent presidential campaign. "The medium is highly overrated in importance," Garth said. "And with a large number of candidates it's even less important."

Napolitan disagrees. "I hope all my opponents in future campaigns think that the medium is highly overrated. Paid television is still the single most important tool we have in political campaigns," he said.

Tune-up Tips by ECHLIN

You can smile, too!

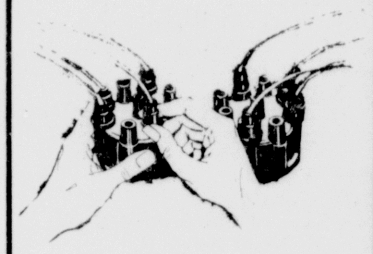

2 ways to save time on distributor work.

Quick—which way does it turn?

When servicing the distributor, there's a quick and easy way to find out which way it turns. Simply try to turn the shaft, first in one direction then the other; the direction in which it moves a short distance is the direction of rotation.

How to get plug wires back on without tracing the firing order.

When working on a V8 engine with nearly inaccessible distributor, make use of another distributor cap, new or used.

Transfer one bank of spark plug wires to corresponding holes of the extra cap. Now you can lay both caps and wires to each side, leaving the distributor accessible for service. When finished, simply transfer wires to the original cap and instantly you've got the right firing order.

Interviewer Presses Officials For Answers

By LUCIA JOHNSON LEITH

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "The people I interview may be powerful and important, but they work for the public.

We pay their salaries. They are liable to respectful, serious, thorough questions," says Elizabeth (Liz) Drew, host of "Thirty Minutes With."

In an intimate living-room setting, seated knee to knee with her guest before the cameras, Mrs. Drew Interviews senators, congressmen, White House staffers, Cabinet heads, presidential aspirants.

About 150 public-television stations across the country carry this Public Broadcasting System weekly prime time interview program.

GUESTS have included Sen. George McGovern; United States Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst; Rep . Wilbur D. Mills (D) of Arkansas, chariman of the House Ways and Means Committee; California Gov. Ronald Reagan; Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D) of Massachusetts; and presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman. Interviews filmed overseas include Jordan's King Hussein and Israel's Prime Minister Golda Meir.

Liz Drew's approach is gracious, but she is firm. Evasive answers don't slip by her. She fires a question as often as necessary to get an answer.

"It is critical to hold public officials accountable," she says. "They all deserve respect, but they are accountable. That's what democracy is about.

"The central purpose (of the show) is to give the public a chance to see in some depth people either in power, or people seeking power, or people, perhaps not so famous nationally, but who have a very deep effect on our national lives," she continues.

ELIZABETH (LIZ) DREW, a firm TV host, fires questions as often as necessary to get an answer on her "Thirty Minutes With." show carried on public television stations.

"I HOPE the viewers will learn something about my guest's style, mind, approach to national issues, and also about the issues themselves."

Mrs. Drew describes her television approach as "low-key."

"I'm not asking my viewers to see me, but my guest. I view my own role as a public surrogate, and I mean that with some humility. I want to ask questions that I think are on the public's mind."

To Mrs. Drew, low-key also means being "noncombative, not having a know-it-all attitude. Not only do I dislike the combative approach as a matter of personal style, it is also ineffective," she says, because it puts the guest on the defensive.

OUT OF the more than 75 individuals who have appeared on her show (some more than once), only a handful have been women, among them Rep. Shirley Chisholm (D) of New York.

"That's part of the vicous cycle," explains Mrs. Drew. "There are not enough women in politics and public life and in positions of influnce. I don't like not having more women on the show. I don't do it (interview so few women) by choice.

The unrehearsed interviews are taped once and shown unedited.

"It's terribly important that we show exactly what happened. I can't go back and erase and neither can the person I'm interviewing. There's a growing skepticism of things that are edited and cut."

Mrs. Drew concentrates more on questions and answers during the show than on being before television cameras.

"Preferably you don't sneeze, though, or put your hand over your face for a full half-hour," she says with a smile.

A WIDOW, Mrs. Drew is a Phi Beta Kappa Wellesley graduate in political science. From Cincinnati, she came into reporting through a temporary, three-month job with the Congressional Quarterly in Washington.

In 1967, she became first Washington editor for The Atlantic Monthly magazine, for which she writes frequent reports.

Looking for something to do in addition to writing, she explored television. This quickly led to "Thirty Minutes With," first aired in January, 1971, and she's been doing the show ever since.

"Frankly, I'm shocked by rising hospital costs! Right now, they could wipe out your savings, even plunge you into debt.

Art Linkletter

"I urge you to apply for this supplemental insurance plan that pays up to $700.00 a month when you are hospitalized... that's $23.33 a day for as long as you stay in the hospital, even for life."

$1 covers your whole family for the first month.

When hospitalized, benefits are payable at the rate of...

Hospital Benefits
$700.00 a month—$23.33 a day—

while you require hospital confinement ...for each accident starting the first day in the hospital, and for each illness, starting after the fifth day—continuing for life, if necessary.

Children's Benefits
$420.00 a month—$14.00 a day—

while your child is confined to the hospital for any accident or illness, when you have Coverage for Children—no matter how long the confinement may be. Coverage for accidents begins the very first day in the hospital; sickness coverage begins after the fifth day.

Maternity Benefits
$23.33 a day—

for Maternity Benefits when Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits have been added to the basic plan. (Wife must be enrolled for entire period of pregnancy.)

Registered Nurse Benefit at home after covered hospital confinement.
$400.00 a month—$13.33 a day—

for a registered nurse at home if your doctor has you hire one within five days following a hospital confinement of five days or more for which you received benefits—up to one year.

Increased Accident Benefit when covered husband and wife are simultaneously hospitalized.
$2,800.00 a month—$93.33 a day—

that's $1,400.00 a month, $46.67 a day, for you—and $1,400.00 a month, $46.67 a day, for your spouse ... while an accident hospitalizes covered husband and wife at the same time. Yes, $2,800.00 a month, $93.33 a day in all while both are confined in the hospital as a result of accident—even for life.

Waiver of Premium.

We waive all premiums that come due for you and all covered members of your family while you—or your spouse—are hospitalized beyond eight consecutive weeks following the elimination period if any. And you don't have to pay us back.

Benefits are payable for as long as you're hospitalized —even for life.

We mean it. If you go to the hospital for a month, we will pay you for a month subject to any elimination period. If you go for 2 months, we'll pay you for 2 months. And if you go to the hospital for life—we will pay you for life. No ifs, ands, or buts.

These are the exclusions!

Your National Home policy covers every kind of sickness or accident except conditions caused by:

1. any sickness or injury originating before the policy went into effect (these pre-existing conditions are covered after policy has been in force for 2 years);

2. war, or any act of war;

3. any mental disease or functional nervous disorder;

4. pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision;

You collect from your first day in the hospital for accidents and after five days for sickness.

You will be covered for care in any hospital, except a U.S. Government hospital or a nursing or convalescent facility.

Here are your rates.

$1 covers your entire family for the first month. After that you may continue at the monthly rates shown below. We will issue you only one policy of this class. Each adult, 16 or over, pays the rate shown for his or her age.

Age at Enrollment	Monthly Premium per Adult
16-44	$ 3.95
45-49	$ 4.65
50-54	$ 5.10
55-64	$ 7.40
65-74	$ 9.95
75-79	$11.50
80-84	$12.25
85 and over	$14.10

Only $2.05 more per month covers all your unmarried dependent children... from birth through 18 years, including automatic coverage for newborn children—at no additional cost. For Maternity Benefits just add $1.55 monthly if both husband and wife are covered under this policy—or $2.40 monthly if the wife only is insured.

NOTE: The regular monthly renewal premium shown (for age at time of enrollment) will not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next. Once you have enrolled in this National Home plan, your policy is guaranteed renewable and your rate cannot be increased individually because of how much or how often you collect from us—or because of advanced age—but only if there is a general rate adjustment on all policies of this class and form number in your entire state.

OVER 30 million people will be admitted to a hospital this year! It could be you—or some beloved member of your family — tomorrow . . . next week . . . next month. Sad to say, very few families have anywhere near enough coverage to meet today's soaring hospital costs. These costs have more than doubled in just a few short years.

Stop for a moment. Think how much a long stay in the hospital will cost you or a loved one. How would you ever pay for costly, but necessary, X-rays, medical bills, drugs and medicines? What would you do if your pay check stopped, but living expenses kept going on the same as ever? The same rent, phone, food, all the day-to-day expenses that never stop.

What is the average breadwinner to do? We believe we have an answer in this National Home plan.

Pays up to $700.00 a month—$23.33 a day—benefits when you are hospitalized.

Now you can have $700.00 coming in every month—$23.33 a day—beginning the very first day you are hospitalized due to an accident, and after the fifth day for confinements due to sickness.

The benefits are paid directly to you unless you request otherwise and without regard to any other insurance you may already have. Use the money as you see fit—for hospital or medical bills. To replace savings or cover household expenses.

Dear Friend:

How often do we take for granted our good health and that of those we love? It's only natural ... until something happens.

And things do happen. Over 30 million people are admitted to hospitals each year, and with today's skyrocketing hospital and medical costs many people lose their savings and go into debt. That's why you should protect yourself and your family with National Home's health plan. I think this plan is one of the best supplemental hospital insurance plans you can own.

Because I have been retained by National Home as a marketing consultant, I've looked over the policy very carefully. I also know the folks at National Home. And you won't find more decent, competent and friendly people to deal with. I've seen the way they handle claims, too -- quickly and fairly. Believe me, when you need them, they'll be there to help you.

I cannot imagine anybody passing up the chance to enroll in this health plan -- especially when the first month's protection costs only $1 and then continues at reasonable monthly rates.

We all know what a terrible thing it is to be hospitalized. But what a relief it is to know there are insurance benefits coming in when you need them most! Take my advice. Send the Enrollment Form on the back page now -- before you forget.

Sincerely,

Art Linkletter

Art Linkletter

Member of the Board of Directors,
National Home Life Assurance Company

We guarantee not to cancel your protection no matter how many claims you have . . . or how old you become . . . or for any reason whatsoever.

We cannot increase your rates individually because of how old you become . . . or how many claims you have . . . but only if there is a general rate adjustment on all policies of this class and form number in your entire state.

How much does $700.00 a month —$23.33 a day—protection cost you? Only $1 covers you and your entire family for the first month. After that you may continue at our renewal rates shown on page 2.

Pays $420.00 a month—$14.00 a day—when any unmarried dependent child is hospitalized.

When you choose Coverage for Children, this National Home plan pays at the rate of $420.00 a month—$14.00 a day—while one of your children is hospitalized. Pays for as long as necessary! Children are covered for accidents from the first day and for sickness after the fifth day.

Benefits for Maternity Care.

Other hospital insurance may take care of part of your expenses when you are confined to the hospital to have a baby. This plan can give you additional help when the new baby arrives. If Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits are added to the basic plan, and your wife has been covered during entire period of pregnancy, this plan pays $700.00 a month —$23.33 a day to use as you want. If a pregnancy, childbirth or even miscarriage puts your covered wife in the hospital for one day, five days, ten days—as long as necessary—this plan pays benefits for every day of the confinement.

Benefits for registered nurse care at home after a covered hospital confinement.

How comforting it is to know that —after your stay in the hospital, if you've been there five days or more for which you received benefits—you can return home to recuperate and yet not be a burden to your loved ones. If your doctor has you employ a full-time registered nurse within 5 days after you come home, we'll pay benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month —$13.33 a day. And your benefits continue during employment of the nurse—even up to 12 full months.

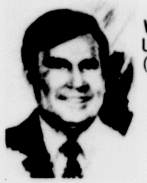

Double Accident Benefit when covered husband and wife are simultaneously hospitalized.

When you and your insured spouse are hospitalized at the same time for an accidental injury, this National Home plan pays DOUBLE BENEFITS. $1,400.00 a month—$46.67 a day—apiece. That's $2,800.00—$93.33 a day—in benefits every month starting the day you are hospitalized for as long as you both remain confined.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF NATIONAL LIBERTY CORPORATION PARENT OF NATIONAL HOME, INCLUDES:

Robert E. Slater, Chairman of the Board, National Liberty Corporation.

W. Marvin Watson, U.S. Postmaster Gen. (1968-1969).

Frank Carlson, U.S. Senator (1950-1968).

Art Linkletter, President, National Coordinating Council on Drug Abuse.

Emerson Foote, Founder and First President, Foote, Cone and Belding.

Waiver of premium benefit.

After you or your covered spouse are confined in the hospital for 8 continuous weeks, following the elimination period, if any, your premiums that come due during the continued hospital confinement are taken care of by National Home. And your protection continues just the same as if you were paying the premiums yourself.

Nationally known and respected.

This is the kind of protection you may have seen advertised in Reader's Digest, Better Homes and Gardens, TV Guide and other leading publications. The company that stands behind your policy is National Home, established in 1920 and a member of the National Liberty Group. One of America's financially strong institutions, we are licensed in 46 states and we pay benefits under various plans at the rate of twenty million dollars a year to our policyowners.

Fast, Reliable Claim Service

"We were most happy with the prompt way that you sent us the claim forms when requested. Your check for the week my husband was in the hospital was received within ten days. Thank you so much – it really helped in a time of need."

MRS. ROBERT H. ROBINSON, Miami, Fla.

"I took out the policy and had only paid two monthly premiums when I was unexpectedly put in the hospital. Was there 11 days and the National Home Life Assurance Company paid exactly what they had said they would. How happy we were we had taken the policy out."

DEWEY M. FAILOR, Upper Sandusky, Ohio

Why you should mail your Enrollment Form TODAY.

You never know when you or someone in your family will suffer a serious illness or sudden accident. Remember, 80,000 Americans are admitted to a hospital each day. And nobody knows whose turn it is next. Do you really have enough health protection to cover today's soaring hospital and medical costs? Probably not. That's why it's so important to get this additional $700.00 a month—$23.33 a day—plan. Play it safe, send your form now and you won't be sorry later.

Act now—
"later" may be too late!

TIME IS PRECIOUS! Act quickly. (No salesman will call.) Get your Enrollment Form into the mail today—because once you suffer an accident or sickness, it's TOO LATE to get the coverage you need. That's why we urge you to act today—before the unexpected happens.

RIGHT TO EXAMINE POLICY

We will send your National Home policy by mail. Examine it carefully. If you decide that you don't want to continue as a member of this plan, return the policy within 10 days of the date you receive it, and we will promptly refund your money.

65 OR OVER?

Regardless of the coverage you already have, National Home pays at the rate of $23.33 a day, $700.00 a month, when you are hospitalized. Coverage for accidents begins the very first day in the hospital. Sickness coverage begins after the fifth day. Coverage for accidents or sickness continues for as long as you are hospitalized.

CLAIMS PHILOSOPHY

National Home Life Assurance Company

Our claims philosophy stresses the importance of a prompt and equitable settlement of all claims:

- . . . "EXCELLENCE is not only what we wish to achieve, but that to which our policyowners are entitled."
- . . . "Our guiding principle is to ask ourselves on each submitted claim, 'Is there any way we can pay this claim?'
- . . . always give the benefit of the doubt to the policyowner."
- . . . "Courtesy is an absolute requirement—the policyowner must have the feeling that he is not a number but, rather, a human being, and that we stand ready and willing to assist him in any way we can."
